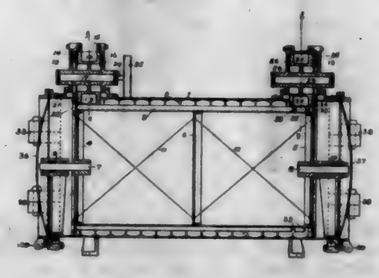
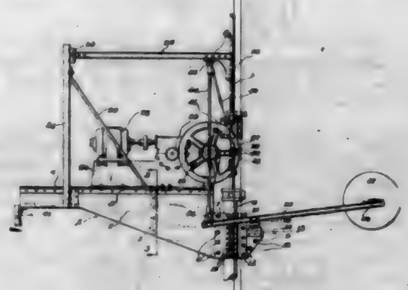
1,539,456. IRON ALLOY. WESLEY J. BECK and JAMES A. AUPPERLE, Middletown, Ohio, assignors to The American Rolling Mill Company, Middletown, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed July 26, 1919. Serial No. 313,611. 3 Claims. (Cl. 75—1.)



1. A workable iron alloy which has the characteristic of resisting destructive corrosion at high temperatures under oxidizing conditions and is fabricated into forms for use under exposure to such conditions containing silicon in proportions ranging upward from substantially two per cent to percentage not so high as to render it unworkable and containing more silicon than any other alloying metal.

1,539,457. LETTER FILE. EDUARD BERNEBURG, Leipsig, Germany. Filed Aug. 15, 1923. Serial No. 657,527. 1 Claim. (Cl. 129—37.)

A letter file comprising, the combination with an upper and a lower cover of one piece and having a common back, and a torsional spring on said back having integral loop-shaped tongues engaging over the parts of said covers adjacent to said back, of means to fix said torsional spring in position on said back, and consisting of small holes in said back and binding wire passed from inside through each two adjacent holes and twined with said torsional spring, substantially as set forth.



1,539,458. COOKER AND COOLER. SENECA LUCIEN BERRY, Sunnyvale, Calif., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Anderson-Barngrover Mfg. Co., San Jose, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Mar. 9, 1922. Serial No. 542,381. 1 Claim. (Cl. 126—272.)

A pressure cooker comprising a cooking chamber having openings therein, a valve housing mounted over each of the openings, a supporting bearing mounted in the chamber adjacent each end, a cylindrical conveyor rotatably carried by and between the supporting bearings and operable within the chamber, a valve operable in one of the housings for feeding cans to the conveyor, a valve operable in the other housing for receiving cans from the conveyor, a gear secured to each of the valves and confined within the housings, a gear secured to each end of the cylindrical conveyor within the chamber, said last mentioned gears meshing with the valve gears, and doors connected to the ends of the chamber, said doors entirely confining the supporting bearings, conveyor and gears secured to the conveyor within the chamber.

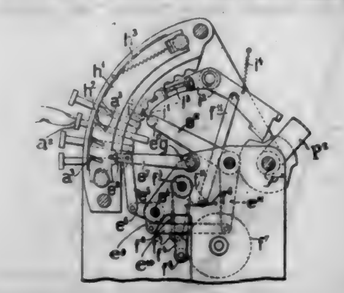
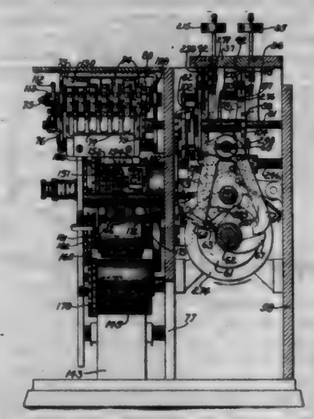
1,539,459. PUMPING UNIT FOR OIL WELLS. WILLIAM H. BLAKELY, Tulsa, Okla., assignor of one-fourth to R. E. Martin, one-fourth to C. E. Dagwell, and one-fourth to T. D. Williamson, all of Tulsa, Okla. Filed June 24, 1924. Serial No. 722,117. 7 Claims. (Cl. 74—14.)

1. A pumping unit including means for supporting said unit upon a well casing, means for counter balancing said unit, pumping mechanism and means for automatically disconnecting said pumping mechanism in case of rod breakage.



1,539,460. PHONOGRAPH STOP. JOSEF BRANDSTETTER, Chicago, Ill. Filed Oct. 27, 1923. Serial No. 671,266. 15 Claims. (Cl. 192—122.)

1. A phonograph stop comprising a supporting member, a spring-urged brake arm and a latching lever pivoted to the supporting member on relatively transverse axes and so arranged that the brake arm limits the movement of the latching lever in one direction, and a trip arm connected to the latching lever by a friction joint and so positioned that it will move the latching lever in the said direction when the trip arm is moved against the tone arm of the phonograph during the setting of the stop.



1,539,461. KEY-RELEASING DEVICE FOR CASH REGISTERS AND CALCULATING MACHINES. ERNST BERITLING, Essen-West, Germany, assignor to Fried. Krupp Aktiengesellschaft, Essen-on-the-Ruhr, Germany. Filed Mar. 13, 1923. Serial No. 624,806. 3 Claims. (Cl. 235—8.)

3. In a key releasing device for cash registers and calculating machines provided with amount keys and special keys designed to unlock the machine for operation comprising locking means for said special keys, displaceable upon depression of a special key, releasing levers for said amount keys provided with adjustable parts, a shaft for said releasing levers, a second shaft parallel with said first mentioned shaft, arms on said second shaft pivotally connected to the adjustable parts of said releasing levers, and means positively connecting said last mentioned shaft with the locking means for said special keys, whereby said releasing levers are held inoperative during the continued depression of a special key, thus enabling duplicate registrations of the amounts prevously set on the amount keys during a continued operation of the machine.

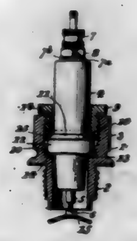
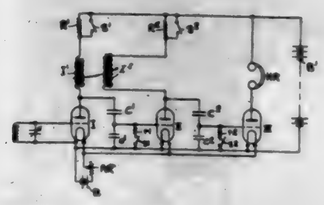
1,539,462. TICKET MACHINE. THOMAS CARROLL, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to The National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio. Filed Apr. 30, 1921. Serial No. 465,754. 23 Claims. (Cl. 101—66.)



1. In a machine of the class described, the combination of a ticket issuing device adapted to issue a plurality of tickets at one operation, means for printing said tickets as they are issued, operating means therefor adapted to be operated a number of times corresponding to the number of tickets to be issued, a pivoted element for said means adapted to be differentially moved by keys, and a differentially rotating member cooperating with said pivoted element for determining the number of operations of said operating means and the ticket issuing and printing device.

1,539,463. SPARK PLUG. ALFONZO C. CASTILLO, Socorro, N. Mex. Filed Dec. 8, 1921. Serial No. 519,741. 1 Claim. (Cl. 123—169.)



A spark plug of the class described comprising a shell, an insulating block supported therein, an electrode extending centrally through said insulating block and terminating in a plane slightly below the plane of the lower edge of said shell, said shell being provided at diametrically opposite points on its outer periphery with recesses extending upwardly from the lower edge thereof, an additional electrode of disc-like formation designed substantially rectangular in plane and provided at diametrically opposite points thereon with integral upstanding arms fitting and secured in the recesses in the lower portion of said shell, said disc-like electrode being spaced below the termination of said first mentioned electrode and being of an arear to entirely cover the lower end of said shell, the oppositely opposed end portions of said disc-like electrode between the projections thereof being deflected downwardly, as and for the purposes described.

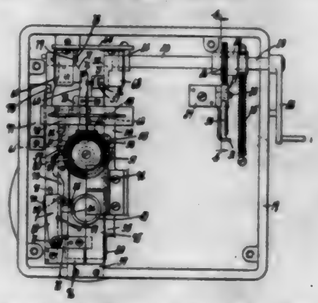
1,539,464. ELECTROMAGNETIC WAVE RECEIVING AND AMPLIFYING SYSTEM. FREDERICK JOHN CHAMBERS, London, England, assignor of one-half to Leonard Alan Leggatt, London, England. Filed Dec. 13, 1922. Serial No. 606,583. 12 Claims. (Cl. 179—171.)

1. A receiving arrangement for electrical oscillations comprising a source of electrical oscillations, a thermionic valve having a filament, a grid, and an anode, a circuit connecting said source of electrical oscillations between said filament and said grid, a battery, an oscillatory anode circuit comprising an inductive resistance, connected between said battery and said anode, the other terminal of said battery being connected to said filament, and two condensers in series connected between said anode and said filament and a receiving device connected across the terminals of one of said condensers.



1,539,465. FIELD REGULATOR. PIERRE I. CHANDEYSON, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to Marshall Electric Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed May 25, 1922. Serial No. 563,531. 2 Claims. (Cl. 171—229.)

1. A rheostat comprising a pair of thermostatic bars arranged so as to be flexed in relatively opposite directions by the same temperature change, means for supporting each bar adjacent to the ends thereof, and a compressible resistance interposed between the medial portions of the two bars and adapted to be varied in resistance by the flexing of the bars.

1,539,466. COIN-OPERATED VENDING MACHINE. DANIEL L. CHANDLER, Boston, Mass., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Vend Ads Corp., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Jan. 19, 1923. Serial No. 613,754. 27 Claims. (Cl. 194—97.)

1. A machine for vending articles having, in combination, a movable member adapted to receive a coin and mechanism rendered operable by one of said articles and said coin to operate said movable member to deposit said coin within said machine when the coin is of predetermined dimensions and to eject the coin from the machine when not of predetermined dimensions.

1,539,467. SANITARY CUSPIDOR. JOSEPH T. H. CLOUTIER, Waterville, Me. Filed Aug. 14, 1924. Serial No. 732,013. 1 Claim. (Cl. 42—69.)

A cuspidor comprising a receptacle provided at its lower end with a hinged door and having guides at its upper end, a door slidably mounted in the guide and having edge portions disposed beyond the side edges of the receptacle, a rack carried at one edge portion of the slidably door, gear wheels operatively connecting said rack with the hinged door, and a spring pressed pin carried by the receptacle and engageable with the opposite edge portion of the slidable door.

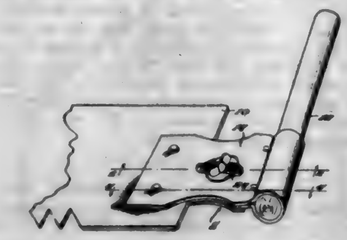
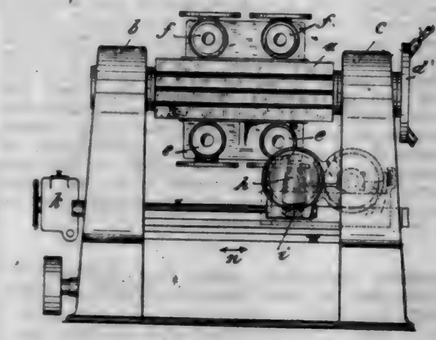
1,539,468. PENCIL. WILLIAM E. COOK and MARCUS MICKELSEN, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Aug. 8, 1922. Serial No. 580,501. 14 Claims. (Cl. 120—18.)



1. A pencil comprising an outer casing, an intermediate tubular member, means for detachably securing said tubular member within said casing, an inner tubular member rotatably mounted within the upper portion of said intermediate member, a helical spring secured to the lower end of said tubular member and extending within the lower portion of said intermediate member, a plunger extending axially within said intermediate member and having an offset portion which is slidable in a slot in said intermediate member and which exteriorly engages a convolution of said spring and interiorly engages convolutions at each side of said first mentioned convolution, and a lead-holding chuck secured to the lower end of said plunger.

1,539,469. TOY FLYING MACHINE. HENRY V. DEMPSTER, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed June 8, 1923. Serial No. 644,362. 5 Claims. (Cl. 46—40.)

1. A toy device comprising a hollow plane having a hollow closed fuselage of sheet material, a plane adjacent the forward end of said fuselage having its front and rear edges detachably inserted in the top of said fuselage, a pin secured in and projecting forwardly from the front of said fuselage, a freely revoluble helical blade journaled on said pin, a string passing through said plane in line with the longitudinal axis of said fuselage and retaining means on said string between said plane and fuselage, and a comparatively long rod to one end of which said string is attached.



1,539,470. DETACHABLE HANDLE FOR SAW BLADES. ROBERT L. DESKINS, Waverly, Ohio, and BENJAMIN F. DESKINS, Logan, W. Va. Filed May 23, 1924. Serial No. 715,389. 2 Claims. (Cl. 145—110.)

2. A saw handle comprising a stationary plate having one edge portion thereof bent into substantially cylindrical shape to form a handle-receiving socket and having lugs curled up from the outer edge of said portion, a clamping plate having slots formed therein to receive said lugs and thereby permit the clamping plate to assume an operative position with respect to the stationary plate, there being a longitudinal slot formed in the stationary plate, the walls of which are upstruck to provide oppositely disposed arched portions, a latch bolt carried by the clamping plate, and a nut engaging the threads on the latch bolt and bearing against the arched portions of the slot for clamping said plates in engagement with a saw blade.

1,539,471. MILLING MACHINE. FRITZ RICHARD DEGRING Munchen-Gladbach, Germany. Filed June 29, 1920. Serial No. 392,904. 2 Claims. (Cl. 90—58.)

1. In a milling machine, a work-holding revolver head, means for attaching a plurality of separate work pieces to said revolver head, a milling tool disposed below said revolver head, means for reciprocating said tool in required relation to said revolver head, and means for progressively bringing said work pieces into the path of said tool.

1,539,472. EDGE-INKING MACHINE. EDWARD S. DOTTER, Castle Creek, N. Y. Filed May 5, 1922. Serial No. 558,790. 4 Claims. (Cl. 12—31.)

1. An edge inking roll comprising an approximately circular body, an annular inking rim abutting against the body, a disk holding said rim in place, and a brush interposed between the disk and rim and projecting beyond the periphery of the rim, substantially as described.

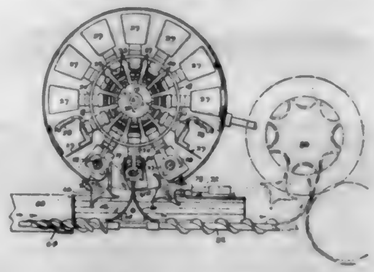
4. An edge inking roll comprising a body having a hub and a flange; an annular non-expansible felt rim directly mounted on such hub and abutting against the flange, said felt rim being of greater diameter than said flange; a removable metal disk on the hub for holding said felt body in place, the disk being of greater diameter than said body and the part of the disk projecting beyond the adjacent periphery of the felt rim serving as a guide to assist the operator in positioning the edge of the shoe against the felt rim, and means for attaching the disk to the body.

1,539,473. NAIL-DRIVING ATTACHMENT FOR AIR HAMMERS. THOMAS BENN ELLWOOD, Marshall, Tex. Filed Aug. 22, 1924. Serial No. 733,598. 7 Claims. (Cl. 1—46.)

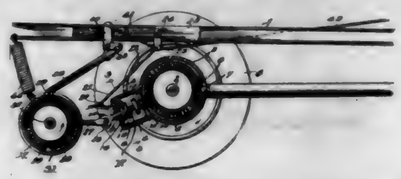
7. An attachment for a pneumatic hammer comprising a nail receiving hopper having an intermediate restricted nail passage opening into a bottom cylinder, said cylinder being open at its opposite ends, a tubular nail carrier slidably mounted in said cylinder, spring means for normally projecting the nail carrier to nail driving position, the extended portion of said carrier being provided with a nail shaped slot adapted to register with the aforesaid restricted passage, said slot being normally out of alignment with said passage and being moved into alignment with the passage against tension of said spring means, a rod extending from the hammer through one end of the cylinder and into said carrier and attaching arms carried by the last named end of the cylinder and extending therefrom and adapted to be connected to the hammer.

1,539,474. TOW ROD. ALBIN FALK, Duluth, Minn. Filed Mar. 8, 1924. Serial No. 697,722. 1 Claim. (Cl. 280—33.55.)



The combination with a vehicle towing rod including a member disposed transverse the forward axle of the vehicle being towed and engageable with the steering rod of said vehicle, of means for pivotally supporting said member directly beneath the axle of the vehicle, said means comprising a longitudinal central groove for engagement with the underside of the axle of the vehicle, and means at either end of the member for securely attaching it thereto.

1,539,475. CAN-DRAINING MACHINE. GEORGE D. GARDNER, San Jose, Calif. Filed Nov. 6, 1924. Serial No. 748,102. 18 Claims. (Cl. 226—22.)



1. A can draining machine comprising, can holders; means to advance cans to and from said can holders; and means to move said can holders on a substantially horizontal plane and to invert said can holders bottom end up during the period of the latter movement.

18. A can draining machine comprising, a base; a drive shaft rotatably mounted on said base; a bearing member secured to said drive shaft; a bearing frame rotatably mounted on said base; a pair of independent gear racks on said base concentric with said drive shaft; a pair of independent cam guides on said base concentric with said drive shaft; a plurality of hollow shafts rotatably journaled in said bearing frame; a bevel gear on each of said hollow shafts enmeshed with one of said gear racks; a cam on each of said hollow shafts engaging one of said cam guides; can holders mounted on said hollow shafts; a plurality of shafts journaled in said bearing member and in said hollow shafts; a bevel gear on each of said shafts enmeshed with the other of said gear racks; a cam on each of said shafts engaging the other of said cam guides; can clamps on said can holders movably related to said last mentioned shafts; and means to rotate said drive shaft to actuate each of said can clamps and to revolve each of said can holders into a plurality of positions during a single revolution of said drive shaft and to hold said can clamp and can holder locked in each of said plurality of positions during the single revolution of said drive shaft.

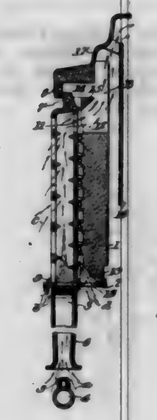
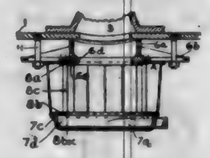
1,539,476. AUTOMOBILE ATTACHMENT. CHARLES P. GORMLY, Long Beach, Calif. Filed Apr. 22, 1924. Serial No. 708,294. 12 Claims. (Cl. 188—5.)



1. In an automobile, the combination of a rear axle housing, a secondary axle, a pair of wheels mounted on said axle and means for swinging the axle and the wheel from the rear axle housing whereby said wheels will cooperate when placed upon the ground with the wheels of the automobile for aiding in braking the same.

11. In an automobile, the combination of a running gear, means swingable from the running gear and adapted to engage the ground for resisting forward movement of the automobile in opposition to the action of the driving wheels.

1,539,477. GAS HEATER. JOHN H. GRAYSON, Athens, Ohio, assignor to The J. H. Grayson Manufacturing Company, Athens, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 11, 1924. Serial No. 698,552. 9 Claims. (Cl. 126—92.)



1. In a flueless heater of the glower type, a glower, a fire-brick having a passage through which hot gases pass from said glower before leaving the heater, and means for supplying secondary air to the hot gases as they leave said glower and in such quantity as to insure complete combustion.

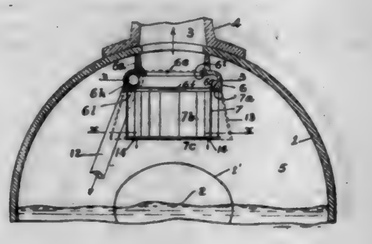
1,539,478. CENTRIFUGAL PROCESS AND APPARATUS. CHARLES GILBERT HAWLEY, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Centrifix Corporation, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 28, 1924. Serial No. 752,717. 4 Claims. (Cl. 183—85.)

1. The herein described centrifugal process that consists in setting up within a flowing stream of fluid a localized whirling action in a region coaxial with and in direct axial communication with, but substantially perpendicular to, the outlet passage toward which the fluid moves, progressively causing a reactive whirling movement away from said outlet, collecting the heavier substances and expelling them peripherally outward by centrifugal force, discharging them peripherally, and, finally permitting the inward reaction and escape of the purified fluid toward and along the extended axis of the outlet.



1,539,479. CENTRIFUGAL FIXTURE. CHARLES GILBERT HAWLEY, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Centrifix Corporation, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 28, 1924. Serial No. 752,718. 11 Claims. (Cl. 183—85.)

1. The process of purifying fluids that consists in setting the fluid into motion toward an outlet, causing and localizing the rapid rotation of the fluid adjacent said outlet and about the extended axis thereof, thereby separating the heavier substances centrifugally and withholding them from said axis, permitting a marked lateral expansion throughout the circumference of the whirling action immediately adjacent and in unobstructed centrifugal communication with said outlet and thereby laterally removing said substances from the fluid and from the margin of said outlet, and, completing the state of separation at a point immediately adjacent said outlet and so removed from the outlet, while permitting the purified fluid to depart through said outlet.

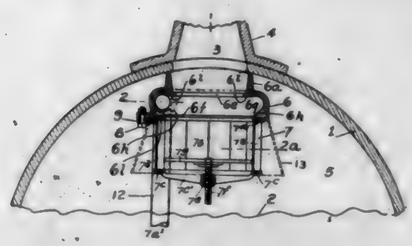
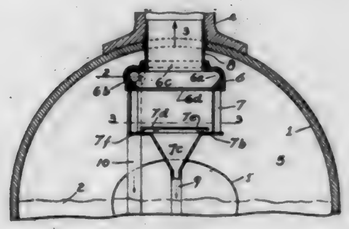
1,539,480. CENTRIFUGAL FIXTURE. CHARLES GILBERT HAWLEY, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Centrifix Corporation, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 28, 1924. Serial No. 752,719. 7 Claims. (Cl. 183—85.)



1. The process of purifying fluids that consists in setting the fluid into motion toward an outlet, causing and localizing the rapid rotation of the fluid adjacent said outlet and about the extended axis thereof, thereby collecting the heavier substances centrifugally and withholding them from said axis, permitting a quantity of said substances to discharge longitudinally in a direction opposite from said outlet, permitting a marked lateral expansion of the whirling action immediately adjacent said outlet and thereby laterally removing the remainder of the substances from the fluid and the region of said outlet, and, completing the state of separation of the last mentioned substances at a point laterally removed from said outlet while permitting the purified fluid to depart through said outlet.

1,539,481. CENTRIFUGAL FIXTURE. CHARLES GILBERT HAWLEY, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Centrifix Corporation, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 28, 1924. Serial No. 752,720. 13 Claims. (Cl. 183—86.)



1. The process of purifying fluids that consists in setting the fluid into motion toward an outlet, causing and localizing the rapid rotation of the fluid adjacent said outlet and about the extended axis thereof, thereby collecting the heavier substances centrifugally and withholding them from said axis, modifying as need be the axial extent of the rotation with relation to the volume of flow through said outlet, permitting a marked lateral expansion of the whirling action immediately adjacent said outlet and thereby laterally removing the collected substances from the region of said outlet, and, completing the state of separation of the said substances at a point laterally removed from said outlet, while permitting the purified fluid to depart through said outlet.

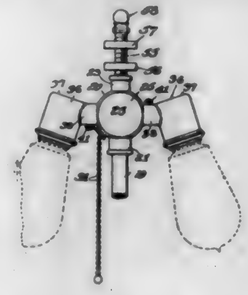
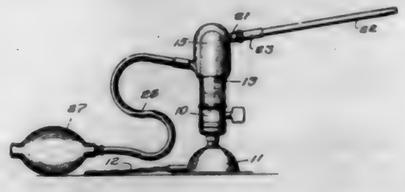
1,539,482. CENTRIFUGAL FIXTURE. CHARLES GILBERT HAWLEY, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Centrifix Corporation, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 28, 1924. Serial No. 752,721. 8 Claims. (Cl. 183—85.)



1. A centrifugal liquid purifying device comprising an annular race member having a peripheral discharge and a large central outlet, in combination with a multiply tuyered ring adapted to direct the fluid whirlingly into said race and toward said outlet, said ring having a bottom containing a cavity to receive impurities not elevated to said race.

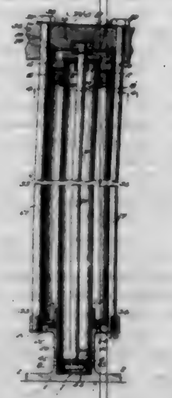
1,539,483. ENGRAVING MACHINE. ALBERT C. HERMANN, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to The National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio. Filed Dec. 10, 1921. Serial No. 521,443. 25 Claims. (Cl. 90—13.3.)



1. In a machine of the class described, the combination of a tracing pin carrying member adapted to slide both horizontally and vertically, a member having a rocking and laterally sliding motion to operate said tracing pin carrying member, and manipulative means for operating said rocking and sliding member.

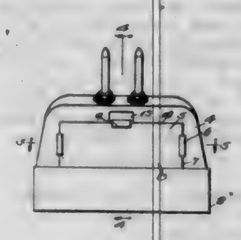
1,539,484. ELECTRIC-LAMP-SUPPORTING STRUCTURE. MAX HERSKOVITZ, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Peerless Light Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Jan. 21, 1922. Serial No. 530,824. 12 Claims. (Cl. 240—78.)

1. In an electric-socket-equipped structure, the combination of a hollow supporting member formed of sections, one of said sections presenting a boss containing a recess in its outer surface, and the other of said sections having a lug which extends into said recess and an electric-bulb-receiving socket rotatable on said boss and overlapping said lug.



1,539,485. VAPORIZING APPARATUS. CHARLES E. HODLICK, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Sharp & Smith, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed May 15, 1922. Serial No. 561,152. 2 Claims. (Cl. 128—192.)

1. A device of the character described consisting of a lower cylindrical single wall open portion of a size and shape to fit over the bulb of an electric light fixture and enclose the lower portion of the same, and a double wall portion extending vertically from said single wall portion, said double wall portion being adapted to completely enclose the upper portion of the bulb when the device is placed thereover, the space between said double walls providing a closed chamber to hold a substance to be vaporized.



1,539,486. AIR PUMP. MICHAEL B. HOLSTEIN, Richland, Pa. Filed June 11, 1924. Serial No. 719,331. 8 Claims. (Cl. 230—27.)

1. An air pump including a base, a high pressure stationary cylinder having its lower end connected to said base, a stationary piston closing the upper end of said cylinder, a sleeve slidably arranged on the periphery of said cylinder, a cup at the upper end of said sleeve, a low pressure cylinder having the lower portion of its periphery smooth and extending into said cup, a compressible washer arranged in the cup and engaging the lower end of the low pressure cylinder, an apertured plate arranged at the upper end of the low pressure cylinder and forming a cap for the latter, a handle arranged above the cap, and tie rods extending through the handle and in threaded connection at their lower ends with said cup.

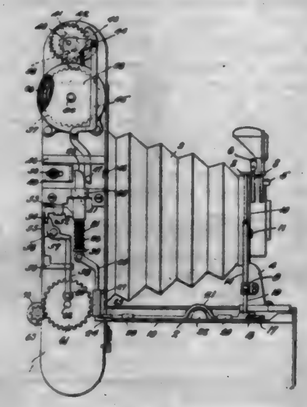
1,539,487. NAME-PLATE-HOLDING MEANS. HUGO HORNICK, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Haber Die and Stamping Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed May 21, 1924. Serial No. 714,811. 4 Claims. (Cl. 40—20.)

1. A sheet metal article to which a plate is to be attached, a pair of oppositely disposed struck up lugs for receiving the plate between them and beneath which the plate can be entered in one direction only, the article provided with a slot adapted to be positioned beneath the plate when set, a bendable strip arranged in the slot and having its ends, one within and one without the article, in contact with the inner and outer surfaces of the article, the plate adapted to be passed over the outer end of the strip while being positioned beneath the struck up lugs, and the outer end of the strip adapted to be bent around and over the adjacent edge of the plate for mutual interlockment in position.



1,539,488. EASEL. HELEN M. HOWELL, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Jan. 6, 1925. Serial No. 815. 2 Claims. (Cl. 45—129.)

1. An easel comprising, in combination, spaced parallel main legs, cross members superposed on said main legs adjacent the upper and the lower ends thereof to retain the same in fixed relation, spaced parallel brace legs pivotally connected to the said main legs adjacent the top thereof, the outer edges of said brace legs being adapted to fall between the inner edges of the main legs, a cross member superposed on the lower ends of said brace legs and being adapted to fall into the plane of and below the lower first-named cross member when the easel is folded, a brace, narrower than the distance between said brace legs, pivoted to said lower first-named cross member and having upwardly sliding connection with respect to the inner edges of said brace legs, and means on the upper end of said easel to hold the article to be supported thereon, lying between and in the thickness of said first-named cross members.

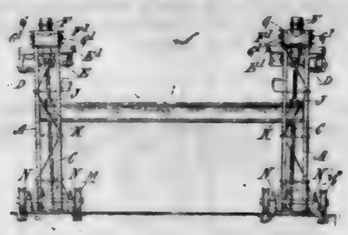
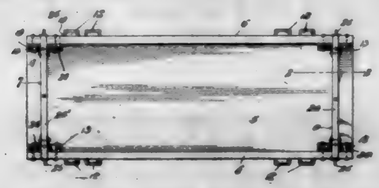
1,539,489. CAMERA ATTACHMENT. AUSKER E. HUGHES, RALPH K. NEWTON, and RUFUS T. NEWTON, Graham, Va. Filed Oct. 2, 1923. Serial No. 666,166. 4 Claims. (Cl. 242—71.)



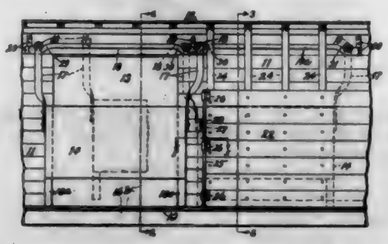
1. In a camera, a winding shaft, spring means for operating the winding shaft, an escapement controlling the rotation of the winding shaft responsive to the spring means, a plunger for co-operating with the escapement to hold the winding shaft against rotation, means under the control of an operator, for moving the plunger out of engagement with the escapement, spring means for moving the plunger into engagement with the escapement, a latch cooperating with the plunger to hold the plunger out of engagement with the escapement, a lever coacting with the latch to withdraw the latch, spring means for advancing the latch, a rotary member driven by the film proceeding to the winding shaft, and a pitman operated by the rotary member and constituting means for operating the lever to withdraw the latch.

1,539,490. MANUFACTURE OF ELECTRIC CABLES. PHILIP VASSAR HUNTER, London, England. Filed Dec. 13, 1922. Serial No. 606,714. 1 Claim. (Cl. 173—264.)



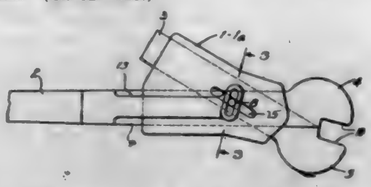
A method of impregnating the insulation of an electric cable in which after the impregnation process has proceeded for a sufficient time the core or conductor is cooled by means of a cooling medium, such for example as refrigerated brine passed through the interior of the cable.

1,539,491. LOCOMOTIVE HOIST AND THE LIKE. PHILIP DENIS IONIDES, Ipswich, England, assignor of one-half to Ransomes & Rapier Limited, Ipswich, England, a British Company. Filed Nov. 17, 1924. Serial No. 750,438. 14 Claims. (Cl. 104—32.)



5. In a locomotive hoist the combination of a pair of standards, a rotatable screw-threaded shaft suspended from the upper end of each standard, an independent driving for each shaft, a nut carried by each screwthreaded shaft, a transverse beam removably connected to each screwthreaded shaft and a seating near each end of the beam adapted so as to cooperate with the nut that the beam can rock relatively to the standards and relatively to each screwthreaded shaft.

1,539,492. FRONT AND REAR END GATE FOR WAGON BOXES. RALPH X. JEFFERIS, Millboro, S. Dak. Filed Jan. 22, 1923. Serial No. 614,079. 1 Claim. (Cl. 296—52.)



A wagon box end gate structure comprising plates adapted to be applied to the side boards of the body, said plates being of uniform design and configuration and each plate having a vertically disposed channel adapted to receive a cleat applied to the side boards, the edge of the channel extending the full vertical length of the plate, the plate being provided with a second channel the side edge of which is spaced from the first mentioned channel, the second mentioned channel extending from the upper edge of the plate to a point between the upper and lower edges thereof, the plate being provided at a point below the lower edge of the second mentioned channel with a slot, the second mentioned channel adapted to receive a cleat applied to the side board of the body, and an end gate composed of sections hingedly connected together, the upper section adapted to be received between the said channels and the lower section having upon its outer side cam levers, the cam portions of which are adapted to be swung into the slot of the plate whereby the sections of the end gate are held in vertical alignment between the side boards when the gate is in a closed position and the upper section of the end gate may be retained in a vertical position between the side boards of the body when the cam levers are disengaged from the slot and the lower section of the end gate may swing outwardly with relation to the bottom of the body.

1,539,493. GRAIN DOOR. CHARLES A. JOHNSON, Superior, Wis. Filed Apr. 26, 1923. Serial No. 634,770. 2 Claims. (Cl. 20—31.)

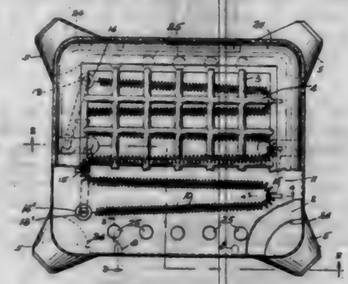
2. A grain car having a door opening and a horizontally slidable door for closing the opening, said door having in its lower edge a gap forming a starting outlet for the grain, and above said gap a cavity in the outer side of the door; a plate slidable up and down in the cavity for closing the gap to any desired extent, a leaf spring fixed on the door and pressing on the adjacent side of the plate to hold it frictionally in desired positions and arranged to also engage and hold it firmly in its fully closed position.

1,539,494. WRENCH. IRWIN P. KIMBALL, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Oct. 29, 1923. Serial No. 671,448. 1 Claim. (Cl. 81—128.)

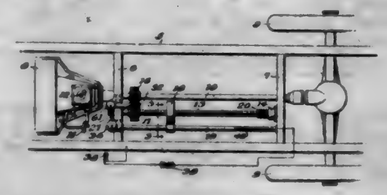
In an open-end wrench, two bars arranged at an angle to each other, jaws on one end of said bars respectively, a sleeve through which said bars extend, there being a slot in said sleeve extending parallel to the axis of one of said bars, an arm on the outer bar having a slot extending transversely thereof at a slight angle, and a pin secured in the other bar and extending through said slots.

1,539,495. STEERING-WHEEL LOCK. ALVAN R. LAMBERT, Anderson, Ind. Filed July 8, 1921. Serial No. 483,190. 1 Claim. (Cl. 70—129.)

The combination with a steering-shaft having a threaded projection on its upper end and a hand-wheel loosely mounted thereon, the hand-wheel and steering-shaft being provided with registering keyways, of a lock-casing secured on said threaded projection, a lock-barrel containing key-operated mechanism mounted in said lock-casing, said key-operated mechanism having a gear-wheel secured thereto in alinement with said steering-shaft, and a lock-bar mounted also in said lock-casing and guided therein for vertical movement and provided at one end with teeth to engage said gear-wheel and having its other end constructed to form a bolt adapted to enter said registering key-ways to lock the steering-wheel to the steering-shaft.



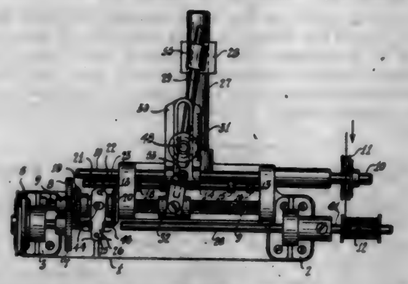
1,539,496. CONSTRUCTION BOLT. EDWIN R. LINEHAN, River Falls, Wis. Filed Mar. 3, 1924. Serial No. 696,550. 2 Claims. (Cl. 85—7.)



1. A headed construction bolt having spaced from its head a diametrical, slotted aperture, and a flat wedge shaped key adapted to be inserted in the aperture for the purposes set forth, and means secured on the key and adjustably engaging one side of the bolt to prevent accidental retraction of said key from the aperture.

1,539,497. ELECTRICAL HEATING DEVICE. ANTONIO LONGORIA, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The W. B. McAllister Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 27, 1922. Serial No. 547,022. 18 Claims. (Cl. 219—37.)

1. In a device of the character described, the combination of a frame member provided with a perforated supporting surface, a depending flange along the sides of said surface and a plurality of legs depending from such flange, a bottom plate engaging within and between such flanges on said frame member, and a heating element mounted between said frame member and said plate, said bottom plate being provided with openings adjacent each of said legs on said frame member, whereby air may pass upwardly along said legs to said heating element.

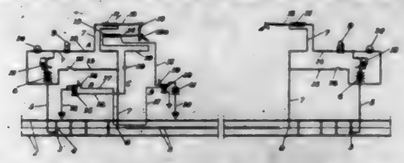


1,539,498. AUTOMOBILE LOCK. JOHN S. MERENNA, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor of thirty-five one-hundredths to Abraham Spinner, Brooklyn, N. Y., and fifteen one-hundredths to Herbert B. Moses, Washington, D. C. Filed Feb. 20, 1923. Serial No. 620,258. 42 Claims. (Cl. 188—31.)

1. In an automobile locking mechanism, the combination with a driven wheel, of a power-operated mechanism for driving said wheel, and manually controlled means operable from the driver's seat for effecting the locking of said power-operated driving mechanism against further movement upon the completion of a predetermined number of revolutions of said driven wheel, said manually-controlled means including a locking member carried by a counter shaft mounted in parallel relation with said power-operated mechanism.

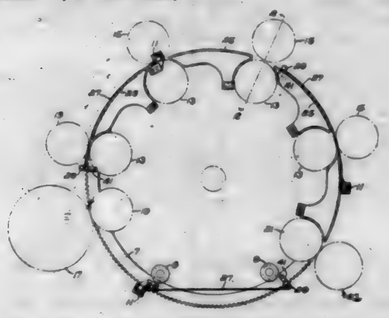
41. In combination, a vehicle, and reciprocating means to lock said vehicle against movement after a predetermined distance has been travelled by the vehicle, means to cause said reciprocating means to effect locking of wheels on both sides of said vehicle after moving a given distance in one direction, and means to cause said locking means to effect locking thereof after moving a given distance in the other direction.

1,539,499. COIL-WINDING MACHINE. THOMAS E. MOLDON, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. Filed July 11, 1923. Serial No. 650,965. 2 Claims. (Cl. 242—9.)



1. A coil winding mechanism comprising, a bobbin, means for rotating said bobbin, a filament guiding means adapted to be moved laterally with respect to said bobbin, a screw for moving said filament guiding means, a rod adapted to be rotated about an adjustable supporting pivot by means of said screw, and means for articulating said guiding means with said rod at selected points along the longitudinal axis thereof to increase or decrease the pitch of the winding.

1,539,500. AUTOMATIC ELECTRIC BRAKE SET. PETER W. MOSHER, Stockton, Calif. Filed Oct. 17, 1924. Serial No. 744,175. 7 Claims. (Cl. 246—68.)



4. An automatic brake setting system for railway vehicles comprising normally open circuit means on separated vehicles, brake actuating means arranged in the circuits and operating when the circuits are closed, means causing said circuits to be automatically closed when the vehicles approach to within a predetermined distance of each other, auxiliary brake actuating means mounted on one vehicle and operating automatically if the main circuit on said vehicle is internally broken, and circuit means closed only upon the operation of the auxiliary means and functioning in connection with the first named means for causing the main circuit on the other vehicle to be closed irrespective of the break in the main circuit of the one vehicle.

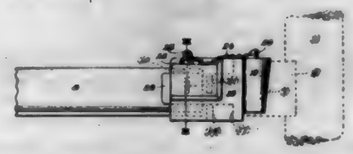
1,539,501. SHEET CONTROL FOR PRINTING PRESSES AND THE LIKE. JOHN P. E. NEILSON, Quincy, Mass., assignor to Meisel Press Manufacturing Company, Boston, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Mar. 4, 1922. Serial No. 541,206. 20 Claims. (Cl. 101—183.)



1. In a device of the class described, a sheet support, means for drawing a sheet forward over said support by engagement with the leading edge thereof and yieldable means extending rearwardly over the sheet from said drawing means and adapted to be displaced by the support thereby to smooth the sheet over the support.

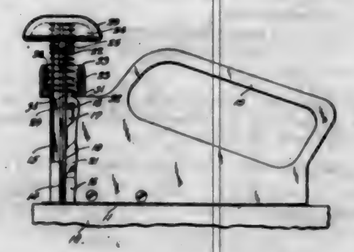
1,539,502. SUGAR MILL OR CANE CRUSHER. ROBERTO T. E. OKRASSA, Antigua, Guatemala. Filed May 3, 1923. Serial No. 636,486. 4 Claims. (Cl. 100—47.)

1. A crusher for cane mills, comprising three crushing rollers arranged in a triangle, a pair of levers connected with each of the two lower rollers, means including a flexible member and weight acting thereon co-acting with said levers and rollers for automatically causing the levers to swing the lower rollers toward and from each other, and means for guiding cane to said rollers.

1,539,503. BED-RAIL FASTENER. ENOCH D. PARRISH, Harrisonville, Mo. Filed May 8, 1924. Serial No. 711,804. 1 Claim. (Cl. 5—300.)

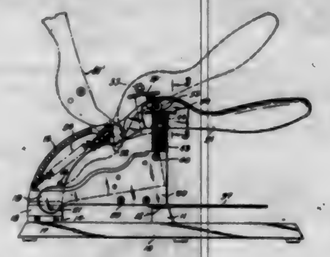
In a device of the type described, a post having a socketed fastener element carried thereby, a side rail, a head secured to said rail and having a longitudinally extending bore formed therein, longitudinally spaced holes extending from opposite sides thereof inwardly to said bore, and a vertically extending pocket formed in the outer face thereof extending in the direction of the said holes, a tapered plug received in the socket of said fastener element, a plate received in the vertical pocket and formed integrally with said plug, a stud received in said bore and having a pair of spaced wells entering the same from one face thereof, said stud being integral with said plate, said wells being positioned in axial alinement with either one or the other of said holes in the head when the stud is received within said bore, a removable pin receivable in the alined hole and well for retaining said stud in the bore of said head, and a section of chain connected to said tapered plug and removable pin for preventing the latter from becoming separated from the plug.

1,539,504. CONNECTION PLUG. FRANK E. PETRI, Peoria, Ill. Filed Feb. 4, 1924. Serial No. 690,488. 2 Claims. (Cl. 173—359.)



1. In an attachment plug the combination of an insulating handle portion, a reinforcing contact ring imbedded therein, a threaded sleeve portion provided with bayonet joint connecting means cooperating with the contact ring, a terminal carrying portion retained in place by the threaded sleeve portion, a contact band carried by the terminal contact portion cooperating with the contact ring of the insulated handle portion when the plug is attached to a socket.

1,539,505. STAPLING MACHINE. FRIDOLIN POLERR, Norwalk, Conn., assignor to The E. H. Hotchkiss Company, Norwalk, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed May 21, 1924. Serial No. 714,805. 1 Claim. (Cl. 1—2.3.)



In a stapling machine, a housing, a plunger for driving the individual staples slidably mounted in said housing, a concavo-convex cap for direct manual operation secured to the upper end of the plunger for operating said plunger, a spring embracing the plunger and tending to move it to its upper position, and an independent cup shaped member having an opening in its bottom wall for passage of the plunger and tubular side walls to embrace said spring, the lower end of said cup being arranged to engage the housing and the upper end arranged to engage the under side of the cap at a substantial distance from its center to limit the movement of the plunger and support the cap to prevent breaking of the connection between the cap and plunger.

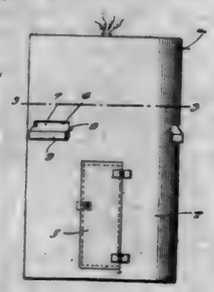
1,539,506. STAPLING MACHINE. FRIDOLIN POLERR, Norwalk, Conn., assignor to The E. H. Hotchkiss Company, Norwalk, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Sept. 25, 1924. Serial No. 739,782. 7 Claims. (Cl. 1—2.3.)

1. In a stapling machine, a base, an anvil mounted on the base, a pivoted housing, a plunger mounted in the housing and adapted to coact with said anvil to set the staples, a pivoted lever, a connection between the lever and said plunger for operating the latter, and a connection between the lever and housing for lifting the latter to permit insertion of articles to be connected between the housing and anvil, said lever being movable to an ineffective position to permit direct operation of the plunger.

1,539,507. METHOD OF MAKING SHOES. ADAM H. PERNERT, Halifax, Pa. Filed Oct. 16, 1923. Serial No. 668,877. 3 Claims. (Cl. 92—142.)

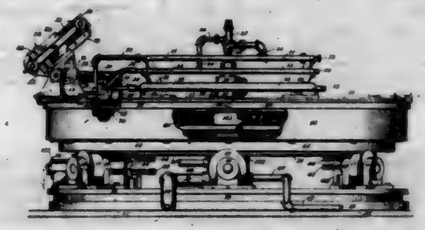


2. The method of making shoes which comprises the steps of cutting an insole to produce an outstanding flange around the entire sole excepting the heel seat, molding the insole to crease it on a line in continuation of the edge of the heel seat and produce an upstanding flange, channelling the insole substantially coextensively with the upstanding flange, applying an upper structure, temporarily fastening a portion of said structure to the front of the flange and lasting the rear portion thereof over the heel seat in back of the flange and said channel, applying a welt strip outside of the shoe substantially coextensive with the flange, running an inseam through the channel beneath the crease through the upper structure and said welt strip to permanently secure all together, trimming off the surplus material above the inseam including said temporary fastening means, applying an outsole and fastening said outsole to the welt strip by means of an outseam.

1,539,508. BELT BUCKLE. ADOLPH H. RISTEEL, Attleboro, Mass., assignor to Morse Andrews Company, Attleboro, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed July 1, 1924. Serial No. 723,537. 8 Claims. (Cl. 24—191.)

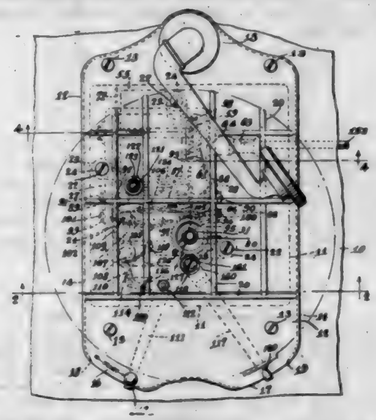
8. A buckle comprising a body portion, a clamping member formed of a channel bar, filler plates having gripping edge portions, said plates being located between the walls of said bar and formed integral therewith, and a bail member pivoted in said clamp.

1,539,509. GUARDHOUSE. WILLIAM RING, Detroit, Mich. Filed Jan. 3, 1925. Serial No. 410. 2 Claims. (Cl. 89—36.)



1. A guard house comprising a substantially cylindrical tower of bullet proof material, and closed at its respective ends, a door in the wall of the tower whereby access to the interior thereof may be had, said tower having a plurality of port holes formed in the wall thereof at spaced intervals, and a closure for each port hole, the same comprising a plate, the intermediate portion thereof being disposed within the port hole, the ends of the intermediate portion of the plate being disposed in notches formed in the respective ends of the port hole to facilitate the swinging movement of the plate the outer portions of each plate being disposed downwardly on the outside of the wall of the tower, the inner portion of each plate being disposed upwardly adjacent the inner wall of the tower.

1,539,510. APPARATUS FOR MOLDING ARTICLES. THEODORE C. ROBERTS, New York, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Columbia Phonograph Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 27, 1920. Serial No. 406,450. 29 Claims. (Cl. 18—5.6.)



1. A multiple pressing machine, comprising a conveyor and including cooperating platens adapted to have relative automatic movement between them to expose both faces in the open position of the press carrying a plurality of identical tilting-head pressing units in which the record material is treated in its various stages simultaneously.

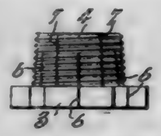
4. In an apparatus for making pressed articles, means for controlling the flow of heating and cooling media to each pressing unit, comprising a cam rail having a plurality of elevations, a cam rod roller, a cam rod which is arranged to move vertically in bearings attached to the revolving conveyor, said vertical movement of the cam rod actuating mechanism which opens and closes said valves for the admission and discharge of the heating and cooling media.

1,539,511. SPRING MOTOR. THEODORE C. ROBERTS, New York, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Columbia Phonograph Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 5, 1921. Serial No. 467,113. 59 Claims. (Cl. 185—37.)

1. The combination in a motor, of a frame having a base and projecting side portions, a horizontal spring shaft supported by the side portions, power spring means supported upon the spring shaft, a gear journaled upon the spring shaft adapted to be driven by the spring means, a vertical shaft journaled in the frame, a horizontal intermediate shaft journaled in the frame between the spring shaft and the vertical shaft, the gear on the intermediate shaft meshing with the spring-driven gear, worm gears between the intermediate shaft and the vertical shaft, and a governor geared to the vertical shaft.

1,539,512. METALLIZED ROOFING MATERIAL. THOMAS ROBINSON, New York, N. Y., assignor to Anaconda Sales Company, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 11, 1922. Serial No. 606,339. 4 Claims. (Cl. 91—68.)



1. A roofing material comprising a non-metallic composition base having a coating of finely divided metallic particles bound to the surface of the base by a binding medium having a cellulose base.

4. A method of preparing roofing material which comprises applying a coating of a binding vehicle of the cellulose ester type to the surface of a non-metallic composition base, and spraying metallic particles over the surface coated with the adhesive to form a substantially continuous layer of metal.

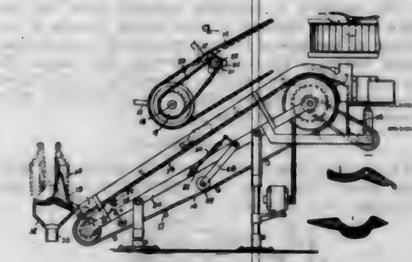
1,539,513. LOCK NUT. WALTER T. ROSS, Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. Filed Mar. 25, 1924. Serial No. 701,794. 3 Claims. (Cl. 151—19.)

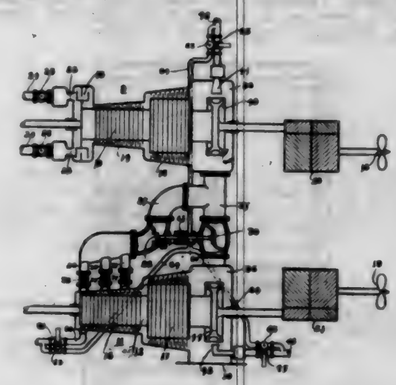
1. A nut lock, comprising a nut member threaded internally to fit the bolt and radially slit from each end to adjacent the other end, and means for compressing the several slit segments of the nut member on the thread of the bolt.

1,539,514. IGNITION TIMER FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. JOSEPH SACHS, Hartford, Conn. Filed Jan. 25, 1922. Serial No. 531,579. 1 Claim. (Cl. 200—24.)



An ignition timer comprising a casing, blades extending inwardly from the peripheral wall of the casing, said blades being insulated from the casing and having stems extending to the exterior of the casing, a sleeve adapted to be fitted upon an engine shaft, said sleeve having a projection from one side, yielding plates attached to the sides of said projection and embracing the sleeve and projecting substantially parallel outwardly from the sleeve on the side opposite to said projection, and a disk rotatably mounted on the inside of the free end of each yielding plate diametrically opposite to the point of attachment of the plate to the projection from the sleeve, said disks being pressed together axially and adapted to, when the sleeve is rotated in he case, wipe across both faces of said blades.

1,539,515. CONVEYER FOR GLASSWARE. ALEXANDER SAMUELSON, Terre Haute, Ind., assignor to Chapman J. Root, Terre Haute, Ind. Filed Apr. 7, 1924. Serial No. 704,703. 11 Claims. (Cl. 198—22.)



1. A conveyer construction for bottles after they have been formed and before they are cold having a movable conveyer belt, means thereon for catching the bottles and holding them with their axes extending longitudinally of the belt as they are conveyed thereby, and means for preventing a predetermined undesirable longitudinal holding of the bottles by the aforesaid means.

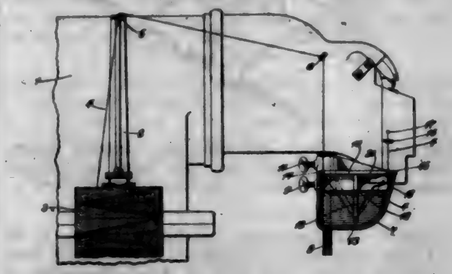
4. A conveyer for bottles after they have been formed and before they are cold having a movable conveyer belt, means thereon adapted to engage the bottles and hold them while they are being conveyed, and means for agitating the belt to intermittently separate the bottles from the belt surface.

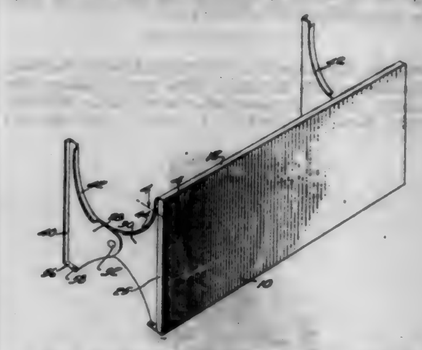
1,539,516. MARINE TURBINE. HENRY F. SCHMIDT, Swarthmore, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 7, 1921. Serial No. 450,239. 8 Claims. (Cl. 60—70.)



1. A turbine installation comprising a high-pressure turbine unit, a low-pressure turbine unit having blading at its high-pressure end progressively increasing in length and shorter than the low-pressure blading of the high-pressure unit, means for discharging motive fluid from the high-pressure unit to blading of the low-pressure unit of different lengths whereby operation at different speeds with equal division of power is secured.

1,539,517. PROCESS FOR TANNING. OTTO SCHMIDT, Ludwigshafen-on-the-Rhine, Germany, assignor to Badische Anilin- & Soda-Fabrik, Ludwigshafen-on-the-Rhine, Germany, a Corporation of Germany. Filed Aug. 27, 1921. Serial No. 495,955. 5 Claims. (Cl. 149—4.)

5. As a composition of matter a tanning preparation containing an organic sulfonic acid capable of tanning hides and of precipitating glue from its aqueous solution, and a condensation product derived from a carbonyl compound other than a carboxylic acid, and an unsulfonated phenolic body "in a water-soluble condition."

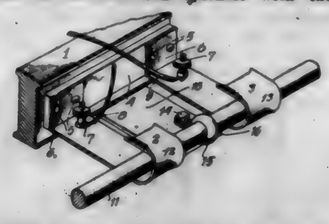


1,539,518. THREAD-WAXING DEVICE FOR SEWING MACHINES. JOHN SCHREIBER, St. Louis, Mo. Original application filed May 21, 1921, Serial No. 471,314, now Patent No. 1,440,556, dated Jan. 2, 1923. Divided and this application filed Dec. 11, 1922. Serial No. 606,082. 6 Claims. (Cl. 91—32.)

1. In a sewing machine, a wax receptacle, a cover for the receptacle, an arm in connection with said cover extending downwardly into the receptacle, a web rigid with the cover within the receptacle, and a spring within the receptacle for engaging and pressing the thread against said web to remove excess quantities of wax from the thread passing through the receptacle.

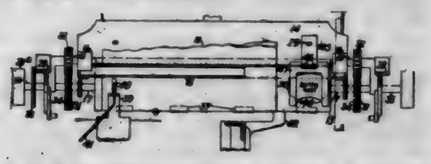
4. In a sewing machine, a wax receptacle, a cover for the wax receptacle, one of said parts being provided with an inlet opening for the thread and one of said parts being provided with an outlet opening for the thread, a guide in rigid connection with one of said parts for guiding the thread toward the bottom of the receptacle, a web in rigid connection with one of said parts between said guide and the outlet opening for the thread, and a spring attached to said web for scraping wax from the thread passing between said web and said spring.

1,539,519. FOLDING TIRE-DISPLAY HOLDER. EDWIN A. SHANK, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed May 1, 1924. Serial No. 710,228. 2 Claims. (Cl. 211—24.)



1. In a sheet metal tire holder, a marginally flanged panel, two tire supports, each made in two parts pivotally connected together and one of the parts of each of said tire supports having a folded pivotal connection with the panel at the end of the panel, whereby the supports may be folded flat on the panel and are ready for use directly upon being unfolded.

1,539,520. SPOTLIGHT SHIFT. CHARLES F. SHEAFFER, Oklahoma City, Okla. Filed Nov. 13, 1923. Serial No. 674,435. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—7.)



An attachment of the character described, embodying clips for attachment to the axle of a motor vehicle, a member for application to and movable with the steering mechanism of the car and operable with the latter and movable between said clips, and electrical connections between said clips and spot lights on the car, normally out of operative relation with said clips.

1,539,521. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. JESSE A. B. SMITH, Stamford, Conn., assignor to Underwood Typewriter Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 9, 1921. Serial No. 521,089. 5 Claims. (Cl. 197—135.)

1. In a front-strike typewriting machine, a revoluble platen, a platen-frame, and a one-piece card-holder consisting of a U-shaped member curved to conform to the periphery of said platen and being self-acting to hold a card firmly against the front face of said platen, said member being inverted and extending below the printing line on said platen and being secured to said platen-frame at one end thereof, to be wholly outside of the bounds of the typewriter frame when the platen is in a position corresponding to its limit of travel, to eliminate interference to movement accompanying an upward thrust of the card to printing position from a point below the printing line on said platen.

1,539,522. LUBRICATOR. W EARL SNYDER, Norwood, Ohio, assignor to The Edna Brass Mfg. Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Sept. 29, 1924. Serial No. 740,437. 8 Claims. (Cl. 184—51.)

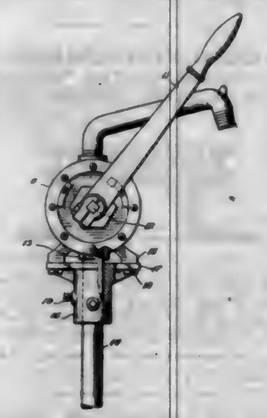
1,539,523. MAILING BOX. OSCAR T. SPRAGGINS, Memphis, Tenn. Filed June 21, 1922. Serial No. 570,029. 2 Claims. (Cl. 229—47.)

1. A paper box having a window opening in the top thereof, provided with a reversible address card in the rear of said opening, a foldable end, a flap extending therefrom adapted to pass beneath said top and above said reversible address card and a fastener extension adapted to be reversibly bent to engage a portion of said top marginal to said opening to seal said box and thereby secure said reversible card against removal.



1,539,524. PHONOGRAPH MACHINE. GASTON STROBINO, Paterson, N. J. Filed Oct. 22, 1921. Serial No. 509,656. 3 Claims. (Cl. 274—25.)

3. In a mounting for the horizontally swinging transmitter of a phonograph machine, the combination of opposite upper and lower spaced supporting members and, betweeen them, a horizontally swinging member, the swinging member having a pivoting engagement with one of the supporting members, and a pivot device arranged between the other supporting member and swinging member, one of the latter two members having a pivot-bearing for said device and the other a slot affording a pivot bearing for said device and confining said device against movement transversely thereof while allowing tilting of said device therein lengthwise of the slot.

1,539,525. PUMP-SUPPORTING BRACKET. HENRY M. SUNNES, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Force Pump Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Jan. 14, 1925. Serial No. 2,399. 2 Claims. (Cl. 103—218.)

1. The combination with a pump subjected to lateral strains, and a suction pipe connected to the pump, of a bracket secured to the pipe at a distance from the connection between pipe and pump, said bracket being supported by the pipe and secured to the pump so that strains applied to the pump will be conveyed to the pipe at a distance from the connection between pipe and pump.

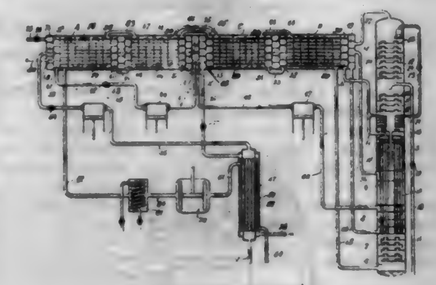
1,539,526. DOUBLE PLIERS. CHARLES R. SWICKARD, Columbus, Ohio. Filed Feb. 9, 1925. Serial No. 7,812. 2 Claims. (Cl. 294—30.)



1. An instrument of the kind described comprising two pairs of pincher members placed side by side on a pivoting member common to both pairs, said pivoting member adapted to prevent lateral oscillation of the pincher members relative to each other.

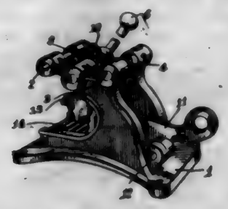
1,539,527. ELECTRIC GENERATOR. JAMES WALKER TORRANCE and JOHN MCKINNON TORRANCE, Failsworth, England. Filed June 13, 1921. Serial No. 477,163. 1 Claim. (Cl. 171—209.)

In a field magnet system for electric generators built up of a number of plates or stampings the combination with a magnetic coil of a set of plates of approximately rectangular shape with holes in the corners, a second set of plates of approximately rectangular shape with holes in the corners and a gap formed along one edge, the second set of plates alternating with the first set, a depending member projecting inwards from each of the plates of the first set, a set of coil carrying plates, a second set of coil carrying plates alternating with the first, means for clamping the two sets of coil carrying plates together, means for clamping the coil carrying plates to the frame plates, pole shoes formed on the ends of the coil carrying plates, end plates and bolts passing through the end plates and the holes in the approximately rectangular plates to clamp the latter to the end plates.

1,539,528. METHOD OF SEPARATING THE CONSTITUENTS OF GASEOUS MIXTURES. CLAUDE C. VAN NUYS, New York, N. Y., assignor to Air Reduction Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 9, 1920. Serial No. 409,196. 22 Claims. (Cl. 183—115.)

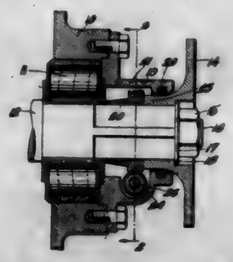
1. A method of separating the constituents of a gaseous mixture by liquefaction which comprises, compressing and cooling the mixture, subjecting it to selective liquefaction by indirect contact with colder products thereby producing a liquid containing the constituents and a residual gas, subjecting the liquid to rectification with vapors of preceding portions thereof, withdrawing and dividing the residual gas, liquefying non-selectively a regulated portion thereof and subjecting said vapors to final contact with the liquefied residual gas.

1,539,529. BRAKE ANCHOR. CLEVELAND J. WILKINSON, Ventura, Calif. Filed Dec. 12, 1922. Serial No. 606,554. 8 Claims. (Cl. 188—77.)



1. In a device of the character disclosed, the combination with a brake band, of an anchor plate, and means between the anchor plate and ends of the brake band for securing said brake band to the anchor plate; said means including a bearing member, a portion of which is serrated.

1,539,530. ANTISKID-CHAIN TOOL. DONALD C. WOODWORTH, Lewiston, Me. Filed Dec. 29, 1923. Serial No. 683,428. 5 Claims. (Cl. 81—15.)



1. In an antiskid chain tool a fixed member carrying an opening wedge, a swinging member carrying a pulling hook, an adjustable connection between the pivot of the swinging member and the fixed member, a lever pivoted to the fixed member and an actuating connection between the lever and the swinging member, all in combination with each other.

1,539,531. SPEEDOMETER-DRIVING MECHANISM. THOMAS DONALD ADAIR, Jr., Atlantic, Mass., assignor to Standard Thermometer Company, Portland, Me., a Corporation of Maine. Filed June 14, 1924. Serial No. 720,038. 6 Claims. (Cl. 74—7.)

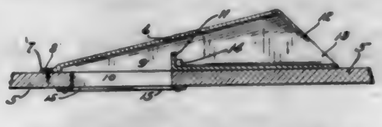
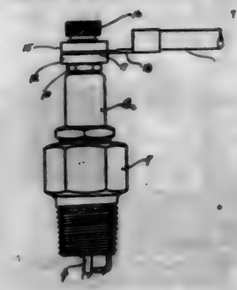
1,539,532. ENGINE-STARTING MECHANISM. WALTER ADRIAN, Wardsville, Mo. Filed Mar. 1, 1922. Serial No. 540,375. 10 Claims. (Cl. 185—41.)



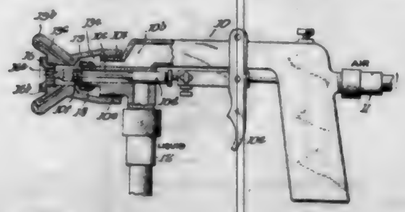
1. A starter for internal combustion engines, comprising, a shaft geared to the engine, a spring motor, gearing adapted to connect said motor with said shaft for driving the same, connections from said shaft to said motor for rewinding said motor, and means for simultaneously releasing said connections and engaging said gearing adapted to disengage said gearing and reestablish said connections to rewind said motor when the engine starts.

1,539,533. VAULT-LIGHT LENS FRAME AND HOLDER. EMANUEL J. ALFIERES, New York, N. Y. Filed Nov. 7, 1924. Serial No. 748,368. 5 Claims. (Cl. 94—29.)



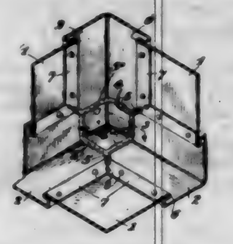
1. A vault light lens frame and holder, comprising a frame having a body portion provided with an internal shoulder, the said body portion having downwardly extending spaced legs, and a removable holder mat for the frame having means constructed to engage the lower ends of the said legs.

1,539,534. VEHICLE VENTILATOR. IVAN D. ANGELL, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed June 18, 1924. Serial No. 720,808. 3 Claims. (Cl. 98—22.)



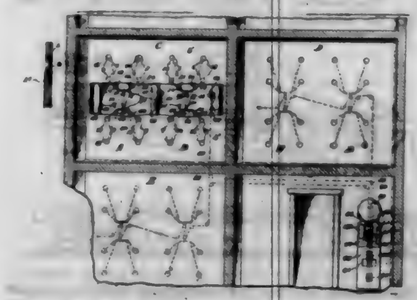
1. A ventilating device in the form of a shell that flares rearwardly in longitudinal section and terminates at its front end approximately in an edge, said shell at its rear end having a depending rearwardly inclined transverse baffle flange and below said baffle flange a transverse air passage, said shell having a closed bottom with a large air passage at its front end and at the rear of said passage a raised baffle flange.

1,539,535. SPARK INTENSIFIER. GILBERT BAKER, Detroit, Mich. Filed Oct. 17, 1924. Serial No. 744,127. 3 Claims. (Cl. 123—148.)



1. An intensifier of the class described comprising a non-conducting disk; a neck projecting outwardly from one face of said disk, and having a plurality of radially extending slots formed therein, said disk and neck having a centrally disposed opening formed therein, said slots communicating with the opening in said neck; and a non conducting washer adapted for mounting on said neck, said washer having an opening formed centrally therein for the reception of said neck.

1,539,536. SPRAY GUN. HOWARD G. BARTLING, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Peerless Pneumatic Systems, Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Nov. 24, 1922. Serial No. 603,057. 2 Claims. (Cl. 91—45.)

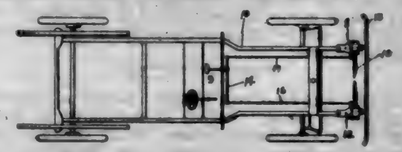


1. In combination in a spray gun, a cap having a main air passage duct and auxiliary flattening air ducts, and an easily removable nozzle member having an orifice therethrough and engageable with said cap, said orifice forming an outlet for said main air passage duct.

1,539,537. SAFE CORNER CONSTRUCTION. CHARLES J. BATES, Jr., Englewood, N. J., assignor to The Mosler Safe Company, Hamilton, Ohio, a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 7, 1924. Serial No. 684,729. 3 Claims. (Cl. 109—1.)

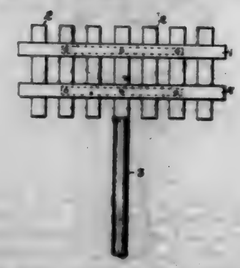
1. In safe construction, in combination, frame members having outwardly presented grooves along their edges, body plates seated in said grooves, and a separate corner piece welded to the ends of said frame members at a corner of the safe.

1,539,538. AUTOMATIC FIRE ALARM. JOHN T. BRADLEY, Blakely, Ga. Filed Oct. 15, 1923. Serial No. 668,787. 3 Claims. (Cl. 116—106.)



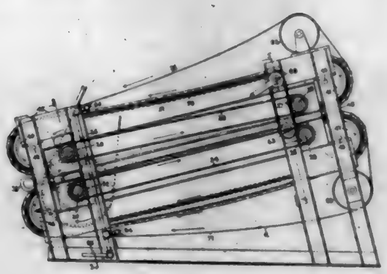
1. In a device of the character described, a plurality of discs of fusible material fitted in cavities formed in a support, fusible wires connecting said discs in pairs, a cord taking a staggered course relatively to said fusible wires, suspension bars provided with pulleys lying in loops of the fusible wires and connecting one set of said wires with another set, means for holding said cord under tension, means carried by said cord for setting off an alarm when tension is removed, and means carried by said cord for indicating location of ruptured members, as and for the purpose described.

1,539,539. WATER-TIGHT RECEPTACLE AND PLUG THEREFOR. REUBEN B. BENJAMIN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Benjamin Electric Manufacturing Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Aug. 7, 1918. Serial No. 248,684. 5 Claims. (Cl. 173—361.)



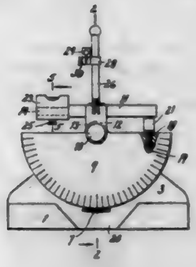
1. An electrical connecting device comprising a housing provided with means for securing it to a main support, an insulating base member disposed in said housing, binding-terminals carried by said base member, an insulating block carried by said base member and extending beyond the forward edge of the housing, a center contact carried by said block, and an outer conducting shell carried by said block and having its rearward edge flanged inwardly and confined between said block and said base member.

1,539,540. FENDER FOR VEHICLES. ROBERT S. BLAIR, Sound Beach, Conn. Filed Feb. 18, 1921. Serial No. 446,163. 19 Claims. (Cl. 293—37.)



1. A fender for vehicles comprising a plurality of members swiveled about a common axis adapted to assume a retracted position one over the other and to swing about said axis to and extended position before the wheels of the vehicle.

1,539,541. GRADE-CROSSING SIGNAL. WALTER G. BURNS, Fort Wayne, Ind. Filed Sept. 14, 1923. Serial No. 662,668. 5 Claims. (Cl. 40—145.)

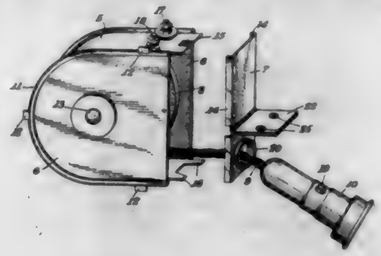


2. A signal for grade crossings comprising a configuration constructed of flat-faced bars simulative of a fragmentary section of a structure of railway rails and ties, and a mount therefor including a post and means for holding the configuration in a vertical plane aside from the post.

1,539,542. METHOD AND APPARATUS FOR PRODUCING FIBROUS BOARD. HENRY CARMICHAEL, Malden, Mass., assignor of fourteen and four-tenths per cent to Irving Hollander, Winthrop, Mass., five and four-tenths per cent to J. W. Nourbourn, one and eight-tenths per cent to Harry W. Cobb, both of Boston, Mass., and sixty-four per cent to The Upson Company, Lockport, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 15, 1921. Serial No. 515,257. 7 Claims. (Cl. 92—39.)

1. A method of making fiber board of considerable thickness comprising mixing paper fiber with an excess of water so that the individual fibers interlock with one another in all directions, forcing the water and fiber under great pressure into a forming chamber and conveying it through said chamber with progressively increasing mechanical pressure while permitting the water to escape until the desired thickness of board is attained, the mechanical pressure being laterally applied and the material being compressed thereby while confined against escape or displacement by the formed board at one end and the force feed pressure of the water and fiber at the other.

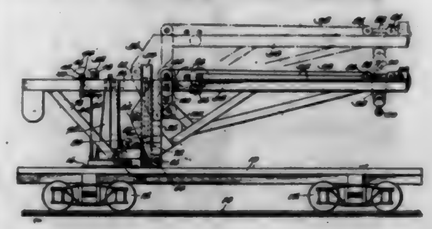
1,539,543. PROTRACTOR LEVEL. ROBERT A. CECCHINI, Springfield, Mass., assignor of one-fourth to George R. Cronin, Springfield, Mass. Filed Oct. 25, 1922. Serial No. 596,848. 9 Claims. (Cl. 33—213.)



1. The combination, in an instrument of the class described, with a supporting member, of a protractor having a straight edge, said supporting member and protractor being provided with cooperating scale elements, means pivotally to connect said protractor with said supporting member, and to lock said protractor to and release it from said supporting member, a beam superimposed on said protractor, means between said protractor and said beam at one terminal thereof, to retain said beam in parallel relation with said straight edge, and a spirit level carried by said beam.

1,539,544. TIME-ADJUSTMENT CONSTRUCTION. CHARLES M. CROOK and ALBERT E. LONG, Chicago, Ill., assignors to Stromberg Electric Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Feb. 5, 1923. Serial No. 616,914. 12 Claims. (Cl. 161—1.)

1. A time-adjustment construction comprising a rotatable actuating-member, a member actuated thereby, and adjusting means for changing the time relation between said members, comprising a member mounted for movement on said rotatable member longitudinal of its axis.



1,539,545. CIGAR LIGHTER AND THE LIKE. CHARLES H. CUNO, Meriden, Conn., assignor to The Cuno Engineering Corporation, Meriden, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed July 29, 1924. Serial No. 728,837. 10 Claims. (Cl. 219—32.)

1. A construction of the character described comprising a reel casing having a face plate with an opening at one end for the cigar lighter or the like and provided with a projecting flange or shelf adapted to be secured to the under edge of the instrument board of an automobile

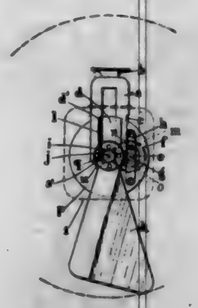
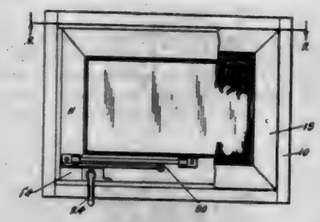
1,539,546. PILLAR CRANE. JOHN M. DEBNIE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Whiting Corporation, Harvey, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Aug. 3, 1923. Serial No. 655,482. 1 Claim. (Cl. 212—57.)

In mechanism of the class described, a base, a pillar rising from said base, a frame rotatably mounted on said pillar, a crane bracket, a pair of beams affixed to said bracket providing a trackway located entirely to one side of said pillar and upon which the crane bracket is mounted for vertical movement, and means between said beams and also between said pillar and said crane bracket for effecting vertical movement of the latter along said trackway.



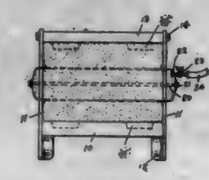
1,539,547. GAME. SIDNEY DIAMANT, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 30, 1925. Serial No. 5,695. 10 Claims. (Cl. 273—122.)

1. A game of the character described comprising a plate having a plurality of obstructions projecting from one side thereof and a runway at one edge of said plate, a basket mounted on the plate beneath said obstructions and open at its upper end, a horizontally inclined runway on the plate below said basket to receive the projectile and return the same to said first named runway, and means for impelling a projectile through said first named runway and upon the part of the plate having said obstructions thereon.



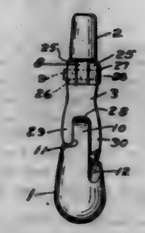
2. A game of the character described comprising a plate having a runway at one edge thereof, a basket horizontally movable upon one side of said plate, means for shifting said basket, and means for impelling a projectile through said runway and directing the same over the surface of said plate to descend by gravity thereon towards said basket.

1,539,548. MECHANICAL HAND FAN. SIMON DICK, Paris, France. Filed Oct. 31, 1913. Serial No. 798,444. 9 Claims. (Cl. 230—33.)



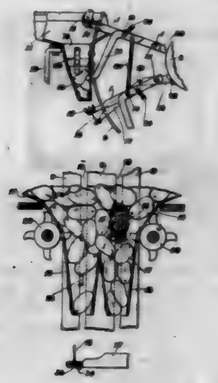
1. In a fan, the combination of a fan shaft, a pinion thereon, a reciprocating plunger, a rack on said plunger, a spring applied to said plunger for maintaining the same normally extended, gearing in train with the rack on said plunger and the pition on said fan shaft, a casing which encloses said gearing provided with holes through which said plunger and fan shaft project, a fan secured to rotate with said fan shaft, the blades of which are pivotally movable relatively to each other to provide for folding and extending said fan blades, means for maintaining said fan blades yieldingly in folded and extended positions.

1,539,549. CONTROLLER FOR CASEMENT WINDOWS. EDWARD H. ELLISON, Jamestown, N. Y. Filed June 26, 1924. Serial No. 722,477. 3 Claims. (Cl. 268—14.)



1. A controller for a casement window consisting of a slotted bar mounted upon the window, an arm in sliding engagement with said bar, a gear mechanism for actuating said arm, said mechanism comprising a segment gear and a worm meshing with said gear and means for rotating said worm, and means for yieldingly holding said arm in engagement with said bar and said worm in engagement with said gear.

1,539,550. PNEUMATIC MOLDING MACHINE FOR CONCRETE BLOCKS. HARVEY L. EMERY, Vincennes, Ind. Filed July 28, 1923. Serial No. 653,253. 2 Claims. (Cl. 25—128.)



1. A device of the character described for forming plastic material comprising a form having stationary walls, a tubular rubber core having reenforced ends, and means for connecting said ends together and spacing them apart, whereby said core may be inserted in proper position within said form and inflated therein for exerting an outward pressure against the material contained therein.

1,539,551. HOOK. JORGEN N. ERLANDSEN, Everett, Wash. Filed May 5, 1924. Serial No. 711,083. 3 Claims. (Cl. 24—241.)

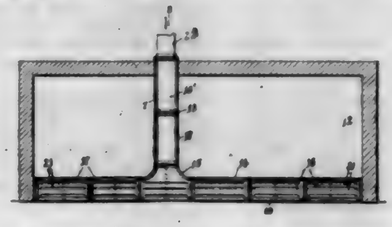
1. In a hook, a latch pivotally attached to the side of its eye, a tongue projecting from the point, and a spring pin for holding the latch into engagement with the tongue, said latch having a slot in its outer end that slides over the tongue.

1,539,552. POTATO-PLANTING MACHINE. CHARLES FARMER, Romsley, near Halesowen, England. Filed Oct. 3, 1924. Serial No. 741,339. 7 Claims. (Cl. 221—127.)

1. A potato planting machine, comprising a hopper having its lower portion extended into a plurality of depending hollow conical portions open at their lower ends and at one side, and a plurality of relatively-staggered sets of potato removing devices rotatable about a common axis, the potato removing devices of each set being adapted to enter the open lower end of the respective depending portion and to move substantially vertically upward within the latter substantially along the vertical axis of the depending portions into the upper portion of the hopper so as to agitate the potatoes within the latter and above the adjacent depending portion, the depending portions each serving to hold the potatoes above and in the direct line of travel of the respective removing device.

1,549,553. INTERNALLY-LUBRICATED LEAF SPRING. ROBERT BERKELEY FEAR, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Oct. 6, 1922. Serial No. 592,773. 1 Claim. (Cl. 267—50.)

A spring, comprising, a plurality of stacked leaf members each of which has a lubricant passage along one face thereof and an aperture communicating and registering with the passage of the next adjacent leaf member; a source of lubricant supply connected with said passages; a lubricant retaining means interposed between said passage and the sides of said spring; means to draw off excess lubricant from said passages; and means for holding said stacked leaf members together.



1,539,554. BAG. ABRAHAM C. FISHER, New York, N. Y. Filed May 11, 1922. Serial No. 560,035. 3 Claims. (Cl. 150—46.)

1. A combination bag and vanity case, comprising a body having a base portion larger than the upper portion, a frame T-shaped in cross section hinged to the upper part of said body, an outer cover hinged to the body at the same point as said frame, a lid supported by said frame and provided on its inner side with means for holding devices suitable for general uses, and means on the other side of said lid for holding the devices suitable for use as a vanity case, the outer cover being operable independently of the inner lid, both the upper part of the body of the bag and the margin and the outer cover being held within said frame when the outer cover is closed.

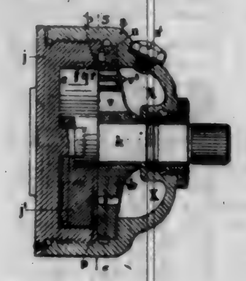
1,539,555. BUILT-IN DUCT FOR BAKERIES' PROOF BOXES. WALTER L. FLEISHER, New York, N. Y. Filed Nov. 20, 1924. Serial No. 751,102. 5 Claims. (Cl. 107—7.)

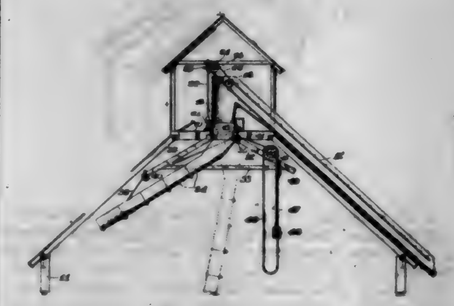


1. In combination with a proof box for bakeries of a sectional air duct having removable air distributing cover plates presenting apertures of different sizes for delivering air at substantially constant volumes along the duct.

1,539,556. PUMP. JESSE B. GARBER, Salem, Ohio, assignor to The Deming Company, Salem, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed July 13, 1922. Serial No. 574,648. 8 Claims. (Cl. 103—178.)

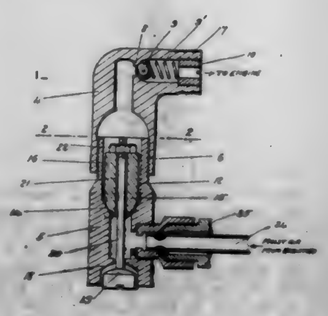
1. A pump comprising, in combination, a hollow cylinder having the ends thereof internally threaded, a casing surrounding the cylinder and of substantially the same length as the cylinder and having openings in the ends thereof into which the cylinder extends, closure members in threaded engagement with the cylinder at each end thereof, each of said members functioning to connect the cylinder to the casing, there being an opening through the wall of the cylinder into the casing whereby the latter may act as a reservoir, a piston within the cylinder, a piston rod extending through one of said closure members, and a stuffing box surrounding said rod and associated with the last mentioned closure member outside of the casing.

1,539,557. OSCILLATION-DEADENING DEVICE. LOUIS ALEXANDRE GIRARD, Paris, France. Filed Apr. 27, 1921. Serial No. 464,965. 14 Claims. (Cl. 188—89.)



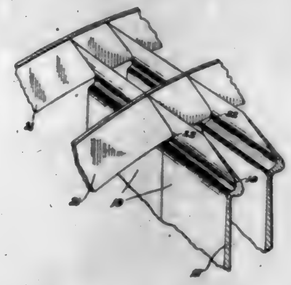
1. In an oscillatory shock absorber, a chamber filled with liquids, a movable partition dividing said chamber into two compartments of variable volume, ports covered and uncovered by said movable partition, a constant volume compartment into which said ports empty, a stationary partition, and valves arranged in the stationary partition for separating the constant volume compartment from each variable volume compartment.

1,539,558. ATHLETIC PROTECTIVE GARMENT. HUGO GOLDSMITH, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to The P. Goldsmith Sons Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 27, 1922. Serial No. 547,136. 2 Claims. (Cl. 2—3.)



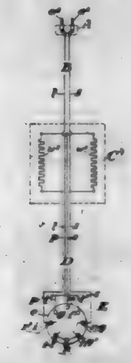
1. A protective athletic helmet, comprising a leather casing for fitting over the wearer's head, and provided with means for detachably securing the same on the head, a felt lining contacting with the interior of the casing, and a resilient rubber ring of smaller diameter than the wearer's head, and located upon the inside of the lining at the top of the helmet, and for contacting with the top of the wearer's head, and for yieldingly spacing the lining from the wearer's head whereby to normally provide a ventilating air space between the lining and the wearer's head and through which space the wearer's head may move for contacting the lining when a blow is directed upon the helmet.

1,539,559. ENSILAGE DISTRIBUTOR. FRANK HAMACHEK, Kewaunee, Wis., assignor to Frank Hamachek Machine Company, Kewaunee, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed Aug. 30, 1920. Serial No. 406,895. 14 Claims. (Cl. 198—72.)



1. In an ensilage distributor, an inclined elevating conveyor, a mouth receiving vines therefrom, and a rotating inclined open trough having a fixed angular deflecting portion at its upper part upon which the fibrous material is dropped from the conveyor and directed down the chute being pivotally mounted at the rear of the mouth, said chute forming an inclined rotating discharge spout in continuation of the passageway through the mouth for depositing the material in a circular path.

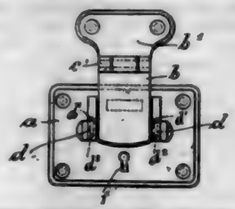
1,539,560. MOISTENING DEVICE. ALTON D. HARMON, Erie, Pa. Filed May 28, 1924. Serial No. 716,433. 4 Claims. (Cl. 128—25.)



1. A moistening device, comprising a casing provided at its upper part with an outlet adapted to be connected with an engine, a delivery valve normally closing the said outlet, said casing having also a drip valve seat at its lower part, a moist air valve seat above the drip valve seat, and an inlet for moist air between the valve seats; a moist air valve normally closing the moist air valve seat, and a normally open drip valve for closing the drip valve seat provided with a stem which projects loosely through a hole in the moist air valve.

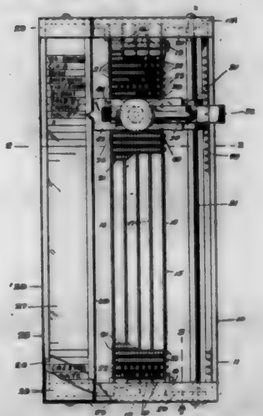
1,539,561. TURBINE BLADING. HERBERT T. HENN, Merion, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 21, 1922. Serial No. 555,903. 9 Claims. (Cl. 253—77.)

1. In a turbine, a row of blades having curved tips defining nozzle passages and flat lashing strips secured to the blades transversely of the passages and edgewise thereof.



1,539,562. ELECTRIC HEATER. HEINRICH HERRMANN, Berlin, Germany, assignor to Electricitäts-Gesellschaft "Sanitas" m. b. H., Berlin, Germany. Filed June 13, 1924. Serial No. 719,885. 2 Claims. (Cl. 219—19.)

1. An electric heater comprising a heating pad including two resistances, a duplex cable issuing from said pad and ending in a contact plug, a multiplex cable issuing from said pad and ending in a manifold switch, the wires of the cables being connected with the contacts of the switch and in part with the resistances in the pad in such a manner that in the different positions of the switch one resistance only may be circuited or both resistances may be circuited in parallel or in series, or both resistances may be cut out.



1,539,563. FASTENING FOR USE WITH ATTACHÉ AND SUIT CASES, HAND BAGS, AND THE LIKE. JACOB HINKEL, Offenbach-on-the-Main, Germany. Filed Jan. 4, 1923. Serial No. 610,687. 3 Claims. (Cl. 70—115.)

1. Hasp fastener comprising a hasp hinged to one of the parts to be connected, a spring tending to throw out said hasp, a keeper on said hasp, a casing secured to the other part, a bolt adapted to reciprocate in said casing and to engage said keeper, and two parallel operating strips connected with said bolt and extending in parallel to the lateral edges of said hasp at either side thereof and on the outside of said casing.

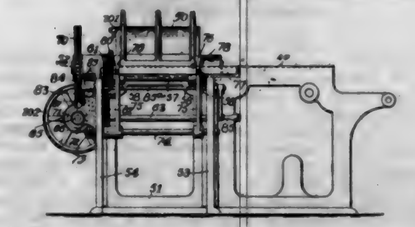
1,539,564. PRINTING DEVICE. MORRIS J. HOFFMAN, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 18, 1924. Serial No. 732,616. 10 Claims. (Cl. 101—102.)

1. In a printing device, the combination of a base, a multiplicity of type holders secured on said base, and each containing set type, and an impression making device movably mounted on said base and having a striking head arranged to be moved over the type contained in any of said type holders.



1,539,565. MOP HEAD. HARRY P. HOMERS, New Haven, Conn. Filed Dec. 26, 1924. Serial No. 758,167. 2 Claims. (Cl. 15—150.)

1. A mop-head, comprising a fixed jaw formed integral with a socket and provided with a gripping edge, a movable jaw pivotally connected with said socket and formed with a gripping edge complementary to the gripping edge of the fixed jaw, a post yieldingly mounted on the fixed jaw and extending through the movable jaw, a lever pivotally mounted on the movable jaw in a plane parallel therewith and formed with a cam-rib coacting with said post for crowding the two jaws together.

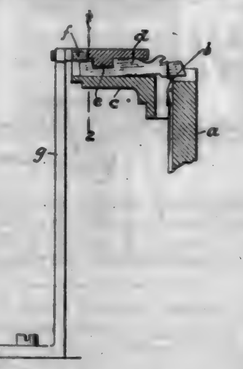
1,539,566. CURVED-STEREOTYPE-PLATE-FINISHING MACHINE. CHARLES E. HOPKINS, Plainfield, N. J.; The Plainfield Trust Company administrator of said Charles E. Hopkins, deceased. Original application filed Feb. 15, 1913, Serial No. 748,692. Divided and this application filed Sept. 9, 1918, Serial No. 253,301. Renewed Sept. 27, 1924. 3 Claims. (Cl. 29—21.)

1. In a curved stereotype plate finishing machine, the combination of a tool supporting shaft, a finishing arch axially aligned with said shaft, a shaving knife on said shaft, means for revolving the tool supporting shaft, a saw rotatable as a whole with said shaft for cutting off the tail of the plate, and a beveling tool located to follow in the path of the saw as the tool supporting shaft revolves.



1,539,567. MACHINE FOR FINISHING TUBULAR STEREOTYPE PLATES. CHARLES E. HOPKINS, Plainfield, N. J.; The Plainfield Trust Company administrator of said Charles E. Hopkins, deceased. Original application filed Oct. 2, 1913, Serial No. 792,995. Renewed Sept. 24, 1919, Serial No. 325,996. Divided and this application filed Dec. 11, 1919, Serial No. 344,199. Renewed Sept. 27, 1924. 8 Claims. (Cl. 29—21.)

1. In an apparatus for making tubular stereotype plates, the combination with a movable casting core, of a plate finishing cylinder for supporting a tubular stereotype plate, a finishing tool for boring the interior surface of said plate, edge finishing tools, and means started into operation by the motion of said core for operating said tools to engage and finish a plate supported in the finishing cylinder.

1,539,568. STITCH-FORMING MECHANISM FOR CIRCULAR-KNITTING MACHINES. HAROLD E. HOUSEMAN, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Standard-Trump Brothers Machine Company, Wilmington, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 13, 1924. Serial No. 719,699. 7 Claims. (Cl. 66—26.)

1. In a circular knitting machine, the combination with a needle cylinder and its needles and sinkers, of means to move the needles successively down to cause their hooks to engage and pull down yarn and substantially simultaneously with such yarn-pulling downward movement lift the respectively adjacent yarn-engaging elements of the sinkers a distance substantially equal to the distance to which the needles are depressed during such yarn-pulling movement, thus, by the simultaneous movement of the needles and sinkers substantially the same distance in opposite directions, forming loops in about half the time required with stationary sinkers, with reduction in strain on the yarn and in the maximum length of loop required to be drawn.

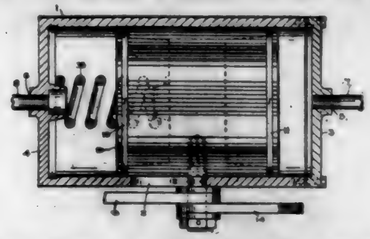
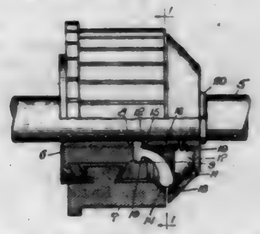
1,539,569. EXERCISING APPARATUS. JAMES HUBERT, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, England. Filed June 7, 1924. Serial No. 718,522. 5 Claims. (Cl. 272—79.)



1. Exercising apparatus comprising a pair of suspending members, a strip of elastic material disposed therebetween, cylindrical blocks fixed at the ends of said strip, clamps embracing said suspending members and said cylindrical blocks, the open ends of said clamps being beaded over, and wire loops passing through said bends to retain the open ends of said clamps tightly against said strip on the inside of said blocks.

1,539,570. AIR-BRAKE MECHANISM. CHARLES SUMNER JACKSON, Shawinigan Falls, Quebec, Canada, assignor of one-half to Frederick Stewart Brown, Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Filed Feb. 11, 1924. Serial No. 692,010. 8 Claims. (Cl. 303—82.)



1. An air brake mechanism comprising a cylinder having a longitudinal pin slot in the wall thereof, a piston reciprocating in said cylinder and constantly closing said slot and a pin projecting outwardly through said slot from said piston, an accompanying air reservoir constantly connected to and communicating with said cylinder, a pipe line circuit including said cylinder and reservoir, and connected to a source of compressed air, a reservoir control valve, a main control valve and levers and reach rods connecting said pin with the brake levers.

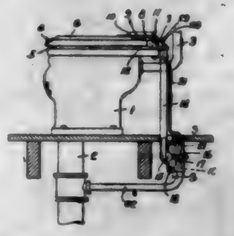
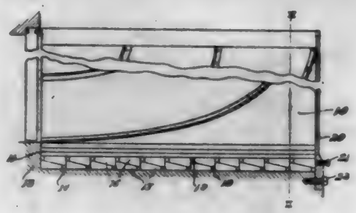
1,539,571. ELECTRIC MOTOR. JOHN T. JANETTE, Chicago, Ill. Filed Nov. 9, 1921. Serial No. 513,881. 3 Claims. (Cl. 172—120.)



1. In a short circuiting apparatus for a repulsion-induction motor, the combination with a commutator hub having an annular recess therein, of a plurality of radially arranged contacts having heads which are slidably mounted directly in said recess, and having outwardly projecting portions with contact points adjacent to the ends of the commutator bars and adapted to engage with the ends of said bars, and resilient means tending to hold the heads in normal position in said recess with the outer ends of the contacts away from the commutator bars, the arrangement being such that said contacts will move longitudinally of the commutator and the outer ends thereof will swing outwardly to make contact when the commutator is revolved at a predetermined speed.

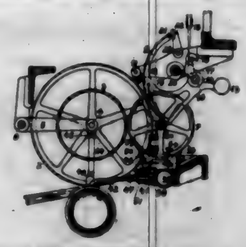
1,539,572. STEEL AUTOMOBILE WHEEL. AMES R. JAYNE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to American Steel Wheel Corporation, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Aug. 20, 1924. Serial No. 733,064. 10 Claims. (Cl. 301—64.)



1. A metallic wheel comprising a felly and sheet metal discs having half spoke sections integral therewith, flanges on the edges of the spoke sections adapted to abut when two discs are assembled to form the wheel, said flanged spoke sections being distorted to present slightly convex mating surfaces prior to assembly.

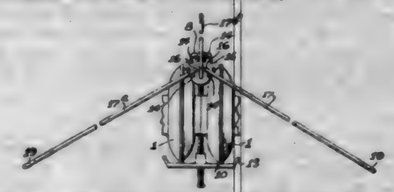
1,539,573. WATER-CLOSET VENTILATOR. JESSE C. JEFFRIES, Big Creek, Calif. Filed Feb. 9, 1924. Serial No. 691,550. 5 Claims. (Cl. 4—214.)

1. The combination with a water closet having a flushing pipe projecting therefrom, of an air chamber communicating with the closet bowl over the rim thereof, a conduit having a forked end adapted to straddle said flushing pipe and communicating with said air chamber at the respective sides thereof, a suction fan connected to said conduit, a fluid motor for operating the same, a valve casing in said air chamber medially thereof, said valve casing having a valve and a valve stem projecting therefrom and adapted to be actuated by lifting of the seat cover of the water closet for opening said valve, and intake and discharge pipes communicating with said valve casing and extending outwardly through said air chamber and thence along opposite sides of said flushing pipe for connection with a source of fluid supply and with said fluid motor respectively.



1,539,574. TURBINE-BLADE FASTENING. ALEXANDER T. KASLEY, Essington, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 18, 1922. Serial No. 554,890. 5 Claims. (Cl. 253—77.)

1. The combination with a turbine rotor having a plurality of longitudinal slots with outwardly converging sides and blades having complementally formed root portions fitting the slots, of a plurality of wedge blocks contacting in series and alternately with the bottoms of each slot and its corresponding blade root portion and means carried by the blocks having their thick ends disposed toward the outer end of the rotor slot, whereby the blocks may be readily removed.



1,539,575. SURFACE-MEASURING MACHINE. KARL KEHRBECK and BRUNO PAUL BOHACEK, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, assignors to Maschinenfabrik Moenus Aktien-Gesellschaft, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany. Filed Jan. 8, 1923. Serial No. 611,508. 13 Claims. (Cl. 33—124.)

1. A surface measuring machine, comprising, in combination: measuring-wheels, and means for feeding forward below them the blank to be measured; an adding-up mechanism; pneumatic means arranged between said feeding means and said adding-up mechanism and adapted to cause automatically the said mechanism to operate when a blank is caused to pass through between said measuring-wheels and the said feeding means; air-pipes forming parts of said pneumatic means and having their orifices located between the measuring-wheels at the points of contact between them and the blank, this latter closing said orifices when being fed forward, substantially as set forth.

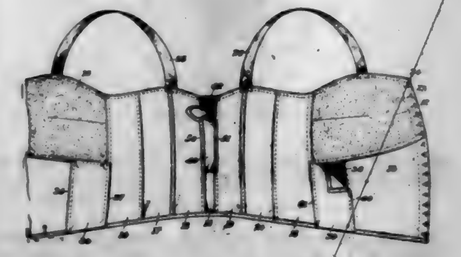
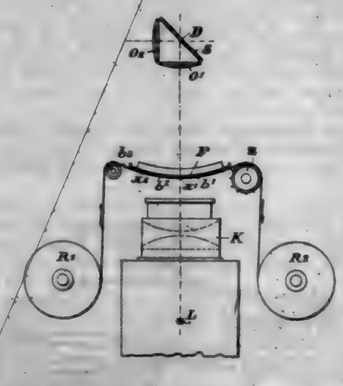
1,539,576. DRYING RACK. VICTOR P. KENNARD, Greenland, N. H. Filed May 28, 1923. Serial No. 641,980. 11 Claims. (Cl. 34—26.)

2. A drying rack, comprising, in combination, a standard having a convexed front portion provided with edges adapted to engage adjacent sections of a radiator; means at one end of said standard to support drying arms; and means to clamp said standard to a radiator.



1,539,577. PROCESS FOR ELECTROPLATING METAL GOODS. FELIX KIRSCHNER, Vienna, Austria. Filed Aug. 24, 1921. Serial No. 494,870. 14 Claims. (Cl. 148—4.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)

1. The herein described process of improving the character of an electrolytically deposited coating of a comparatively easily fusible metal on a less easily fusible ground metal which consists in smelting the coating under the cooperation of an adhesion flux, and in artificially cooling the ground metal and the coating while the coating is still in molten condition, whereby the molten coating sets completely during the cooling operation.



1,539,578. BRASSIÈRE. WALDEMAR KOPS, New York, assignor to Nemo Circlet Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 14, 1923. Serial No. 662,590. 2 Claims. (Cl. 2—42.)

2. In a brassière and the like, a body member, an elastic insert in the body member, an inelastic strip substantially coextensive with the elastic insert, overlying the same and adjacent its edges removably connected to the body member on the outer side thereof, and a second inelastic strip which is plaited and when the plait is extended is of materially greater extent than the said elastic insert, the said second elastic strip overlying the said elastic insert and adjacent its edges removably connected to the body member on the inner side thereof whereby normally that portion of the garment containing the elastic insert is unyielding and by the removal of the first inelastic strip the said portion of the body member is made yielding to the extent of the second inelastic strip and by the removal of the second inelastic strip the said section of the garment is made yielding to the extent of the elasticity of the elastic insert.

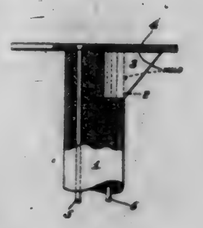
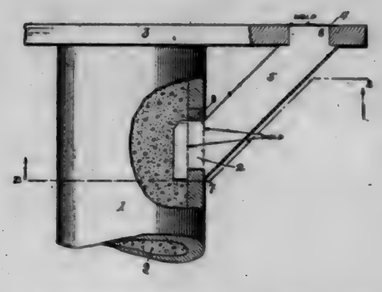
1,539,579. OPTICAL DEVICE FOR COMPENSATING THE MOVEMENT OF THE FILM IN CINEMATOGRAPH APPARATUS. STANISLAUS KUCHARSKI, Charlottenburg, near Berlin, Germany, assignor to Autoscope Ltd., London E. C. 2, a British Company. Filed Aug. 31, 1921. Serial No. 497,305. 7 Claims. (Cl. 88—16.8.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)



1. In a device of the type described, means for compensating the movement of the film, comprising a mirror for reflecting the light from the film, associated with an objective forming with said mirror a movable prism means for oscillating the prism in synchronism with the film-feeding means.

1,539,580. BUILDING COLUMN. JOHN LALLY, Boston, Mass. Filed July 14, 1921. Serial No. 484,720. 3 Claims. (Cl. 72—75.)



1. A building column comprising a casing provided with a slot, a bracket in the slot, the edges of the slot and side faces of the bracket being welded together, a top plate resting on the casing and bracket with its under side welded to the top edge of the bracket and a plastic filling within the casing.

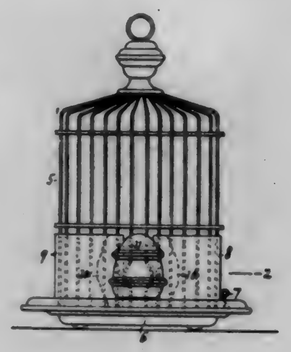
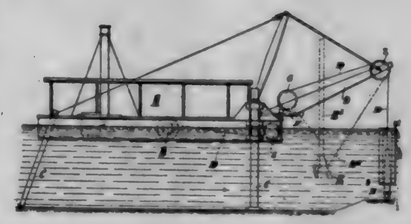
1,539,581. BUILDING COLUMN. JOHN LALLY, Great Neck, N. Y. Filed Feb. 23, 1924. Serial No. 694,618. 7 Claims. (Cl. 72—75.)



3. A building column comprising a casing slotted near its end, an apertured crown plate on the end of the casing, a strut, a lug on its outer end engaging the aperture in the crown plate, the lower end of said strut entering the casing slot and extending below the bottom of the slot.

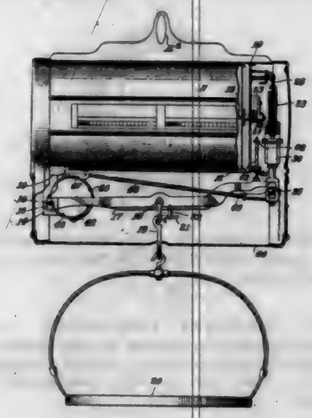
1,539,582. TRACTION DEVICE. JOSEPH ADALBERT LANDRY, Mont Joli, Quebec, Canada. Filed Apr. 19, 1924. Serial No. 707,732. 5 Claims. (Cl. 305—9.)



5. A traction device comprising in combination with a pair of axles, main springs connecting said axles, wheels carried by said axles, tread members passed around said wheels, auxiliary springs suspended from said main springs, smaller springs carried by said auxiliary springs, roller carrying springs pivoted to the ends of said smaller springs, and rollers journaled to the ends of said roller carrying springs and engaging said tread members.

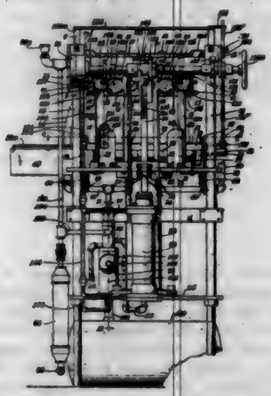
1,539,583. BIRD-CAGE GUARD. HENRY O. LINDEMANN, Tompkinsville, N. Y. Filed June 21, 1924. Serial No. 721,410. 5 Claims. (Cl. 119—17.)

3. A bird cage guard comprising a flexible shield for removable arrangement about the lower portion of a wire cage, a flap located at the end of the shield made to loop about a vertical wire of a cage, and means for fastening a portion of the flap adapted to form a stop by coacting with the vertical wire.



1,539,584. COMBINED SUBAQUEOUS ROCK CUTTER AND DREDGE. FRED LORNITZ, Crookston, Scotland. Filed May 14, 1921. Serial No. 469,483. 4 Claims. (Cl. 262—13.)

1. In combination with a dipper dredge, a cutter, a guide within which said cutter is suspended, a boom on the dredge, flexible members by which said guide is freely suspended from said boom so as to move laterally in all directions, means carried by said dredge and upon which said boom is pivoted whereby said cutter may operate upon ground not directly underneath said dredge, mechanism for operating said cutter, duplex ropes extending from said mechanism along said boom to said cutter, three sheaves mounted at the end of said boom, the two outer sheaves for carrying said ropes, and the middle one for carrying the dipper-operating rope.



1,539,585. SCALE. EDWARD B. LOCKE, Dayton, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Dayton Scale Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 15, 1921. Serial No. 461,556. 11 Claims. (Cl. 265—69.)

1. In a scale, in combination, a weight indicator, a pinion therefor, an element displaceable in accordance with the applied load, a rack meshing with the aforesaid pinion and having a ball and socket connection with said movable element, and an enmeshing weight carried by said rack to enmesh the same with the pinion.

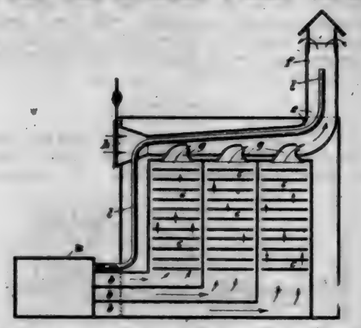
1,539,586. METHOD AND APPARATUS FOR ASSEMBLING PIECES OF ADHESIVE SHEET MATERIAL. FRANK J. MACDONALD, Akron, Ohio, assignor to The B. F. Goodrich Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 31, 1922. Serial No. 548,380. 53 Claims. (Cl. 12—52.)

1. The method of assembling pieces of sheet material having a tacky rubber surface which comprises moving a plurality of said pieces, with relation to each other, into the relative positions they are to occupy in the finished structure, by engagement with one face only of each piece, their opposite faces being exposed in said positions, and applying another piece to the exposed faces of the said pieces in common while thus holding them in said positions.



1,539,587. ROTATING PUMP. EMANUEL MOCIORMBA, Rheinbach, Germany, assignor to the Firm Maschinenfabrik Waldau Gesellschaft mit beschränkter Haftung, Rheinbach, Germany. Filed Aug. 4, 1922. Serial No. 579,596. 4 Claims. (Cl. 103—160.)

1. In a rotary pump, the combination with a casing, of a rotating body in said casing having a transverse groove forming part of the pump chamber, a piston movable in said casing, a disc mounted eccentrically of the axis of rotation of said body, and means carried by said disc engaging, respectively, said body and said piston for simultaneously positively rotating the body and actuating the piston.

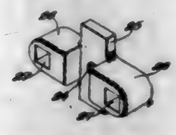
1,539,588. DESICCATING VEGETABLE MATERIAL. BRUNO MÜLLER, Berlin-Neukölln, Germany. Filed Sept. 19, 1923. Serial No. 668,625. 5 Claims. (Cl. 34—39.)

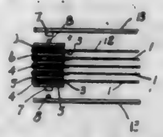


1. In a drying, desiccating and evaporating plant in combination, a plurality of supporting and enclosing means for the treatment of material, means for discharging waste air and vapors from said supporting and enclosing means, means associated therewith adapted for the introduction of fresh outside air into the current of waste air and vapors, heating means in the interior of said fresh-air-introducing means, and adapted to increase the draft in said fresh-air introducing means and in said waste-air-discharging means.

1,539,589. CARBURETING DEVICE. HOWARD NATTRASS, Wellington, New Zealand, assignor to William Edward Wills, Wellington, New Zealand. Filed May 25, 1922. Serial No. 563,698. 3 Claims. (Cl. 261—120.)

1. In a carburetor of the character described, a fuel containing tank including a body having a well in the central portion of the bottom thereof and a dome in the top above the well in combination with the pivotally mounted float controlled air supply means, the well serving to accommodate the lower portion of the float controlled air supply means to insure of the air passing through the entire contents of the tank.

1,539,590. PICKER-STICK PARALLEL MOTION. JONAS NORTHROP, Hopedale, Mass., assignor to Hopedale Manufacturing Company, Milford, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Apr. 7, 1923. Serial No. 630,514. 1 Claim. (Cl. 139—150.)



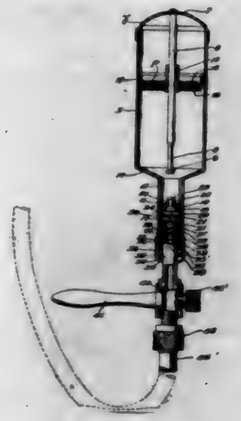
A picker stick parallel motion having, in combination, a stand, a picker stick, a shoe, a strap and spring connected with the picker stick tending to return it to outward position, the shoe being provided with a housing, a tongue between the picker stick and housing, a follower piece having portions extended longitudinally along a considerable length of the picker stick, the end of the strap being extended between the follower piece and the edge of the picker stick, a bolt extending through the follower piece, the strap, the picker stick, the tongue and the housing for clamping the picker stick in place, and two additional bolts, one on each side of the picker stick, said follower piece being provided with wings and said housing being provided with ears to receive said bolts, which act as supplemental means for clamping the picker stick strap and shoe together.

1,539,591. HEATING SYSTEM AND MEANS. EARLE L. OVINGTON, Santa Barbara, Calif. Filed Aug. 28, 1921. Serial No. 494,722. 3 Claims. (Cl. 126—12.)

1. A fire-place construction including a walled enclosure providing a heating chamber and the front wall of said enclosure having a fire-place opening and a heating opening communicating with the heating chamber, and a mantel-shelf above said heating opening and having a depending wall masking said heating opening.

1,539,592. SCRAP BOOK. CHARLES H. PAYNE, Cincinnati, Ohio. Filed June 9, 1924. Serial No. 718,852. 4 Claims. (Cl. 281—22.)

1. A flat opening book made up of a multiplicity of leaves, each leaf folded back upon itself at its rear edge to form a flap, a narrow strip of cardboard, said strip glued to each flap on the outer surface, on each leaf, said cardboard strips forming the means of connecting each leaf to the next leaf, when glued together to form a book.



1,539,593. PRODUCTION OF RINGS AND THE LIKE. GEORGE H. PHELPS, Warehouse Point, Conn., assignor to Thomas E. Murray, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Oct. 5, 1923. Serial No. 666,715. 10 Claims. (Cl. 219—10.)

1. The method of uniting the edges of metal parts which consists in locating an insert between such edges, passing a welding current across such edges and through the entire width of such insert and pressing the edges toward each other to produce a weld, the insert overlying less than the full width of the edges and the movement of the parts toward each other being so limited as to avoid the forming of a burr projecting beyond a face of the welded article.

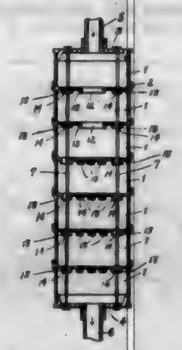
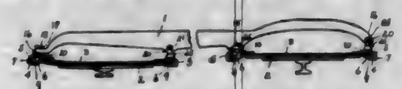
1,539,594. LUBRICANT COMPRESSOR. EARL F. PIERCE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to The Bassick Manufacturing Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 21, 1924. Serial No. 708,008. 5 Claims. (Cl. 184—105.)



1. A lubricant compressor comprising a barrel, a piston reciprocable in said barrel, a cylinder communicating with said barrel, and having a cam slot at its outer end, an outwardly opening check valve between said barrel and said cylinder, a piston reciprocable in said cylinder, a hollow plunger reciprocable in the outer end of said cylinder and having a projecting pin slidable in said cam slot, a handle secured to said plunger, and a discharge conduit secured to said hollow plunger and communicating therewith.

1,539,595. MUFFLER FOR EXPLOSIVE ENGINES. HERBERT SPENCER POWELL, New Hartford, N. Y. Filed Oct. 10, 1921. Serial No. 506,590. 2 Claims. (Cl. 137—160.)



2. In a muffler for explosive engines a plurality of sections forming chambers, said sections having their outer edges flared, whereby to nest said sections with relation to each other, said sections having partition walls, the first two partition walls having large apertures surrounded with walls extending in the direction of flow of the gases to aid in diffusing the heat, the remaining partition walls having smaller apertures surrounded with walls extending in the direction of flow of the gases to aid also in diffusing the heat of said gases, and stay rods for holding said sections together, and the apertures in said sections being sufficiently large to permit the projection of stay rods, whereby said stay rods will not make contact with said sections and thereby permit of the expansion and contraction of said sections without bending said stay rods.

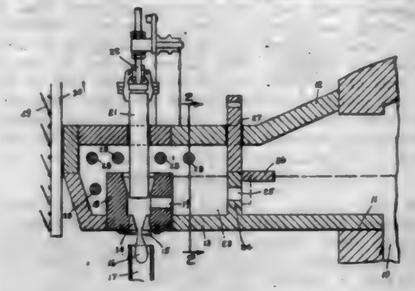
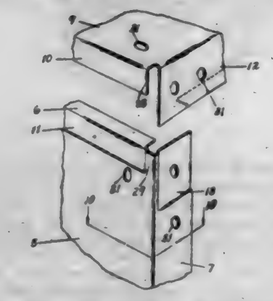
1,539,596. JOINT FOR SPRINGS. HERBERT S. POWELL, New Hartford, N. Y. Filed May 17, 1922. Serial No. 561,730. 5 Claims. (Cl. 267—54.)



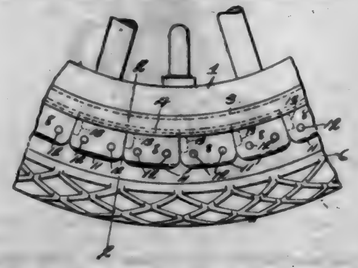
1. In a joint for springs, a hood having a dome, said hood having lateral sides to aid in holding the same in a removable manner to the end of a spring and an end wall to aid in preventing end thrust, a member adapted to cooperate with said dome, whereby to prevent twisting or distorting of said spring and said member having an oil cup for the storage of oil to lubricate said joint.

1,539,597. FOLDING CHAIR. WILLIAM C. RASTETTER, Fort Wayne, Ind. Filed May 20, 1924. Serial No. 714,582. 4 Claims. (Cl. 155—142.)



1. In a folding chair, a main frame including a pair of legs spaced apart; a rod horizontally positioned with its ends secured to the corresponding legs; a seat pivotally supported on the rod; a prop member having arms, the upper ends of which are pivoted in the frame at points above the said rod; an eyebolt loosely mounted in connection with the seat at each side thereof back of said rod and having sliding movement on the corresponding arm of the prop member; a stop fixed on each arm operable to limit the upward movement of the corresponding eyebolt; a bracket pivoted on the rod between each leg and the seat; and a bracket on each of said braces having an angular wing with an elongated aperture therein through which the corresponding arm of the prop member extends, said brackets having binding engagement with said arms when the seat is extended for use.

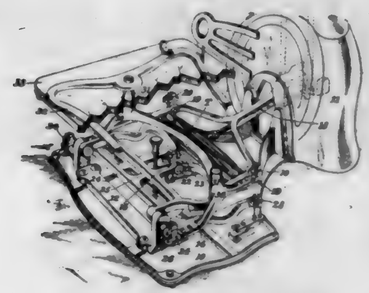
1,539,598. ELECTRICALLY-HEATED GLASS-FLOW DEVICE. JOHN RAU, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed June 7, 1924. Serial No. 718,464. 11 Claims. (Cl. 49—55.)



5. In a continuous flow glass feeding trough, having a glass containing chamber therein, a high temperature relatively non-disintegrating electrical heating means extending across the chamber and above the glass for directly heating the same to high temperatures.

1,539,599. STOVE. ALFRED J. REEDY, Battle Creek, Mich., assignor to A-B Stove Company, Battle Creek, Mich. Filed Oct. 10, 1923. Serial No. 667,665. 16 Claims. (Cl. 126—39.)

18. An oven comprising side walls having inwardly projecting flanges at their front edges, and a top having downwardly projecting flanges at its side and front edges disposed with its side flanges overlapping the upper ends of said side wall front flanges, the upper ends of said front flanges being inwardly offset to provide seats for the overlapping top flange.



1,539,600. TIRE PROTECTOR. ALONZO A. RENTFROW and JAMES T. BROWN, Jr., Omaha, Nebr.; said Rentfrow assignor to said Brown. Filed Aug. 22, 1922. Serial No. 583,531. 1 Claim. (Cl. 152—26.)

The combination with a tire casing, said tire casing being disposed on a rim, inwardly extending flanges carried by said rim, said flanges engaging over clincher flanges carried by the tire casing, of means for preventing the rim flanges from cutting the tire casing, said means comprising plates in abutting registering end engagement with each other and engaging the sides of the casing and secured thereto, outwardly extending flanges carried by the plates and underlying the rim flanges, and inwardly offset flanges carried by one of the ends of the plates and underlying the ends of the adjacent plates, the outer edges of the plates being provided with circumferentially arranged inturned portions compressibly imbedded in the outer sides of the tire casing.

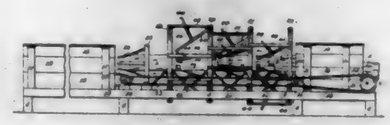
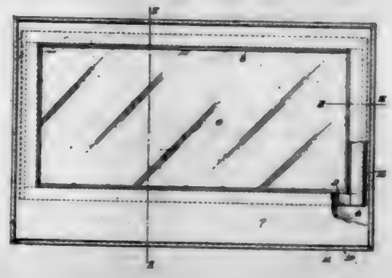
1,539,601. SCALE. CHARLES EDWARD RIEDEL, Mount Clemens, Mich., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Dayton Scale Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Nov. 10, 1919. Serial No. 336,926. 7 Claims. (Cl. 265—62.)



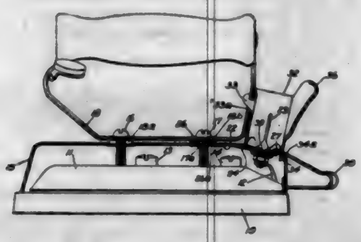
1. In a scale in combination, a main scale lever having a pair of fulcrum pivots at one end thereof and intermediate pivots, said intermediate pivots comprising a pair of platform supporting pivots and a single pivot intermediate the platform pivots and the fulcrum pivots, an auxiliary lever having a pair of fulcrum pivots at one end thereof, a pair of platform pivots at the opposite end thereof in vertical alignment with the fulcrum pivots of the main scale lever, and a single intermediate pivot, and means for suspending the auxiliary lever from the main lever, said means comprising a connecting means co-operating with the aforesaid single intermediate pivots.

1,539,602. COMBINED SOCKET AND RHEOSTAT FOR RADIO USE. WILLIAM ROSENBLOOM and CARL T. BLUME, Revere, Mass. Filed Aug. 31, 1922. Serial No. 585,533. 1 Claim. (Cl. 201—49.)



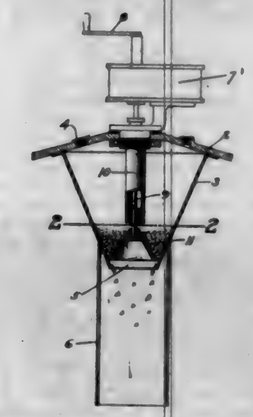
A combined socket and rheostat for radio apparatus comprising a base having a vertical flange at one end, a vertically-disposed socket element carried by the base and provided with socket terminals, an arcuate resistance coil carried by said vertical flange, a horizontal shaft journalled in and having electrical connection with said flange and a contact arm fast to said shaft and engaging said resistance coil, one of the socket terminals being grounded on the base.

1,539,603. PULP-WOOD PEELER. JOHN SAPRONES, Bridgeport, Conn. Filed June 5, 1924. Serial No. 718,053. 5 Claims. (Cl. 144—208.)



1. In a device of the type described, a base frame, an endless conveyor belt at the receiving end of the base frame, transversely extending bars pivotally carried by said belt for engaging logs to feed them in the direction of movement of said belt, an endless conveyor at the discharge end of the frame for feeding logs off of the latter, a group of resiliently mounted bark peeling blades carried by the base frame between said endless conveyors, a circular series of reversely curved resilient arms carried by said fame at one end of the group of peeling elements and a circular series of inwardly curved resilient arms carried by said frame at the other end of the group of peeling elements for centering the logs while being operated upon by said elements, and means for driving the endless conveyors in unison.

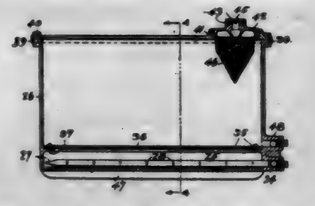
1,539,604. PANEL OR CURTAIN CONSTRUCTION. PAUL E. SCHELL, Detroit, Mich. Filed Nov. 22, 1922. Serial No. 602,514. 1 Claim. (Cl. 296—138.)



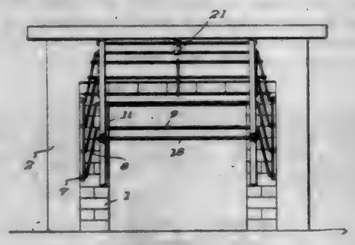
An automobile light panel made of a stiff and relatively thick fibrous composite board provided with a light opening, a light for the board opening, a wooden frame on the inner side of said board about the board opening, a cushioning member at the outer edge of said frame and secured to the front and rear faces of said frame, a lining on said frame extending on to the inner face of said board cooperating with said frame and board in enclosing said cushion member, a cover on the outer face of said board, and extending over the edge of said board and overlapping the edge of said lining, and stitches extending through said board, said lining and the overlapped edge of said cover.

1,539,605. ELECTRIC FLATIRON. ALBERT H. SIMMONS, Oak Park, Ill., assignor to Edison Electric Appliance Company, Incorporated, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of New York. Filed May 2, 1923. Serial No. 636,246. 9 Claims. (Cl. 219—25.)

1. An electric flat iron comprising a heated body, a cover therefor, a handle carried by said cover, a plug guard, and means for interlocking said plug guard with said handle and cover so that when said handle is secured to said cover said plug guard is locked in place.



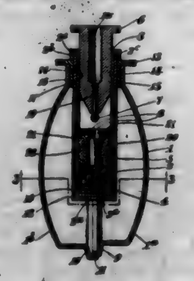
1,539,606. CARBIDE-FEEDING MEANS. ELMER H. SMITH, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Dec. 13, 1923. Serial No. 680,424. 3 Claims. (Cl. 48—38.)



1. The combination with a hopper having a circular discharge opening, of a valve mounted to rotate within said hopper near said discharge opening, said valve being substantially oval in horizontal cross section and of less diameter in one direction than said discharge opening and adapted upon rotation to alternately open and close a portion of said discharge opening, and agitate the material adjacent to said discharge opening.

1,539,607. LUBRICATING SYSTEM FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. FRANK S. SPRING, Sandusky, Ohio. Filed Dec. 13, 1921. Serial No. 522,035. 3 Claims. (Cl. 184—6.)

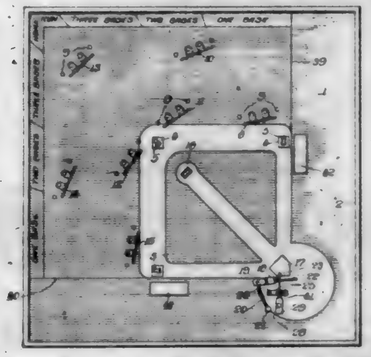
1. A lubricating system for internal combustion engines comprising an oil storage tank divided by means of a horizontal strainer into a relatively large upper compartment and a relatively small lower compartment, an oil inlet below said strainer, a perforated oil distributor pipe connected to said inlet and adapted to distribute oil evenly in said lower compartment, an oil outlet above said strainer, and a filler cap removably inserted in an opening in said tank and provided with an air port for maintaining atmospheric pressure within said tank.



1,539,608. FIRE SCREEN. EDWARD M. TARPLEY, Franklin, Ky. Filed June 28, 1924. Serial No. 721,899. 2 Claims. (Cl. 126—202.)

1. In combination with an open fireplace, and a mantel therefor, of a fire screen, comprising posts, rods passing freely through the posts and having angle ends which are pivotally supported from the sides of the mantel, longitudinal bars loosely connected to the angle ends of the top rods, and means for suspending the screen in folded condition from beneath the shelf of the mantel.

1,539,609. LIFE-CONSERVING GRENADE. WILFRED J. TAYLOR, Thompson, Conn., assignor to Stephen James De Lanoy, Trenton, N. J. Filed Mar. 1, 1921. Serial No. 448,808. 13 Claims. (Cl. 102—29.)



10. A life-conserving grenade having a pyroxylin plastic flask made up of joined portions, the joint between said portions being of less strength than the material of the flask.

1,539,610. BASEBALL GAME BOARD. ROBERT BENEDICT TRACY, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 11, 1921. Serial No. 476,912. 2 Claims. (Cl. 273—89.)

1. In a device of the class described, the combination of a board simulating a baseball field, suitable markings along the margins of said board, a player simulating

figure hinged at each base for raising from horizontal to vertical position, a striking lever pivoted to said board at one side of a simulated home plate, a tension spring for actuating said striking lever to sweep over said plate, a manually releasable latch for holding said striking lever in opposition to said spring and a plurality of lever engaging means on said latch.

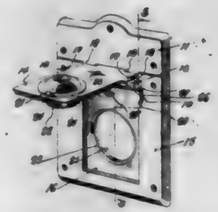
1,539,611. AIR-VENTILATED CONSTRUCTION AND BUILDING UNIT USED IN CONNECTION THEREWITH. EMORY E. TROWBRIDGE, Kansas City, Kans. Filed Apr. 6, 1923. Serial No. 630,190. 2 Claims. (Cl. 72—41.)

1. In building wall construction, the combination with a plurality of hollow building units having interior partitions arranged in tiers to form continuous communicating air passages, ports in the exterior walls and interior partitions of selected units and between the passages whereby the air will pass continuously from one side of the wall down one passage and in an opposed or upward direction through the other passage, and out from the other side of the wall.



1,539,612. COIN-CONTROLLED VENDING MACHINE. ROSS VAUGHAN, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to The Ex-El Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 20, 1920. Serial No. 425,377. Renewed Apr. 14, 1925. 1 Claim. (Cl. 194—1.)

In a coin-controlled vending machine, a casing having a front opening, a door hinged at the bottom of the opening and adapted to close the opening, an article support connected to the lower portion of the door and projecting into the casing, a lever pivoted at one end to the casing and having a projection extending through the article-support and above its upper surface and adapted to be depressed by an article resting on the support, a coin slot, means to close the slot, and means tending to close the slot but prevented from so doing by the lever when depressed, the said bottom lifting the article from the projecting means at each operation of the door in opening.

1,539,613. WARDROBE-TRUNK LOCK. GEORGE HENRY WHEARY, Racine, Wis., assignor to Wheary-Burge Trunk Company, Racine, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed Mar. 12, 1924. Serial No. 698,666. 3 Claims. (Cl. 70—115.)

1. A device of the character described, comprising a hasp, means pivotally mounting the hasp, a keeper plate having a recess in its front face to conform with the shape of and receive the hasp with its outer surface flush with the outer surface of the keeper plate, means for securing the hasp in the keeper plate recess, and interlocking projections carried by either the keeper plate or hasp for relieving the strain on the means for securing the hasp in the keeper recess, said projections being substantially flush with the outer surface of the keeper plate and hasp when the plate and hasp are engaged.

1,539,614. FILING CABINET. MAX C. WHITMORE, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to Joseph R. Kathrens, trustee, West Milton, Ohio. Filed Apr. 12, 1923. Serial No. 631,505. 4 Claims. (Cl. 129—16.1.)

4. The combination with a filing cabinet, of a series of card holders adapted to be moved outwardly therefrom to advanced positions, an index on the top of the cabinet containing a number of headings, an indicating member movable over the top of the cabinet into registry with said headings, the top of said cabinet containing an opening behind said headings, and a kicker member pivotally secured to said indicating member and projecting downwardly through said opening in the cabinet top to engage and force outwardly a holder containing a card corresponding to the heading with which the indicating member is alined, when the top end of said kicker member is drawn rearwardly.

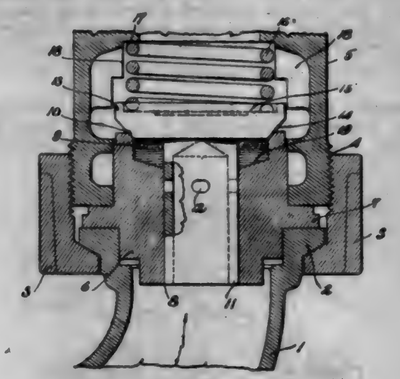
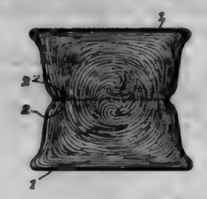
1,539,615. NONSKID DEVICE. LYMAN A. WILDMAN, South Bend, Ind., assignor to Universal Skidless Chain Co., Niles, Mich., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Jan. 27, 1925. Serial No. 4,985. 3 Claims. (Cl. 152—14.)

1. In an anti-skid device, a transverse anti-skid member composed of pivoted, thin links having outer road engaging points, and having terminal end plates provided with flanges pivotally secured thereto, and hinge plates pivotally connected to the outer ends of said terminal plates and having transverse outer eyes, adapted to be engaged by the links of the side wall chains.



1,539,616. VARIABLE-SPEED GEAR. HARVEY D. WILLIAMS, Wallingford, Conn., assignor to The Waterbury Tool Company, Waterbury, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed July 27, 1920. Serial No. 399,364. 18 Claims. (Cl. 103—162.)

1. In an apparatus for operation with a fluid in motion, a rotary barrel having cylinders extending lengthwise of its axis of rotation, pistons arranged to reciprocate in said cylinders, push rods in operative relation to said pistons within the cylinders but out of contact with the cylinder walls, balls interposed between said push rods and the respective cylinder walls, and a rotary plate inclined to the barrel axis and operatively related to said push rods.



1,539,617. CHECK VALVE. WILLIAM H. WILLISTON, Somerville, Mass., assignor to Manning, Maxwell & Moore, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 19, 1923. Serial No. 652,584. 5 Claims. (Cl. 251—146.)

1. Apparatus of the character described comprising a fluid passageway having therein a main valve and an auxiliary valve with a fluid space therebetween, and means interconnecting said valves to cause the auxiliary valve to restrict and close the passageway before the main valve seats, thereby to trap fluid in said space to cushion the seating of the main valve.

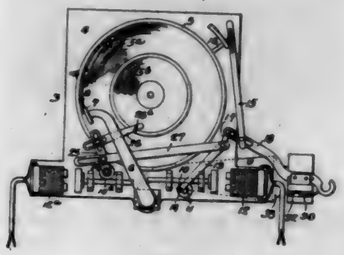
1,539,618. TIRE AND METHOD OF MANUFACTURE. HARRY WILLSHAW, Buffalo, N. Y., assignor to Dunlop Tire and Rubber Corporation of America, Buffalo, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 28, 1924. Serial No. 746,287. 5 Claims. (Cl. 18—12.)

5. The method of producing solid rubber tires which consists in extruding a rubber rod of a cross-section corresponding to two tires with its outer faces corresponding to the bases of the tires, splitting said rod into two and molding a tire from each of said rods and a non-skid face on the cut faces of the rubber.



1,539,619. PHOTOGRAPH OR LIKE MOUNT. OLIVER G. WOOD, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Jan. 10, 1924. Serial No. 685,338. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—158.)

A photograph or like mount comprising a backing provided with lateral, foldable flaps adapted to be folded into overlapping position upon the display face of said backing, which display face is arranged to recieve a photograph and also to have depicted thereon the name of the photographer making such photograph, the backing and flaps being so constructed and proportioned with respect to one another that in said overlapping relation of said parts at least a portion of said backing display face remains uncovered to disclose the name of the photographer making said photograph, and means for interlocking said flaps with respect to one another.

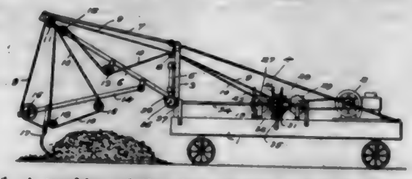
1,539,620. BURGLAR AND FIRE ALARM. WILLIAM M. WOSSOFF, Merchantville, N. J. Filed June 11, 1920. Serial No. 388,333. 11 Claims. (Cl. 179—5.)

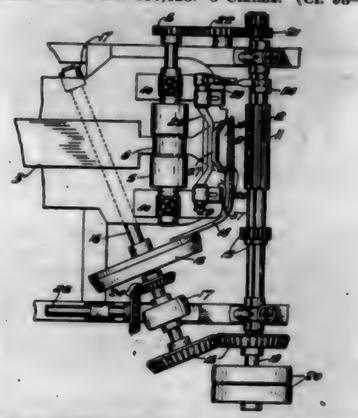


1. In an alarm or signaling system, a phonograph or talking machine, a record therefor having a plurality of sets of grooves, a pivotally mounted tone arm with a needle adapted to engage either set of grooves, a stop normally rendering the record inactive, electrically controlled means for releasing said stop, and means for automatically transferring the needle from one set of grooves to another set of grooves simultaneously with the release of the record holding stop.

1,539,621. CIRCUIT-CONTROLLING DEVICE. EDWARD G. ACKER, New York, N. Y. Filed Feb. 5, 1921. Serial No. 442,713. 1 Claim. (Cl. 200—26.)

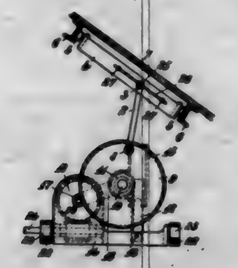
A convertible circuit making and breaking device comprising a base, a plurality of contacts having one of their ends passing through said base and held in fixed parallelism therein, a movable part for simultaneous movement therewith, a plurality of insulators and conductors of like shape and size and each being provided with a circumferential channel shaped groove for receiving the free ends of the conductors and means for detachably securing the conductors and insulators in a manner whereby they are interchangeable for the purpose specified.

1,539,622. MANURE LOADER. ED L. AMUNDSON, Henning, Minn. Filed May 8, 1923. Serial No. 637,580. 2 Claims. (Cl. 214—138.)



1. A machine of the class described having a mast, a boom depending therefrom, a loading device extending from the boom intermediate its ends, operating cables for said loading device, pulleys on said boom on opposite sides of the loading device over which the respective cables pass, one of said cables being fastened to said mast, another of said cables being fastened to said loading device, pulleys on the mast over which each cable passes, and independently operable drums to control the respective cables.

1,539,623. LOOSE-LEAF BINDER. HUBERT AUBURN, Mount Healthy, Ohio. Filed Mar. 1, 1924. Serial No. 696,219. 1 Claim. (Cl. 129—12.)



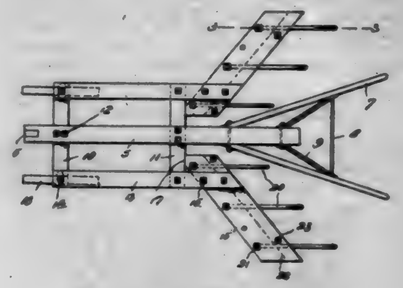
In a binder of the class described the combination with a tubular housing having an open end and a sealed end, of a locking device contained within the housing, an actuating plate for the locking device contained within the housing and having its one end reciprocable through the open end of the housing, and a flanged finger piece carried by the last mentioned end of the actuating plate and adapted to enter the opening in the housing with its flanged portion in abutment with the open end of the housing.

1,539,624. CUT-OFF DEVICE FOR BAG-MAKING MACHINES. TRUE M. AVERY, Glens Falls, N. Y., assignor to Union Bag & Paper Corporation, Hudson Falls, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 15, 1923. Serial No. 657,623. 8 Claims. (Cl. 93—33.)

3. In a bag-making machine embodying a support for a paper tube, a knife having a cutting edge presented perpendicularly to one side of the tube, and a breaker arm to coact with the tube and cause cutting thereof on said knife, the breaker arm and knife being mounted to operate, one past the other, through substantially concentric axes.

1,539,625. CAR-BODY-TIPPING DEVICE. OTTO BALLERT, Berlin, Germany. Filed Apr. 25, 1924. Serial No. 708,975. 18 Claims. (Cl. 298—21.)

1. A car-body tipping-device, comprising, in combination: a jack-frame located below the car-body bottom, and pivots journally connected with said frame and being located in the longitudinal axis of the car; an upwardly extending rack hinged to said frame; a cog-wheel meshing with said rack; means to keep the latter constantly in mesh with said cog-wheel; an axle connected firmly with the said cog-wheel and extending to both sides thereof; two larger cog-wheels secured to the ends of said axle and connected firmly therewith; two connecting-rods hinged at their lower end to said larger cog-wheels and at their upper ends to the car-body; means for carrying the said axle with its cog-wheels, and means for transmitting motion to the said two larger cog-wheels.



1,539,626. ADVERTISING AND HOSIERY-INSPECTION DEVICE. JOHN EDMUND BARTLETT, Birmingham, Ala., assignor to Bar-Trex Manufacturing Co., Inc., Birmingham, Ala., a Corporation of Alabama. Filed Jan. 25, 1924. Serial No. 688,548. 5 Claims. (Cl. 211—21.)

1. In apparatus of the class described comprising a base, a central support thereon, a frame of substantially frusto-pyramidal form suspended from said support and being rotatable about the support, translucent panels for receiving advertising in said frame, illuminating means within the frame, means for rotating said frame, a translucent form supported above, said frame and fixed to rotate therewith, illuminating means within the form, spaced contact fingers rotating with said form and frame, stationary spaced and insulated rings in connection with a source of current supply in position to be engaged by said contact fingers during the rotation of said frame, and means to cause rotation of the frame.

1,539,627. CULTIVATOR. JERVIS L. BATES, Belmont, Miss. Filed Sept. 27, 1923. Serial No. 665,061. 1 Claim. (Cl. 97—167.)

A straddle row cultivator comprising a frame including a centrally disposed beam, a pair of handles rigidly secured to the inner end of the beam for manipulation by a walking attendant, a pair of longitudinally disposed side bars positioned in spaced parallelism from opposite sides of said beam, said side bars being of a length less than the beam, a pair of longitudinally spaced cross bars secured to the under faces of said beam and side bars, the cross bar at the inner end of the device being spaced inwardly from the corresponding ends of the side bars, a pair of rearwardly diverging members comprising main bars secured to the under side of the aforesaid side bars and having their inner ends abutting the adjacent cross bar, bolts extending through said diverging main bars, clamping bars carried by the main bars, and cultivating teeth provided at their free ends with eyes connected to said bolts and having their intermediate portions held against said main bars by said clamping bars.

1,539,628. COMBINED DRILL AND TAP. JOHN J. BAYNE, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed June 12, 1923. Serial No. 644,949. 1 Claim. (Cl. 10—140.)

A combined drill and tap comprising a stem having a twist drill point at one end, the grooves of which gradually decrease in depth and terminate in oppositely disposed longitudinal grooves and having other intermediate longitudinal grooves starting at the inner end of the drill point and terminating at the inner end of the shank and having longitudinal portions separated by the longitudinal grooves, said portions being provided with thread sections which merge into the cutting edges of the drill point, said longitudinal grooves being of the depth and width of the inner ends of the grooves of the twist drill point.

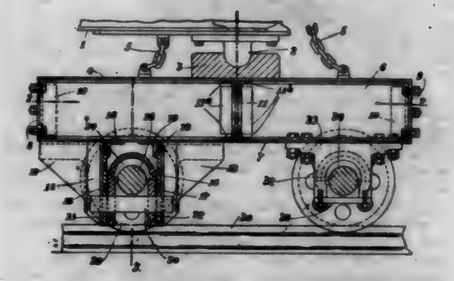
1,539,629. WORK-SPACING MECHANISM FOR BUTTONHOLE-SEWING MACHINES. LEWIS J. BARSONI, Swampscott, Mass., assignor to United States Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 16, 1921. Serial No. 461,944. 22 Claims. (Cl. 112—65.)



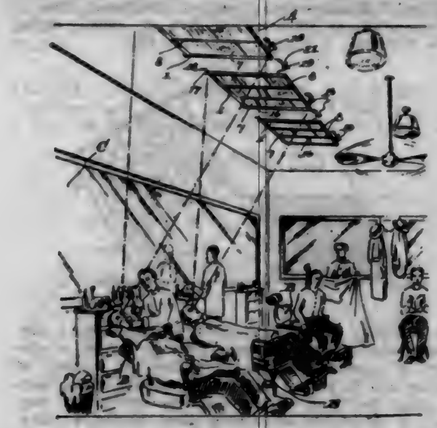
1. A buttonhole sewing machine having, in combination, buttonhole sewing mechanism, and work spacing means including a buttonhole engaging device movable crosswise of the buttonhole.

1,539,630. PRESSURE-BALANCING VALVE FOR OXY-ACETYLENE WELDING. JAMES B. BRAIRD, Shreveport, La. Filed Dec. 20, 1921. Serial No. 523,800. 2 Claims. (Cl. 137—78.)

1. A pressure balancing valve comprising a casing, a flexible diaphragm arranged in the casing and dividing the same into two chambers, a source of fluid communicating with one chamber for moving the diaphragm outwardly thereof, said casing having a neck in the other chamber in substantially coaxial alinement with the diaphragm opening away from the diaphragm and adapted to communicate a second source of fluid with the second chamber, a spring seated valve fitting against said neck for normally closing the same and arranged to move toward and from said diaphragm, and a direct connection between said diaphragm and said valve for unseating the latter upon the movement of the diaphragm toward said neck.

1,539,631. TRUCK FOR EXCAVATORS OF THE DRAG-LINE TYPE. HUBERT OSWALD BEDCOCK, Glasgow, Scotland, assignor to Lobnitz & Company Limited, Renfrew, Scotland. Filed June 10, 1924. Serial No. 719,218. 7 Claims. (Cl. 105—28.)

1. A supporting truck for a drag-line excavator having a body, a wheel-carrying axle, a saddle on the body and having bearing on the axle, the saddle depending below the axle, and a pivot pin connecting the opposing parts of the saddle below the axle.



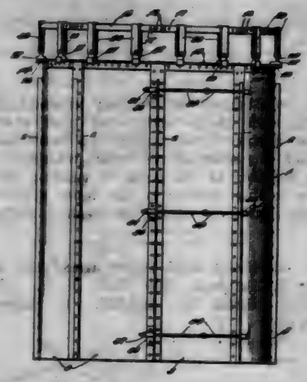
1,539,632. METAL SHINGLE. GEORGE A. BELDING, Billings, Mont. Filed Oct. 20, 1922. Serial No. 595,770. 5 Claims. (Cl. 108—17.)

1. A sheet metal shingle or the like having an upturned flange on one end and an underturned L-flange on the other end provided with a downturned, outwardly inclined lip for engagement with the next lower shingle and a clip having a socket engaging over the upturned flange on one shingle and with a flange on one side secured to a roof and a tongue flange on the other side engaging the L-flange of an overlapping shingle, there being an upwardly inclined lip on the engaging tongue of the clip.

1,539,633. DISPLAY PANEL. FRANK W. BENTON and CHARLES C. BENTON, Wilson, N. C. Filed Aug. 25, 1924. Serial No. 734,084. 11 Claims. (Cl. 40—125.)

8. A display device comprising a frame having grooves or recesses in opposite sides thereof, a division strip extending between said sides, and retaining members pivotally engaging the ends of the strips and slidably engaging the grooves in the frame sides and adapted to be swung into and out of engagement with said grooves.

1,539,634. SIGNAL. GERTRUDE BESSON, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed Aug. 29, 1924. Serial No. 734,996. 2 Claims. (Cl. 177—329.)



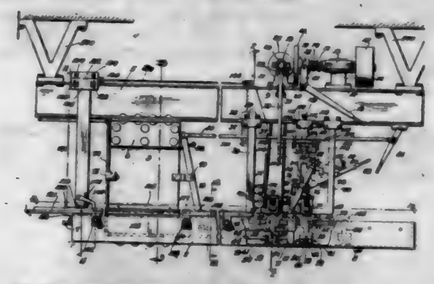
1. An automobile signal comprising a T-shaped support and three rectangular casings, one of the casings having a width co-extensive with the length of the upper arm of the T and suported thereon the other two being located at the sides respectively of the first-named casing with their tops substantially below the top of said first-named casing and supported at the ends of the upper arm of the T, a signal plate for each of said casings, means on the latter for slidably receiving a signal plate in a face of the casings, and holding means providing for the removal of said signal plates at the top of the first casing and the outer sides of the outside casings, substantially as set forth.

1,539,635. THERMOSTATIC CIRCUIT CLOSER. JOHN M. BIGGS, Helena, Ark. Filed Oct. 31, 1921. Serial No. 511,870. 3 Claims. (Cl. 200—142.)

1. A circuit closer comprising a pair of substantially flat plates, means for securing said plates in superposed relation, said plates being formed of non-conducting material, the contacting faces of said plates being provided with arcuate cavities, radial cavities extending from the ends of said arcuate cavities to the edge of said plates, the bottom of each of said radial cavities being open, the cavities in one plate being adapted to aline with the cavities in the other plate to form a central recess, a pair of contacting members arranged in the arcuate portion of said recess, the upper ends of said conductors extending through the portion of the recess formed by the radial cavities and projecting beyond the edges of the plates, the lower end of said conductor members being offset and projecting from said plate through the portion of the recess formed by the open bottom of said cavities, and a combustible element normally retaining said offset ends in spaced relation.

1,539,636. MOLD. JOHN F. BITRICH, Chicago, Ill. Filed Sept. 29, 1924. Serial No. 740,665. 4 Claims. (Cl. 25—124.)

1. A concrete form including spaced circular walls, an annular flange at the upper end of the outer wall, spaced circular rings positioned above the upper ends of said walls, means connecting one of said rings with the flange on the outer wall, means connecting the inner ring with the inner wall and means positioned below said rings and engaging the hoisting power above said rings.



1,539,637. DENTAL INSTRUMENT. FINN J. BRONNER, Bradford, Pa. Filed June 4, 1923. Serial No. 643,312. 3 Claims. (Cl. 32—15.)

1. In a hollow medicated liquid applying device, a hollow penetrating instrument, a tube to which the instrument is connected, a cylinder slidably applied to the said tube, the said tube and cylinder having means of communication, a cleaning pin stationary with relation to the instrument rotating means, and means whereby medicated fluid is delivered to the interior of the cylinder.

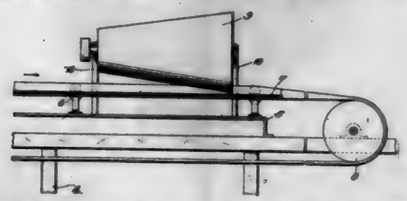
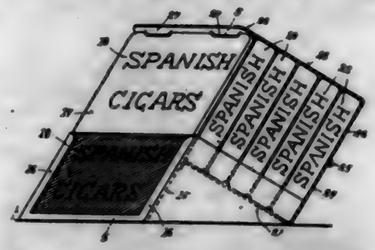
1,539,638. WELDING MACHINE. WILLIAM L. BROOKINS, Caledonia, Pa. Filed Feb. 28, 1922. Serial No. 539,887. 34 Claims. (Cl. 78—83.)



34. The combination of welding mechanism, means for feeding split shells under and past the welding mechanism, means to bear upon the inner surface of the shell at the sides of the split whereby to force said sides together at the point of welding, and means to apply a cooling medium to the inner surface of the shell at the split as it passes the welding mechanism.

1,539,639. HOLDER FOR PHOTOGRAPHIC PLATES. LEOPOLD C. BRUCKER, New York, N. Y. Filed Oct. 15, 1923. Serial No. 668,673. 5 Claims. (Cl. 95—100.)

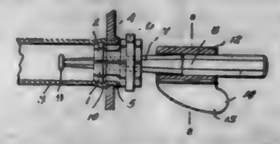


1. A holder for photographic plates comprising a frame, means for locking a photographic plate in said frame, and substitute rockers disposed beneath said frame.

1,539,640. MAGNETIC SEPARATOR. EDWARD H. BRUNS, St. Louis, Mo. Filed July 21, 1924. Serial No. 727,187. 6 Claims. (Cl. 83—71.)

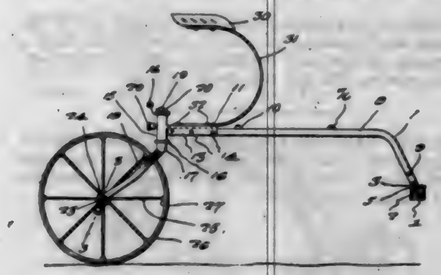
1. In combination with a movable belt for conveying garbage, refuse, etc., a cone shape interceptor mounted above said belt and having its longitudinal axis arranged to lie parallel to the longitudinal axis of said belt for removing various sized bodies of predetermined characteristics from said garbage.

1,539,641. DISPLAY AND VENDING APPARATUS. EDWARD BRUNHOFF, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor to The Brunhoff Manufacturing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 2, 1923. Serial No. 672,433. 4 Claims. (Cl. 211—24.)



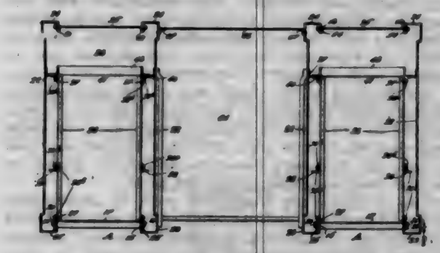
1. A display and vending apparatus comprising a supporting frame having a receptacle to receive a plurality of original packages in a row one in rear of another and to present and utilize the advertising matter upon the front of the packages for display purposes, a detachable advertising plate having a transparent section mounted in guides upon the front of said supporting frame, and a lid member extending from rear to front of said supporting frame transversely across the top of said original packages to retain said original packages in position.

1,539,642. JACK. ARTHUR E. BURNSIDE, South Jacksonville, Fla. Filed June 25, 1924. Serial No. 722,379. 2 Claims. (Cl. 254—103.)



2. A jack of the class described comprising a spirally threaded shaft, a housing movably mounted on the shaft, a nut member rotatably supported in the housing and engaging the shaft, motor operated means for rotating the nut member circuits for the motor, switches arranged in the circuits and located on the housing and circuit breakers adjustably mounted on the shaft adjacent its ends for opening the switches.

1,539,643. FLUE EXPANDER. CARL BUSH, Mattoon, Ill. Filed Sept. 22, 1923. Serial No. 664,302. 2 Claims. (Cl. 153—80.)



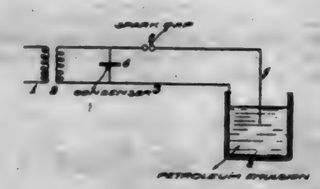
1. In combination a flue expander including an expansible head, a tapered expanding pin polygonal shaped in cross-section, an extractor mounted upon said pin and provided with a polygonal bore for fitting about the pin, said extractor adapted to have pressure applied thereto to release the expansible flue expanding head, and means for preventing removal of the expansible head from the pin.

1,539,644. RIDING ATTACHMENT FOR HARROWS. MORTIMER D. CADY, Amiret, Minn. Filed May 29, 1924. Serial No. 716,767. 2 Claims. (Cl. 55—91.)

1. A device of the class described comprising a plate formed with a bearing, a pair of angularly arranged frame bars having adjacently arranged ends mounted on said plate and diverging therefrom, adjustable and pivotal connections between the opposite ends of said frame bars and the frame of a harrow, a wheel carrying fork rotatably mounted in the bearing of the plate member, and a rider's seat mounted on said plate member.

1,539,645. DESK. EARL J. CARD, Jamestown, N. Y., assignor to Art Metal Construction Company, Jamestown, N. Y. Filed Aug. 18, 1921. Serial No. 493,208. 15 Claims. (Cl. 45—6.)

9. In a metal desk, the combination of side supporting members, means detachably connecting said side members at the front of the desk, a back member connecting said side members at the rear of the desk, said back member having tongues at its opposite vertical edges, and lateral flanges spaced inwardly from said edges, and disposed opposite to and spaced from said side members, said side members having in their inner sides vertical grooves into which said tongues extend in the direction of the plane of the back member, and releasable fastenings connecting said flanges and side members and acting when tightened to draw said flanges and side members toward each other to force said tongues firmly into said grooves and rigidly but detachably connect said side and back members.



1,539,646. FISHING REEL. PLINT CATUCCI, Newark, N. J. Filed Feb. 26, 1924. Serial No. 695,181. 8 Claims. (Cl. 242—84.5.)

1. In a fishing reel, the combination of a reel frame having head and back plates, a spool mounted to rotate between said plates, means for rotating said spool to wind a line thereon, an anti-back-lash device mounted upon the said back plate, comprising a brake lever having a screw threaded stem pivoted upon said back plate, a brake shoe upon said lever and a tension device mounted upon said frame, in engagement with the free end of said brake lever and actuated by the tension in the line for swinging said lever and brake shoe downwardly and outwardly away from the flange of said spool, and a spring upon said back plate engaging said lever to swing the same with said brake shoe into frictional engagement with said spool flange as and when the tension in said line is relaxed.

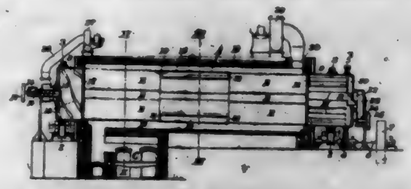
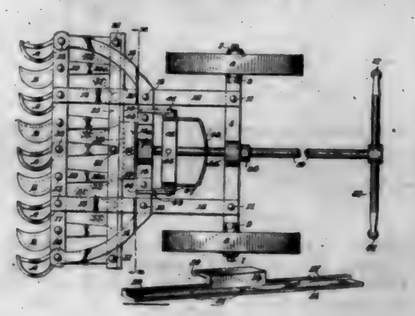
1,539,647. SEPARATING PETROLEUM EMULSIONS. DONALD ERNEST CHASE, London, England, assignor to Naamloose Vennootschap de Bataafsche Petroleum Maatschappij, The Hague, Netherlands. Filed June 3, 1924. Serial No. 717,559. 2 Claims. (Cl. 204—25.)



1. A process of separating the phases of emulsions by electrical treatment which comprises applying the electrical energy to the liquid in the form of a high frequency alternating current.

1,539,648. AMUSEMENT APPARATUS. ERNEST F. CHESTER and CHARLES P. CHESTER, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 7, 1922. Serial No. 605,406. 23 Claims. (Cl. 46—57.)

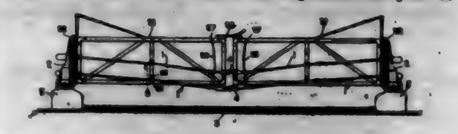


1. In a multi-contestant game, the combination of target means, a plurality of separately operable missile-projecting means each including a manual actuator, normally ineffective locking means for each projecting means, and means manually operable at will to render all said locking means simultaneously effective.

1,539,649. DRIER. LINDSAY R. CHRISTIE, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Duff Patents Company, Incorporated, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed July 3, 1923. Serial No. 649,206. 11 Claims. (Cl. 34—6.)

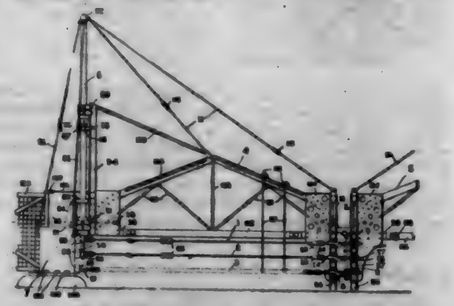
7. In a drier, a rotatable drum for receiving material to be dried, said drum comprising a single compartment at each end thereof, and a plurality of drying compartments extending longitudinally of the drum and communicating at their opposite ends with said end compartments, said drying compartments being separated from each other by a plurality of heat ducts extending transversely through the drum and opening through the outer shell of the latter, said outer shell being continuous and imperforate throughout a substantial longitudinal section of the drum spaced a substantial distance from both ends of the latter, substantially as described.

1,539,650. BUSH TRIMMER. KARIMER DOMBECK, Amsterdam, N. Y. Filed Dec. 20, 1923. Serial No. 681,768. 2 Claims. (Cl. 56—246.)



1. In a bush trimmer, a wheel supported frame having a pair of transversely disposed vertically spaced bars at its forward end, shear blades arranged in sets with the blades of one set alternating with the blades of the other, said blades being pivoted between said bars and having offset shanks extending rearwardly from the bars, a pair of bars each having the shanks of a respective set of blades pivoted thereto, racks on the confronting faces of said bars, a pinion between and meshing with the racks, a shaft journalled in said frame and carrying said pinion, and a handle on the rear end of said shaft.

1,539,651. BARRIER FOR FERRIES, DRAWBRIDGES, AND THE LIKE. WILLIAM J. DONOVAN, Boston, Mass. Filed Jan. 9, 1922. Serial No. 527,898. 8 Claims. (Cl. 39—1.)



1. In a barrier for drawbridges, ferry boats and the like, the combination with two posts, of a flexible barrier connected at its ends to the posts and suspended therefrom, and means partially supporting the barrier in such a manner that the barrier may be freed therefrom upon being struck by a moving vehicle.

8. In a device of the class described, the combination with two posts, of an eye bolt yieldingly sustained by each post, a flexible barrier extending from one post to the other, a link member connected to each end of the barrier and connected to one of the eye bolts, and a projection on each post co-operating with the link member to prevent the eye bolt from turning.

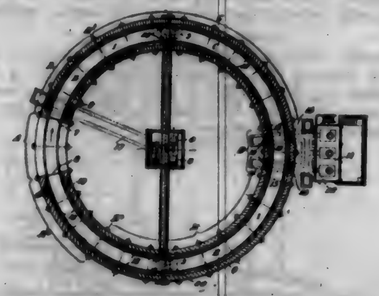
1,539,652. BARRIER FOR FERRIES, DRAWBRIDGES, AND THE LIKE. WILLIAM J. DONOVAN, East Boston, Mass. Filed Oct. 12, 1923. Serial No. 668,238. 22 Claims. (Cl. 39—1.)

1. In a barrier for closing the path on drawbridges, ferry boats and the like, the combination with two posts on either side of the path, of a flexible barrier comprising two sections suspended from the posts at their outer ends with their inner ends adjacent one another, a hook fastened to the inner end of one section, a link fastened to the inner end of the other section for removable engagement with said hook, and means operable to move said link longitudinally along the hook until the link is free from the point thereof and then to move the link away therefrom, thereby to disconnect the link from engagement with the hook.



6. In a barrier for closing the path on drawbridges, ferry boats and the like, the combination with two posts on either side of the path, of a flexible barrier comprising two sections suspended from the posts at their outer ends with their inner ends extending toward one another, means removably connecting the inner ends of the barrier sections, barrier supports swingably carried by said posts and supporting said connecting means in such manner that upon being struck by a moving vehicle the barrier supports may swing away from the barriers, and locking means operable when the barrier supports swing away from the barrier to lock the connecting means in position connecting the ends of the barriers.

13. In a barrier for closing the path on drawbridges, ferry boats and the like, the combination with two posts on either side of the path, of gates swingably carried by said posts at their outer ends with their inner ends adjacent one another, a pin projecting from the inner end of one gate, a bar projecting from the inner end of the other gate past the inner end of the first mentioned gate, and a hook extending from said bar for hooking over said pin whereby the gates are normally held shut but when struck they may swing open, and when one gate is struck its movement opens the other gate.

22. In a barrier for closing the path on drawbridges, ferry boats and the like, the combination with two posts on either side of the path, of a flexible barrier suspended between the posts, a barrier support supporting the barrier intermediate of the posts and automatically disconnectable from the barrier when struck, an elongated longitudinally extensible bowed buffer yielding transversely of the support and fastened at its ends to the support with the bow projecting in front of the barrier so that it may flatten against the support when struck and force the support away from the barrier.

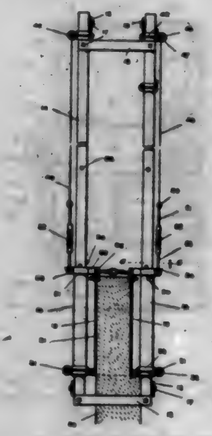
1,539,653. ANNULAR MUFFLE FURNACE OR OVEN. ARTHUR MCDOUGALL DUCKHAM, London, England, assignor to Woodall, Duckham & Jones (1920) Limited, London, England. Filed July 24, 1923. Serial No. 653,576. 12 Claims. (Cl. 25—144.)

1. An annular muffle furnace or kiln comprising a heating section having enclosing walls separating it from the heating gases, a multiple arrangement of heating flues in said walls traversed by the heating gases, a plurality of gas supply flues leading to said heating flues, and damper means adapted to connect the gas flues with the heating flues in alternative parallel arrangements, the heating flues being otherwise isolated from each other along their length.



1,539,654. COOKSTOVE. MIKOLAJ DUSIENCZUK, Ellwood City, Pa. Filed June 26, 1924. Serial No. 722,516. 1 Claim. (Cl. 126—5.)

In a cook stove of the type described, a well formed in the stove for conducting heat from the oven of the stove into the room in which the stove is located for heating said room, and a valve structure carried by said well for controlling the amount of heat conducted, said valve structure including an inverted cup-shaped element slidable in said well and having apertures in its top, a stem connected to the cup-shaped element and having a T-shaped head, and a lid for the top of said well slidably carried by the T-shaped head.

1,539,655. WALL-MOLDING APPARATUS. WALTER THEODORE FELS, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor of one-half to Alice Corcoran, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Aug. 4, 1924. Serial No. 729,965. 6 Claims. (Cl. 25—131.)

1. In a wall molding apparatus, a frame including uprights, members slidable vertically on said uprights, a form including a side plate having its upper edge portion hingedly connected with said members for the swinging movement of the lower edge portion of said plate toward and away from said uprights, and means carried by said members and connected to the lower edge portion of said plate for swinging the plate toward and away from the uprights.

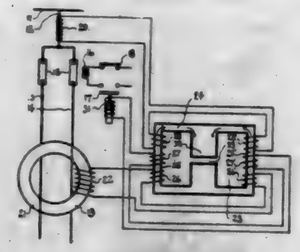
1,539,656. SHOCK ABSORBER. JESSE TOM FERGUSON, Meridian, Miss. Filed Oct. 12, 1923. Serial No. 668,152. 2 Claims. (Cl. 188—129.)

1. A shock absorber comprising a main member having resilient parts located side by side and adjustably connected, and an auxiliary member L-shaped in form one arm of which is equipped with means for connecting it to a vehicle axle and the other composed of laterally spaced resilient members fixed to opposite sides of said axle connected arm and located side by side, a loop-shaped friction element surrounding said resilient members and received slidably and closely between the parts of the main member, and means for adjusting the free ends of the resilient members of said head toward and away from each other to vary the pressure exerted by the friction element on the main element.

1,539,657. ROCK AND COAL DUST DETERMINING CABINET. ARNO CARL FIELDNER, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed July 18, 1924. Serial No. 726,884. 11 Claims. (Cl. 23—253.)



1. A rock and coal dust determining cabinet comprising a case having a plurality of vertical side walls, a bottom and a top, and a pair of horizontal partitions disposed between the said walls, the upper partition of said pair constituting a weighing table terminating short of the lower partition, and the projecting portion of the lower partition constituting a testing apparatus holding table freely exposed thereabove throughout its entire extent.

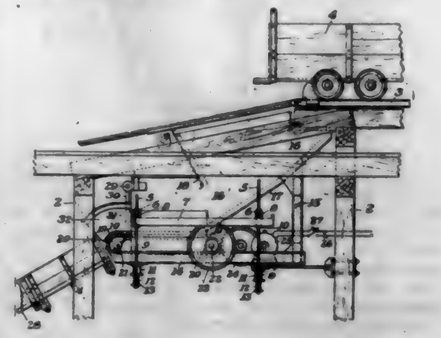
1,539,658. PROTECTIVE APPARATUS. ALAN S. FITZGERALD, Finchley, England, assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed May 23, 1924. Serial No. 715,461. 11 Claims. (Cl. 175—294.)

1. In an electric alternating current system, the combination of two conductors adapted to carry alternating currents of a predetermined ratio of magnitude, a magnetic structure adapted to be magnetized by the currents in the said conductors, a winding on said structure adapted to be excited only when said conductors carry currents differing from said predetermined ratio, and an electro-responsive device controlled in accordance with the current in said winding, said conductors and winding being so related to said structure as to regulate the effect of said current on said electro-responsive device inversely as the magnitude of the currents carried by said conductors.



1,539,659. CHAFING SHIELD. SADIE A. FITZPATRICK, Lowell, Mass. Filed July 26, 1922. Serial No. 577,551. 1 Claim. (Cl. 128—149.)

A chafing shield, consisting of two twin members arranged oppositely, each having a free curved upper edge conforming to the shape of the body at the crotch and provided with upper extensions at front and rear extending upwardly into horizontal alignment with the waist of the wearer and having direct permanent vertical seam connection with each other at their upper ends and provided with belt loops, said members including said extensions being each cut from a single sheet of material, the main portions of the two members of the shield being free and unconnected and having a ventilating opening between the same along their curved upper edges and extending to near the waist line of the wearer at front and back, said free curved upper edge being marginal to said ventilating opening, and the two members being foldable into flat form for ironing purposes.

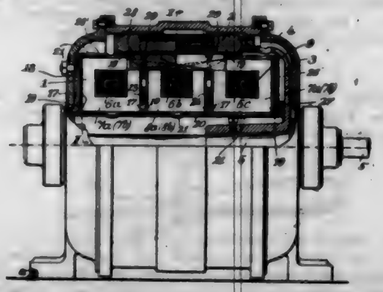
1,539,660. WEIGH BASKET. FRANK L. FLEMING, Carrick Borough, Pa., assignor to Phillips Mine & Mill Supply Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 30, 1923. Serial No. 677,905. 8 Claims. (Cl. 265—27.)

1. The combination with a weigh-basket for coal or the like, of an endless conveyor carried on said weigh-basket for forming a movable bottom for the weigh-basket hopper, means for driving said conveyor, and yielding means positioned over the forward end portion of said conveyor for retarding the discharge of the coal from the hopper by said conveyor, substantially as described.



1,539,661. HUMIDIFIER FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. VAL F. FRANCK, Louisville, Ky. Filed May 29, 1923. Serial No. 642,284. 1 Claim. (Cl. 123—25.)

In an internal combustion engine, a humidifier having an upstanding wall, spaced apart rearwardly extending solid arms integral with said wall at the margin thereof adapted to embrace and to be connected to the exhaust pipe of the engine, a lateral wall integral with the upstanding wall and extending in the opposite direction therefrom to said arms, an imperforate normally removable cap engaging said lateral wall and jointly with the same and said upstanding wall forming a vaporizer chamber, and means connected with said lateral wall between the upstanding wall and cap having communication with a source of water supply whereby a humidifying charge may be furnished to the engine.

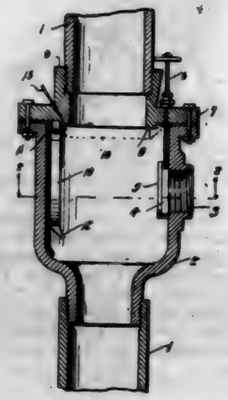
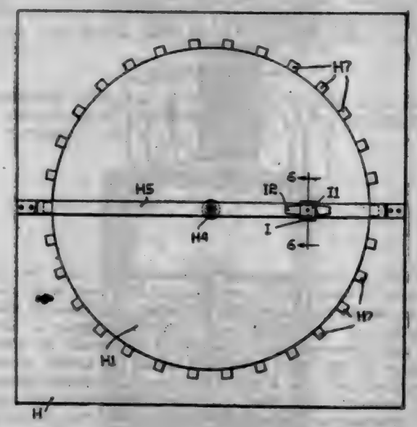
1,539,662. ELECTRIC ALTERNATING-CURRENT MACHINE. HEINRICH FREI, Oberengstringen, near Zurich, Switzerland. Filed Feb. 13, 1922. Serial No. 536,269. 11 Claims. (Cl. 172—280.)

1. In an alternating current machine, three sets of magnets consisting of packets of magnetic sheets and three separate coaxially arranged ring coils for exciting said magnets, the packets of magnetic sheets of each magnet being symmetrically arranged to the centres of the pole pieces in the pole faces and the magnets of the individual sets being so closely located that the heads of the packets forming the pole faces of one set of magnets are arranged between the heads of the packets of the other sets, forming thereby a substantially uniform concentric polar surface and an armature member with appropriate symmetrically spaced exciting windings, said armature being within the magnetic field of the polar surfaces of the magnetic element.



1,539,663. BLOW-OUT PATCH. MYRON D. GLASSBROOKER, Fresno, Calif. Filed Nov. 19, 1924. Serial No. 750,831. 1 Claim. (Cl. 152—24.)

A boot of the class described comprising a base section constructed of leather, an outer section constructed of leather, a layer of rubber disposed between the sections and secured to the sections, and spurs extending through the outer section and adapted to pierce the inner surface of a tire shoe in which the boot is positioned.



1,539,664. AUTOMATIC SAFETY DRILLING HEAD. SILAS L. GOULD, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Oct. 10, 1923. Serial No. 667,701. 2 Claims. (Cl. 166—15.)

1. A safety device for oil and gas wells comprising a shell adapted to be interposed in the length of the well tube or casing and having an outlet, a valve pivotally mounted in the shell, said valve being normally free and vertically pendent and a lip on the free edge of said valve that is deflected inwardly with respect to the adjacent wall of the shell so that when the valve is in its pendent position the lip is in position to intercept the outflow of the well to initiate the closing of the valve and prevent waste of the product of the well.

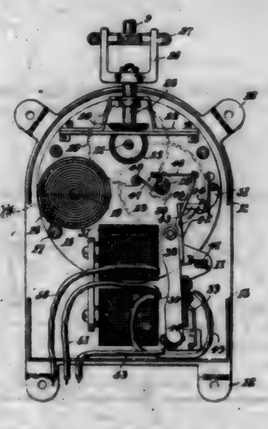
1,539,665. GAME APPARATUS. THOMAS GREEN, Washington, D. C. Filed Apr. 17, 1924. Serial No. 707,215. 13 Claims. (Cl. 273—94.)



13. In a game apparatus of the kind described, a representation of a football field, a circular play diagram and a pointer, said diagram and said pointer being relatively rotatable and the pointer being shiftable relative to the axis of rotation, and said diagram consisting of concentric circles between which are annular sectional play zones bearing indicia identifying a zone for a plurality of purposes and indicating the same values for those purposes, substantially as described.

1,539,666. TRAP. GEORGE H. HAGEMANN, Muscatine, Iowa. Filed Jan. 21, 1924. Serial No. 687,611. 8 Claims. (Cl. 43—81.)

2. A trap comprising a pair of spaced walls one of which is formed with an opening from its inner to its outer side, a spring-actuated jaw mounted between said walls, a jaw-setting link extending from said jaw through said opening and adapted to be pulled outwardly and swung toward said one wall to set said jaw, and trigger-released means for holding said link to retain the jaw in set position.

1,539,667. SPRINKLER SYSTEM. TOMASZ HALAGARDA, Omaha, Nebr. Filed May 11, 1921. Serial No. 468,665; 6 Claims. (Cl. 137—139.)

2. In a valve operating mechanism, a valve having a stem, a shaft supported in axial alinement with said stem, means for connecting said shaft and stem so that rotation of the former will rotate the latter, a pair of gear carrying shafts positioned to extend at right angles to the last mentioned shaft, a spring motor mounted upon one of the last mentioned shafts, means for connecting the first mentioned shaft with the pair of right-angularly arranged shafts, means for normally retaining the spring motor inoperative, electric means for releasing said motor, a normally open circuit for the electric means, and means for closing said circuit when the operation of said valve is desired.

1,539,668. TEA-SERVICE TRAY. EDWARD L. HAMILTON, Long Beach, Calif. Filed Sept. 27, 1923. Serial No. 665,207. 1 Claim. (Cl. 126—261.)

A serving tray consisting of a hollow shallow body of considerable area provided with openings in its top for the retention of dishes, means to heat the hollow space of the tray, and widely spaced posts for an auxiliary tray rising from the top of the said body and each to the same height to dispose the auxiliary tray in spaced relation to and level with said top.

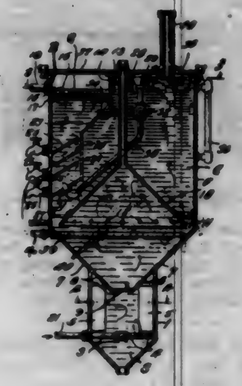
1,539,669. CUTLERY IMPLEMENT. EDWARD HAUSER, New York, N. Y. Filed Oct. 2, 1924. Serial No. 741,470. 5 Claims. (Cl. 294—5.)

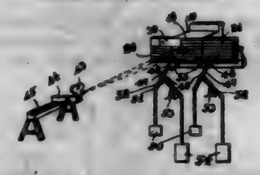


1. A cutlery implement embodying a handle, a supporting member carried by said handle, said supporting member comprising a main penetrating member adapted to penetrate the end of a corn cob and a pair of auxiliary penetrating members, the said auxiliary penetrating members adapted to prevent accidental movement of the corn cob with respect to said implement, and means for angularly adjusting said handle with respect to said supporting member.

1,539,670. STATIONARY INDUCTION APPARATUS. ALLAN B. HENDRICKS, Jr., Pittsfield, Mass., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 24, 1920. Serial No. 360,911. 2 Claims. (Cl. 175—356.)

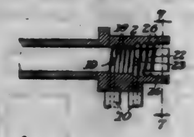
1. In a high voltage transformer, the combination with a core, of a high voltage winding with its turns distributed non-uniformly along said core to withstand the effects of the high voltage, and a low voltage winding with its electrical center coinciding in position along the core with that of the high voltage winding, the distribution of the turns of the low voltage winding along the core substantially corresponding to that of said high voltage turns to reduce displacement forces between said windings.

1,539,671. APPARATUS FOR CLARIFICATION OF GASOLINE. RALPH HOLLAND and JOHN A. WIRT, Laramie, Wyo. Filed Feb. 23, 1924. Serial No. 694,608. 4 Claims. (Cl. 210—52.)



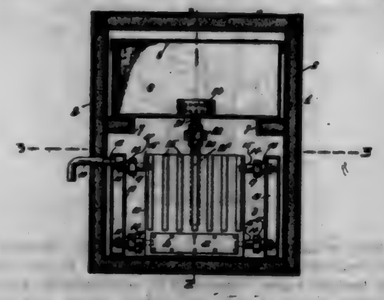
1. In an apparatus for clarifying the solvent used in cleaning fabrics, the combination of a cleaning tank in which the fabrics are placed, a solution tank to which a solution for clarifying solvent is supplied, a conduit leading from the cleaning tank to the solution tank, means for forcing the solvent from the cleaning tank into and through the solution tank, a second tank into which the solution tank discharges the mixture, filtering means arranged in the upper portion of said tank last named, and a conduit arranged to conduct the clean solvent after it has passed through the filtering means back to the cleaning tank in which the fabrics are placed for cleaning.

1,539,672. ELECTRIC-LIGHT INSTALLATION FOR ALTERNATING CURRENT. GILLES HOLST, Eindhoven, Netherlands, assignor to Naamlooze Vennootschap Philips' Gloeilampenfabrieken, Eindhoven, Netherlands, a Limited Liability Company of the Netherlands. Filed Sept. 29, 1920. Serial No. 413,468. 2 Claims. (Cl. 176—8.)



2. An electric lamp having a filament and base with terminals thereon, a condenser in the base, the lamp filament and the condenser being electrically connected in series to the same terminals in the base whereby the flow of current from the source of power is limited by the capacity of the condenser, said lamp and condenser forming a unit structure.

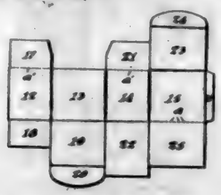
1,539,673. TITLING MACHINE. HARRISON H. HOOD, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Thinmeway Titles, Inc., Hollywood, Calif. Filed Mar. 21, 1923. Serial No. 626,648. 15 Claims. (Cl. 95—85.)



1. In a titling machine, a frame structure for displaying matter to be photographed embodying balancing means for controlling the frame structure in a plane transversely to the focal line of a camera.

1,539,674. METHOD OF MANUFACTURING FLEXIBLE METAL TUBING. EDWARD JAMES, Euclid, Ohio, assignor to The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, Youngstown, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Original application filed Aug. 5, 1911, Serial No. 642,532. Divided and this application filed July 20, 1923. Serial No. 652,737. 5 Claims. (Cl. 153—86.)

1. The method of manufacturing flexible tubing having a plurality of engaging coils of wire, comprising forcing the wires in a tangential direction relative to the formed coils and confining substantially the entire periphery of the last formed convolute of each of the coils during the formation thereof, and forcing the convolutes of an outer coil between the convolutes of an inner coil during such formation, substantially as described.



1,539,675. COOLING APPARATUS. HENRY G. JANCSY, Everett, Mass. Filed Oct. 6, 1922. Serial No. 592,775. 3 Claims. (Cl. 62—67.)

1. A cooler having a chambered heat-insulated body, a receptacle occupying an elevated position within the chamber of the body for containing a cooling medium, a cooling unit located below said receptacle within the chamber of said body and comprising a hollow plate arranged to occupy an upright position within said chamber, said plate having an outlet at the top thereof and a clean-out opening at the bottom, an escape pipe connection leading from said outlet, a detachable cover for the clean-out opening, and a pipe connection leading from said receptacle into the interior of said plate and terminating therein at a point adjacent said clean-out opening.

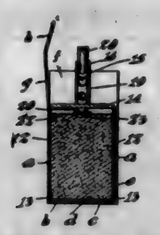
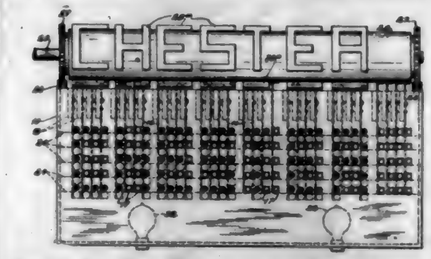
1,539,676. ICE-CREAM BOX AND METHOD OF MAKING THE SAME. ELIE W. LABOMBARDE, Nashua, N. H. Filed Jan. 16, 1924. Serial No. 686,511. 4 Claims. (Cl. 229—38.)



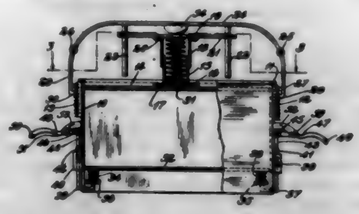
1. A foldable box blank cut and creased to provide four wall sections with foldable bottom and top flaps, said blank having an integral but separable section having an area and adapted and intended to closely fit the inside of the box when said blank is folded and set up to box form and to be freely pushed through the box.

1,539,677. LEAK-TIGHT FOLDED BOX. ELIE W. LABOMBARDE, Nashua, N. H. Filed July 12, 1924. Serial No. 725,542. 3 Claims. (Cl. 229—38.)



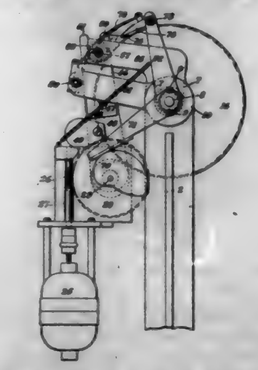
3. A paper box having interfolded bottom members one of which has a flap tucked upwardly against the inside of one of the walls of the box, another of said bottom members having an edge bearing against the said upwardly tucked flap, said bearing edge being curved from end to end.

1,539,678. METHOD OF PACKAGING ICE CREAM. ELIE W. LABOMBARDE, Nashua, N. H. Filed Sept. 11, 1924. Serial No. 737,081. 2 Claims. (Cl. 107—48.)



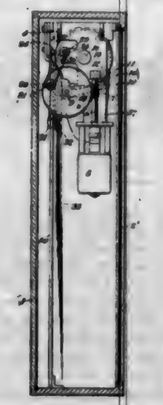
1. The method of producing a leak-tight package of plastic material contained in a paper box having interfolded bottom joints, consisting in mechanically holding the bottom joints of said box tightly closed, and while said joints are so held forcing the said material into said box and against the bottom thereof.

1,539,679. CAR STREET SIGN. ENOCH J. LARSON, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Dec. 27, 1923. Serial No. 683,006. 4 Claims. (Cl. 40—45.)



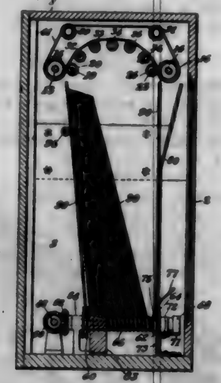
3. A car street sign, comprising an outer casing having a plurality of holes, and securely fixed to a street railway car roof, said casing having rigidly secured to outer top edges a pair of toothed tracks, a plurality of hole closing members, a roller mounted for rotation to depress said members in accordance with a predetermined outline on the roller to thereby open certain of said holes and having gear wheels to engage said toothed tracks for rotating the roller, said roller being carried on a suitable shaft carried in suitable bearings, said bearings being rigidly fixed to a suitable support.

1,539,680. HAM BOILER. RICHARD LIPPERT, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 30, 1925. Serial No. 19,337. 2 Claims. (Cl. 100—57.)



1. In a ham boiler, a movable top plate, a means for depressing said top plate, a means for locking said top plate in its depressed position, and a movable bottom plate in said container, a pair of springs engaging said bottom plate, a pair of angular brackets, tups at their inner ends forming seats for said springs, a means for operating said movable bottom plate to press against the bottom of the ham in the container and a means for locking the parts in their adjusted pressure exerting positions.

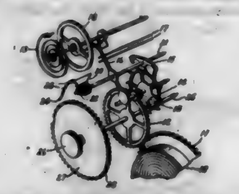
1,539,681. DISPLAY APPARATUS. LESLIE R. MCDONALD, Montreal, Quebec, Canada, Filed Mar. 17, 1923. Serial No. 625,928. 29 Claims. (Cl. 50—35.)



1. In a display apparatus, the combination of a rotatable placard carrier, a series of flexible placards each carried by one end thereby and adapted to be rolled in close contact with each other around the carrier, the free ends of the placards being of substantially the normal thickness thereof, and mechanical means for engaging with and successively separating the free ends of the placards.

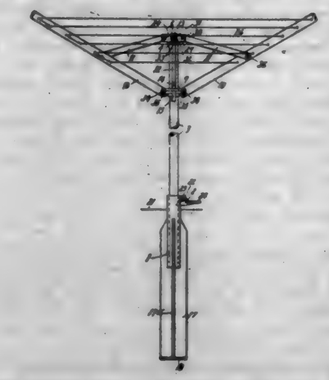
1,539,682. DISPLAY APPARATUS. LESLIE R. MCDONALD, Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Filed Mar. 20, 1924. Serial No. 700,536. 10 Claims. (Cl. 40—35.)

1. In a display apparatus, the combination of rotating means and a rotatable placard carrier, a series of flexible placards each attached by one end thereto and partially rolled thereupon with their free ends depending therefrom, and means for engaging and lifting the free end of a placard.



1,539,683. DISPLAY APPARATUS. LESLIE R. MCDONALD, Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Filed Apr. 1, 1924. Serial No. 703,386. 25 Claims. (Cl. 40—36.)

1. In a display apparatus, the combination of a plurality of independent, flexible placards, with supporting and shifting means embodying a pair of worms each having an enlarged end and placard transferring means.



1,539,684. TIMING DEVICE. FREDRICK S. MARCELLUS and JESSE J. POWERS, Schenectady, N. Y., assignors to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 7, 1923. Serial No. 661,456. 1 Claim. (Cl. 58—33.)

In combination, an escapement clock work, an escapement shaft therefor, a pair of resilient electrical contact arms secured to said shaft, and relatively stationary electrical contacts in spaced relation to said escapement shaft, said resilient contact arms being arranged to be respectively oscillated against said relatively stationary contacts to stop the oscillatory movements of said shaft at the extremities of its normal oscillation.

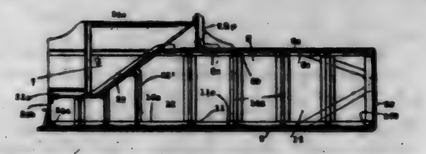
1,539,685. CLOTHES DRIER. JOHN C. MICHAUD, Springfield, Mass. Filed July 19, 1924. Serial No. 726,925. 9 Claims. (Cl. 68—34.)

1. The combination, in a clothes drier, with a ground support consisting in part of a slotted socket, and a member pivotally connected with said socket, and comprising at one end a cover to close the top of said socket, and at the other end a lock to enter the slot in said socket, according to the position of said member, of a slotted reel post receivable in said socket, and adapted to receive in its slot said lock.

1,539,686. PICK COUNTER FOR LOOMS. ALBERT H. MORTON, Lowell, Mass., assignor to Morton & Morton, Inc., Lowell, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Dec. 21, 1921. Serial No. 523,984. 2 Claims. (Cl. 235—1.)

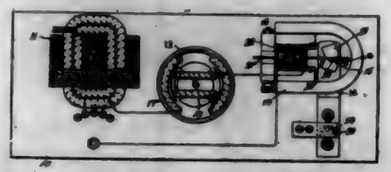


1. In a counting mechanism, the combination of a pair of counters; a drive shaft; a sleeve attached thereto; a driving element common to both counters and eccentrically related to said sleeve; and means for rotating said sleeve to shift the driving element out of driving relation to either counter into driving relation to the other.

1,539,687. WATER-CIRCULATING ATTACHMENT FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. GOTTLIEB MULLER, Philadelphia, Pa.; John B. Taylor administrator of said Gottlieb Muller, deceased. Filed Mar. 28, 1923. Serial No. 628,267. 1 Claim. (Cl. 123—175.)

In a combination an internal combustion engine having a water cooling system including a radiator and an inclined circulating pipe extending upwardly from the radiator bottom; a fitting for said pipe forming a propeller shaft bearing, an engine shaft, a fan belt pulley on the latter, an auxiliary grooved pulley detachably connected to the front of said fan belt pulley, a propeller shaft having a bearing in said fitting and horisontally extended therefrom, a propeller arranged in said fitting and fixed to the propeller shaft for positively circulating water through said pipe direct from the radiator bottom to the radiator top, a propeller shaft pulley, a belt connecting said engine shaft and propeller shaft, an idler over which the propeller shaft belt travels, and an arm adjustably supported at one end and carrying said idler at its other end, said auxiliary pulley, idler and propeller shaft pulley being in the same vertical plane and in advance of said fan belt pulley.

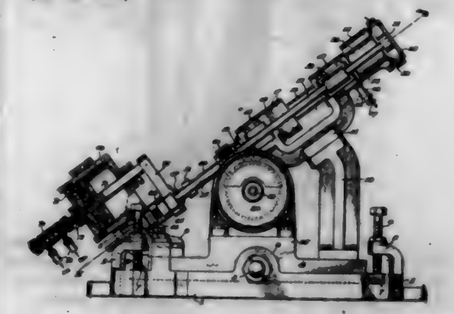
1,539,688. WELDED LOCOMOTIVE TENDER. JOSEPH WILLIAM MURPHY, Springfield, Mass. Filed Mar. 22, 1922. Serial No. 545,811. 2 Claims. (Cl. 105—236.)



1. A locomotive tender having its bottom, side and end walls constructed of parts welded to each other, each of the walls being reinforced interiorly by angle beams welded to said walls, the welded joints between the angle beams and the walls providing inclinde surfaces capable of excluding all water and thus preventing a scouring action of the water of the tender between the angle beams and the engaged walls.

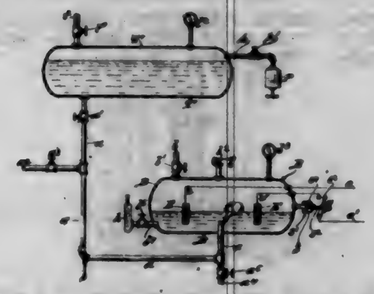
1,539,689. MANUFACTURE OF VAT COLORING MATTERS. PAUL NAWIASKY and KARL SAUERWEIN, Ludwigshafen-on-the-Rhine, Germany, assignors to Badische Anilin- & Soda-Fabrik, Ludwigshafen-on-the Rhine, Germany, a Corporation of Germany. Filed Oct. 23, 1923. Serial No. 670,243. 3 Claims. (Cl. 260—60.)

1. As new articles of manufacture, vat coloring matters of the anthraquinone series representing anthraquinone carboxylic acid amide with a hydrogen atom of the amid group substituted by an anthraquinone residue and besides containing in one of the anthraquinone residues a group NHR in which R is a hydrogen atom or a radical other than an anthraquinone carboxylic acid residue, which coloring matters produce from orange to violet, but generally reddish shades, and dissolves in alkaline hydrosulfite solution brownish-red and are decomposed by boiling with alcoholic potassium hydroxid solution.



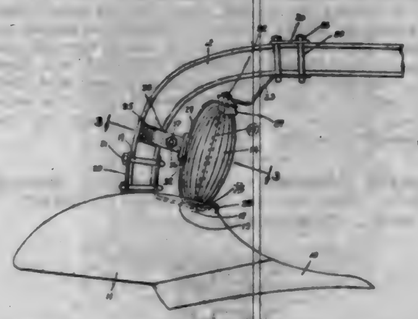
1,539,690. STROBOSCOPIC DEVICE. CLIFFORD A. NICKLE, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 7, 1924. Serial No. 730,718. 6 Claims. (Cl. 171—245.)

3. A stroboscopic device comprising a vibratory member provided with an observation opening, an electromagnetic vibrator responsive to an alternating current for vibrating said member, a source of alternating current for supplying said vibrator, a phase angle adjuster having relatively movable parts connected between said source of supply and vibrator for changing the phase angle of the current supplied to said vibrator with respect to the phase of the source of supply, a scale secured in fixed relation with one of the parts of said phase angle adjuster and a pointer cooperating with said scale secured to the other part of said phase angle adjuster whereby the phase angle adjustment may be determined.



6. The method of measuring changes in the angle of lead or lag of a synchronous dynamo electric machine under different operating conditions which consists in observing the rotating element of said machine with a stroboscopic device which is energized from the alternating current terminals of said machine, changing the phase angle relation of the current supplied to said stroboscopic device so as to obtain the same stroboscopic appearance of the rotating element before and after the change in operating condition and then measuring the phase angle through which the current is adjusted.

1,539,691. CENTRIFUGAL CASTING MACHINE. BENJAMIN NOBLE, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Capitol Brass Works, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed July 19, 1922. Serial No. 576,025. 12 Claims. (Cl. 22—65.)

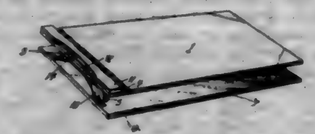


11. In a casting machine, a mold body, a mold shell detachably mounted in said body, an ejector extending into said mold shell and forming the bottom of a mold cavity in said shell, an air valve communicating with said mold shell and adapted to admit air to said mold shell, for cooling and cleaning purposes, and means adapted to simultaneously adjust said air valve and said ejector.

1,539,692. ELECTRICAL STEAM GENERATION. THEODALD H. NOLL, New York, N. Y. Filed Aug. 31, 1923. Serial No. 660,287. 5 Claims. (Cl. 219—40.)

1. In electrical steam heating apparatus of the character designated, the combination of a liquid reservoir tank, means for injecting air under pressure thereinto, a boiler connected with said reservoir tank by means which admit of the transfer of liquid from said tank to said boiler, electrodes positioned in said boiler and connected with an electric circuit, and an exit service steam conduit connected with said boiler, substantially in the manner and for the purpose set forth.

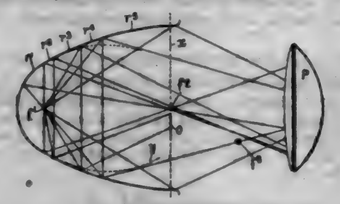
1,539,693. NONCHOKING ATTACHMENT FOR PLOWS. FLORIAN C. ORR, Hamlet, Ind. Filed Aug. 6, 1923. Serial No. 655,977. 4 Claims. (Cl. 91—194.)



1. The combination with a plow having a mold board and plow beam, of a choking prevention roller pivotally mounted and spaced between the two, and a deflector depending from said beams and above the roller and therebetween and extending rearwardly and laterally adjacent the roller.

1,539,694. ABRASIVE COMPOSITION. HENRY R. POWER, Niagara Falls, N. Y., assignor to The Carborundum Company, Niagara Falls, N. Y., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 5, 1921. Serial No. 458,803. 8 Claims. (Cl. 51—280.)

1. An abrasive composition comprising abrasive particles and a gum, said composition being substantially free from either silicate of soda or oil, substantially as described.



1,539,695. LOOSE-LEAF BINDER. EDWARD A. PRATT, Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 18, 1921. Serial No. 453,491. 9 Claims. (Cl. 129—5.)

1. In a binder of the character described, in combination, top and bottom cover members, posts upstanding from the bottom cover member, the top cover member having openings to receive said posts, a closure on the top cover to enclose the upper ends of said posts, and cut away for a portion of its length along the rear marginal edge of the binder, and a slidable plate within said closure adapted to have an impinging locking relation with said posts, and having an exposed finger hold portion coincident with the cut away portion of said closure.

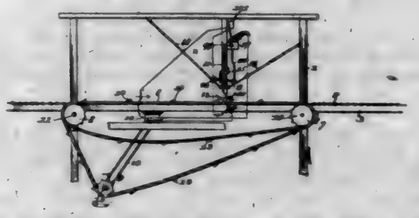
1,539,696. LAMP. DUNCAN JAMES RITCHIE, London, England. Filed June 16, 1921. Serial No. 478,089. 3 Claims. (Cl. 240—41.)

1. In a head lamp, a reflector having a rear ellipsoidal portion and successive zones curving outwardly therefrom in a continuous curve, a source of light at one focus of such ellipsoidal portion, a projecting lens with vertical corrugations with the second focus of the rear portion substantially in the principal focal plane of the lens, and an obturator with an operative edge positioned transversely of the reflector in the focal plane of the lens, whereby the light collected by the reflector and directed through the lens forms a beam with a well defined upper limit, and a lateral spread at right angles to the corrugations of the lens greater than its spread in a direction parallel to such corrugations.

1,539,697. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR COATING CINEMATOGRAPH AND OTHER FILMS. EDWARD ROBERTSON, Marylebone, London, and LIONEL M. WYLLIE, St. Pancras, London, England. Filed Jan. 5, 1923. Serial No. 610,936. 9 Claims. (Cl. 91—43.)



1. The method of coating cinematographic films in which the whole surface of the film including the perforated edges, is coated with a coating liquid adapted when dry to permanently coat and strengthen the film and the perforations are kept clear of the coating material by causing one side of the film to pass under a distributing pad saturated with the said coating liquid while the other side of the film is in intimate contact with an absorbent pad approximately as wide as the film, the said film being elastically pressed between the pads so that any coating material passing through the perforations is absorbed, the holes remaining unclogged and the under-side or back of the film is wiped and kept free from any ridges or drops of coating material.

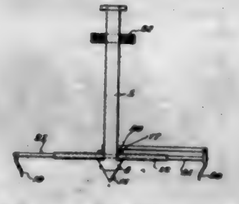
2. Apparatus for coating cinematographic and other films comprising a reservoir for the coating liquid, a distributer, adapted to coat the whole width of the film, a pipe connection between the reservoir and the distributer, an absorbent pad mounted below the film to receive the coating material, the said pad being approximately as wide as the film and adapted to receive such coating material as passes through the perforations and beyond the edges of the film, means for supporting the said pad, means for causing the film to be elastically pressed between the distributer and the pad, a spreading device to render the coating on the film uniform, means for supporting said spreading device, an absorbent pad below the said spreading device and means for elastically pressing the film between the said spreading device and said pad, substantially as set forth.

1,539,698. APPARATUS FOR CHECKING OR TALLYING UP LUMBER. EDMUND F. ROHTIGER, Thornton, Ark., assignor of one-half to The Stout Lumber Company, Thornton, Ark., a Corporation of Arkansas. Filed Oct. 10, 1921. Serial No. 506,589. 10 Claims. (Cl. 33—142.)

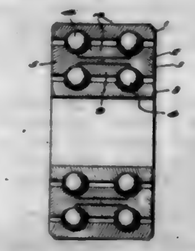


1. In a lumber tallying mechanism, a lumber conveyor driven at a definite rate of speed and having means whereby boards may be placed thereon at right angles to the path of movement of the conveyor, a counter, means for operatively connecting the conveyor with the counter to drive the latter from the former which includes board actuated means keeping the connecting means in operation while the board is passing a predetermined point, and means adapted to engage a board on said conveyor and to vary the relative speed of the counter and conveyor according to the length of the board.

1,539,699. DIRECTION INDICATOR. FREDERICK A. STOLTE, Indianapolis, Ind., assignor to Charles F. Eckler, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed Oct. 14, 1922. Serial No. 594,622. 9 Claims. (Cl. 177—329.)

1. In a direction indicator a housing formed of deformable complementary sections having walls with abutting edges so formed as to be normally spaced apart at their ends while touching between said ends and to be moved by the deformation of the sections into engagement, and means for drawing the ends of the sections into engagement, substantially as set forth.

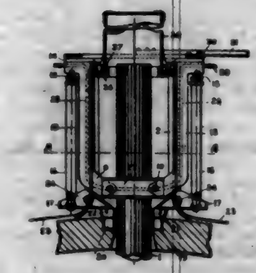
1,539,700. CENTER PUNCH. NICK STRAMAGLIA, Chicago, Ill. Filed Feb. 5, 1921. Serial No. 442,885. 2 Claims. (Cl. 33—191.)



1. In a center punch, the combination, of a scribing point, an operating post upstanding therefrom, measuring arms movably supported relative to the point, means operatively connecting the post and arms to move the latter in opposite directions from the axis of said point, and a measuring tape carried by said post and operatively connected to one of the arms.

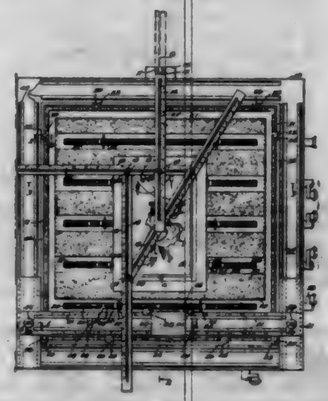
1,539,701. PROCESS OF BLEACHING, PRESERVING, AND INCREASING THE BAKING QUALITIES OF FLOUR AND OF OTHER MILLING PRODUCTS. EGBERT CORNELIS SUTHERLAND, Deventer, Netherlands, assignor to the Firm Naamlooze Vennootschap Industrieele Maatschappij voorheen Noury & Van Der Lande, Deventer, Netherlands. Filed Nov. 24, 1920. Serial No. 426,223. 32 Claims. (Cl. 33—42.)

1. A process for treating flour, meal or other cereal or analogous milling product, consisting in mixing the product with a reagent containing as its essential constituent, an organic peroxidized compound and thereafter carrying out a reaction of this compound upon said product, while mixed therewith and while maintaining the said product in a substantially dry and pulverulent condition.



1,539,702. BEARING. STANISLAW SZUBA, Elizabeth, N. J. Filed Sept. 19, 1922. Serial No. 589,220. 2 Claims. (Cl. 308—183.)

1. A bearing of the class described comprising inner and outer members, having ball grooves therein, a central member formed of end sections having inwardly projecting extensions which are screw threaded on their exterior and interior faces, interior and exterior sleeves threaded to engage said threaded faces to hold the end members together, said members having grooves at their meeting points for forming ball grooves and balls engaging the grooves.



1,539,703. ELECTRIC FURNACE. LEONE TAGLIAFERRI, Genoa, Italy. Filed Oct. 17, 1922. Serial No. 595,205. 8 Claims. (Cl. 204—64.)

1. In an arrangement of the character described, a support, a cylinder mounted on the support, supporting brackets at the lower end of the cylinder, an electrode arranged in the cylinder, a support movable vertically in the cylinder for accommodating the electrode, hydraulic cylinders and pistons respectively connected to the electrode support and the supporting brackets, and means for controlling the pressure in the hydraulic cylinders for regulating the adjustment of the electrode.

1,539,704. SQUARING DEVICE FOR CUTS AND FILMS. HARRY TEXOON, New York, N. Y. Filed July 7, 1923. Serial No. 650,054. 11 Claims. (Cl. 33—184.5.)

1. A squaring device for cuts or films, comprising a frame having means to support a cut or film thereon and having scales at right angles to each other, a square, and guides for the square disposed at right angles to each other for positioning the square on said frame and at different sides of the cut or film, and cutting means carried by the square and movable along one arm thereof.

1,539,705. EMBROIDERY FRAME. AARON WALDMAN, New York, N. Y. Filed Oct. 21, 1922. Serial No. 596,112. 1 Claim. (Cl. 45—24.)

An embroidery frame including a plurality of stretching bars, ratchet members secured to the outer faces of said bars and being arranged in longitudinal grooves formed therein, coupling devices formed in each corner of the frame for retaining the bars in operative position or frame formation, a lower rectangular sleeve forming a portion of each coupling device and adapted to receive one of said bars for slidable movement therein, a substantionally U-shaped guide formed on the sleeve of each device and arranged at right angles thereto for receiving the remaining bars of the frame, dogs passing through the outer side wall of each sleeve and guide respectively for operative engagement with the teeth of the bars, slotted spring pressed manipulating members receiving the outer ends of the dogs, normally holding the dogs in a position to engage the teeth and thereby hold the bars in the guides and sleeves respectively.

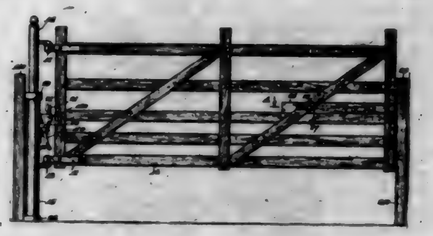
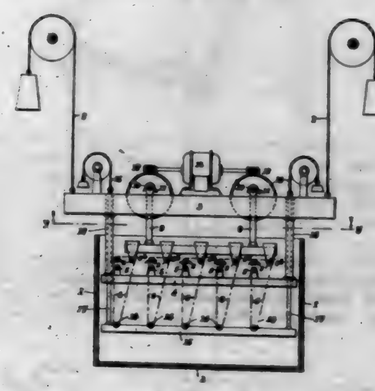
1,539,706. HEADDRESS. HULDA WALLMAN, Flushing, N. Y. Filed Nov. 20, 1924. Serial No. 751,166. 3 Claims. (Cl. 132—46.)



1. An ornamental headdress, comprising two head-encircling bands, means for adjustably securing said bands together, and means associated with one of said bands for clamping locks of the hair.

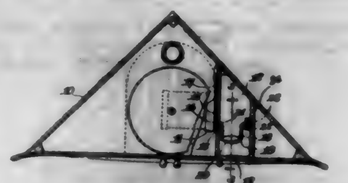
1,539,707. GLASS-GATHERING APPARATUS. WILLIAM WESTBURY, Canastota, N. Y., assignor to Laura Anna Westbury, Independence, Kans. Filed Jan. 28, 1924. Serial No. 689,062. 14 Claims. (Cl. 214—26.)



1. In a gatherer of the character described, the combination of a carriage, a vertically tilting arm mounted on the carriage and comprising telescopic sections, one of said sections being pivotally connected with the carriage at a point between its ends and the other slidably engaging said pivoted section, said slidable section having rack teeth, a ladle carried by the sliding arm section, means including a gear mounted concentric with said pivotal connection and meshing with the rack teeth for sliding said sliding arm section in or out to advance or retract the ladle, and means coupled to said pivotally mounted arm section for tilting said arm in a vertical plane.

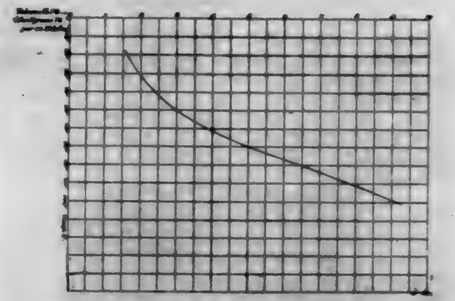
1,539,708. GATE. MILTON WHITEFORD, Manito, Ill. Filed Aug. 20, 1924. Serial No. 733,217. 2 Claims. (Cl. 39—14.)

2. In a gate raising device, a vertically slotted tubular guide, means to fixedly secure said guide to a gate post, a standard vertically movable in said guide and extending above the top thereof, a rack on said standard, a pinion engaging said rack, a shaft carrying said pinion, bearings for said shaft, said bearings rigid with said tube, and hinge elements carried by the standard.



1,539,709. APPARATUS FOR USE IN DYEING OR OTHERWISE TREATING WITH LIQUID, FIBROUS MATERIALS IN SKEINS. FREDERICK THOMAS WOOD, Coventry, England, assignor to Courtaulds Limited, London, England. Filed Jan. 3, 1924. Serial No. 684,128. 6 Claims. (Cl. 8—13.)

6. Skein treating apparatus, comprising spaced stationary upper and lower members embraced within the skein, together with an independent member adapted to travel around the upper stationary member and intermittently lift the skein from said upper member, advance the skein with respect thereto and lower the skein upon said member whereby the skein is advanced step by step around the said stationary members.



1,539,710. MOTOR WINDING HANDLE FOR PHONOGRAPHS. JACOB ZITTERMAN, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Feb. 25, 1924. Serial No. 695,074. 3 Claims. (Cl. 274—3.)

1. The combination with a phonograph including a spring motor and a cabinet housing the same having spaced walls within its confines defining a compartment alongside of the spring motor and a U-shaped winding handle disposed within said compartment the bight portion of which defines a hand grip and the free terminals of the leg portions of which respectively extend through bearing openings in the walls of the compartment, one of said terminals being connected with the winding shaft of the motor and the other of said terminals being journaled in the bearing opening of the opposite wall whereby the said winding handle is disposed and operable wholly within the confines of the cabinet.

1,539,711. PROCESS OF TREATING ORES CONTAINING GALENA. NIELS C. CHRISTENSEN, Salt Lake City, Utah. Filed Sept. 30, 1919. Serial No. 327,400. 17 Claims. (Cl. 75—18.)

1. The process of treating ores containing galena which consists in lixiviating said ores with a concentrated solution of sodium chloride containing acid and thereby dissolving the lead from said galena in said salt solution.

1,539,712. PROCESS OF TREATING SULPHIDE ORES OF LEAD, SILVER, AND COPPER. NIELS C. CHRISTENSEN, Salt Lake City, Utah. Filed Oct. 8, 1919. Serial No. 329,333. 15 Claims. (Cl. 75—18.)

1. The process of treating sulphide ores and the like for the recovery of metals therefrom which consists in lixiviating said ores and the like with a hot concentrated chloride brine containing acid and thereby decomposing the simple sulphide minerals of lead, silver and copper which are contained in said ores and the like, and dissolving the metals of said minerals in said solution.

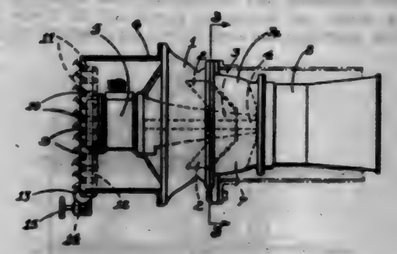
1,539,713. PROCESS OF TREATING LEAD-ZINC SULPHIDE ORES. NIELS C. CHRISTENSEN, Salt Lake City, Utah. Filed Oct. 13, 1919. Serial No. 330,320. 18 Claims. (Cl. 75—18.)

1. The process of treating zinc-lead sulphide ores and concentrates, which consists in treating the comminuted ore with a hot acid concentrated chloride solution, thereby dissolving the lead and silver in the galena as chlorides, separating the pregnant chloride solution from the residue of ore, and precipitating the silver and lead therefrom, treating the residue of ore from the foregoing treatment with hot concentrated sulphuric acid, thereby dissolving the zinc as a sulphate, separating the hot pregnant acid solution from the remainder of the ore, and cooling said solution and precipitating zinc sulphate therefrom.

1,539,714. PROCESS OF TREATING SULPHIDE ORES OF LEAD, SILVER, AND COPPER. NIELS C. CHRISTENSEN, Salt Lake City, Utah. Filed Apr. 9, 1920. Serial No. 372,691. 8 Claims. (Cl. 75—8.)

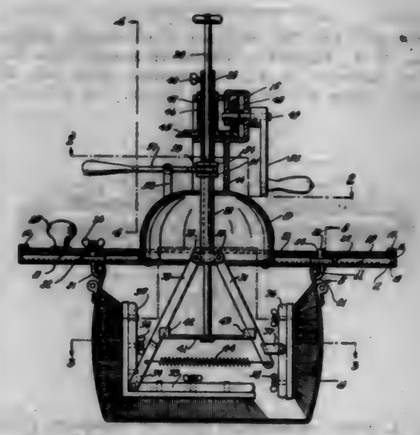
1. The process of treating sulphide ores and the like for the recovery of metals therefrom which consists in mixing said ores and the like with a hot concentrated chloride brine containing acid and thereby decomposing the simple sulphide minerals of lead, silver and copper which are contained in said ores and the like and dissolving the metals of said minerals in said solution, and separating said solution from the treated ore and precipitating dissolved metal therefrom with metallic lead and thereafter precipitating lead from said solution by electrolysis.

1,539,715. END BRACKET FOR AXMINSTER TUBE FRAMES. CHARLES H. COLLINS, Amsterdam, N. Y., and HOWARD MASON, Saxonville, Mass. Filed Nov. 21, 1923. Serial No. 676,138. 6 Claims. (Cl. 139—10.)



6. In a chain-engaging hook member for an end bracket for an Axminster tube frame, the combination of a piece of flat spring material and a formed block of metal securely attached to one end thereof so as to form a hook-like end thereon.

1,539,716. SHINGLE. WILLIAM T. CONLEY, Cambridge, Mass. Filed Aug. 23, 1923. Serial No. 658,996. 1 Claim. (Cl. 108—3.)

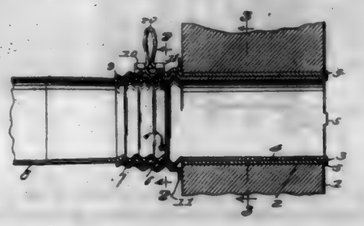


An individual diamond-shaped shingle having unbroken edges and its butt extended laterally at both edges to form a locking tab, said tab being foldable under the body of the shingle to provide pockets to receive and interlockingly engage the edges of adjacent shingles, each end of said tab being inclined inwardly in opposite directions from its center, the inclined inner portions conforming to the adjacent side edges of the shingle whereby the tab is concealed when folded and engagement with edges of adjacent shingles facilitated.

1,539,717. REGULATION OF MOTOR-DRIVEN BLOWERS. FRANK H. C. COPPUS, Worcester, Mass. Filed Nov. 7, 1921. Serial No. 513,497. 8 Claims. (Cl. 230—11.)

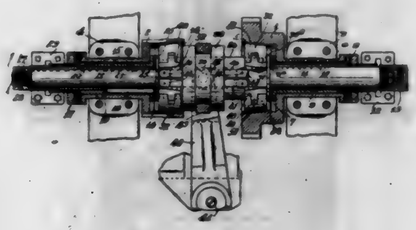
1. In a blower, the combination with a set of propeller blades driven at a predetermined speed and means for varying the volume and pressure of the blower discharge, of means for maintaining the power required to drive the blower constant for different rates of discharge.

1,539,718. POT-WASHING DEVICE. MAURICE L. CRUM, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 22, 1923. Serial No. 658,692. 4 Claims. (Cl. 15—56.)



1. A pot cleaning device comprising in combination, means for mounting said device on a pot to support it on the top rim of said pot, a housing on said means and provided with a bracket, a tube mounted in said housing to rotate and to slide longitudinally therein, a lever fulcrumed on said housing to engage and move said tube vertically in said housing, means to rotate said tube, members connected to the lower end of said tube, cleaning means on said members, spreading means associated with the lower parts of said members for adjusting them and the brushes radially of the pot, and means in said tube for controlling said spreading means to adjust said cleaning members.

1,539,719. PIPE CONNECTION. WILLIAM H. DARNELL, Clayton, Mich. Filed Apr. 28, 1924. Serial No. 708,599. 1 Claim. (Cl. 126—318.)



In a device of the character described the combination with a chimney wall having an opening and a thimble mounted through the opening, of an open sleeve telescoped within the thimble, lips projecting outwardly from one end of the sleeve and engaged with the adjacent edge of the thimble, the opposite portion of the sleeve being extended and corrugated, a pipe section having one end portion corrugated and telescopically and adjustably engaged within the corrugated portion of the sleeve for slightly spreading the first section into binding engagement with the thimble, an open corrugated band adjustably engaged about the corrugated portions of the said sections, a chimney engaging flange projecting from one edge of the band for cooperating with the lips on the opposite ends of the sleeve, and means for releasably clamping the band from clamping engagement with the said sleeve and pipe section.

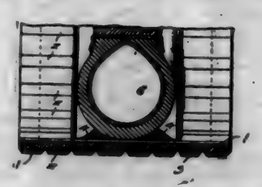
1,539,720. CLUTCH. WILLIAM S. DAVENPORT, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to Davenport Machine Tool Co., Inc., Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation. Filed July 28, 1921. Serial No. 488,106. 17 Claims. (Cl. 192—78.)



1. A clutch comprising a shaft, an expansible clutch member mounted to turn with the shaft and having a tapering peripheral clutch face, a sleeve surrounding the shaft, turning therewith and adjustable longitudinally of said shaft, a right and left hand threaded nut cooperating with the shaft and the sleeve for adjusting the sleeve longitudinally of the shaft, and a second clutch member mounted to turn on the sleeve and to move axially of the shaft with the sleeve, said second mentioned clutch member having an internal tapered clutch face for engagement with the tapering peripheral clutch face of the expanding clutch member.

15. In combination with an expansible clutch member, of expansion means for said member embodying a movable member a pair of rollers movable with said member and having their peripheries turning in engagement.

1,539,721. DEMOUNTABLE WHEEL TREAD. ROBERT J. DAVIS, Barnes, Wis. Filed May 8, 1924. Serial No. 711,871. 2 Claims. (Cl. 152—17.)

1. A demountable wheel tread comprising spaced rings, crosspieces connecting the rings, a rubber tread covering the outer side of the band, and confining rings upon the inner side of the band and upon opposite sides of a medial plane and having their inner faces formed to provide a channel to receive a pneumatic tire.

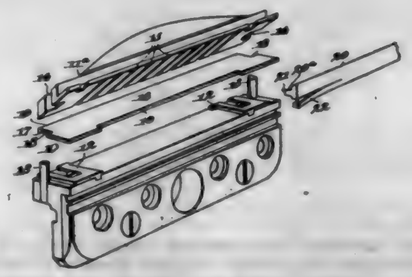
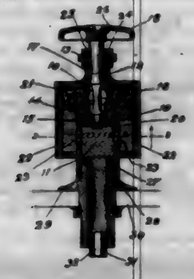
1,539,722. MOTOR FUEL. JEAN F. P. DE LA RIBOISIERE, Washington, D. C. Filed Dec. 15, 1924. Serial No. 756,154. 6 Claims. (Cl. 44—9.)



1. A motor fuel comprising a low boiling point hydrocarbon the major portion of which boil below 160° C., a small proportion of an ether of low boiling point adapted to promote combustion and ignition, and a phenolic body adapted to retain the ether in the mixture.

1,539,723. ELECTRICAL CONNECTION AND METHOD OF MAKING THE SAME. CHARLES A. DEUSCHER, New York, N. Y. Filed Aug. 19, 1922. Serial No. 582,892. 2 Claims. (Cl. 173—263.)

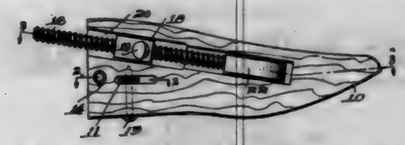


1. A method of joining conductors which includes inserting their ends into and beyond the ends of a sleeve, twisting the conductors within the sleeve together to form a tight mechanical connection, compressing the sleeve upon the twisted portion of the conductor, and then wrapping the end of each conductor around the adjacent portion of the other conductor.

1,539,724. TYPE-CASTING MOLD. GEORGE C. DIVEY, New York, N. Y. Filed Sept. 1, 1922. Serial No. 585,696. 9 Claims. (Cl. 199—55.)

1. In casting mechanism of the class described, a sectional mold, a plate supported by the liners of one section and closing against an adjacent face of the other section of the mold and a ridge formed on said plate and extending into the cavity of the mold.

1,539,725. FAUCET. JOHN EDEN, Attleboro, Mass. Filed Dec. 12, 1924. Serial No. 755,458. 4 Claims. (Cl. 251—255.)

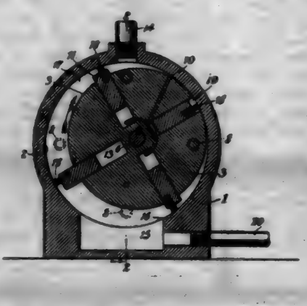


1. A faucet having a main passageway therethrough, air chambers closed at their tops and bottoms and in communication with the main passageway and a valve adapted to close the passageway by a fluid pressure therein.

3. A faucet having a conducting chamber, a plurality of air chambers lying parallel thereto and communicating therewith, a valve adapted to close the conducting chamber by fluid pressure within the chamber and means for forcing the valve from closed position against the fluid pressure.

1,539,726. TREATMENT OF ARGENTIFEROUS SULPHIDE ORES. FRANK EDWARD ELMORE, Boxmoor, England, assignor to Niels C. Christensen, Salt Lake City, Utah. Filed Feb. 5, 1920. Serial No. 356,891. 4 Claims. (Cl. 75—18.)

1. Process for treating argentiferous lead-zinc sulphide ores or argentiferous residue consisting in heating the material to about a dull red heat under conditions which as regards the zinc sulphide are substantially non-oxidising whereby the zinc sulphide remains substantially undecomposed and then extracting the silver and lead by means of solvent which leave the zinc sulphide substantially undissolved.



1,539,727. SHOE STRETCHER. CARL A. ELMSTROM, Medford, Mass. Filed Feb. 19, 1923. Serial No. 619,791. 1 Claim. (Cl. 12—128.5.)

A shoe stretcher comprising a pair of last blocks having recesses in their adjacent inner sides, a flat link positioned in said recesses and pivotally connected at its opposite ends to said blocks, a compression spring positioned between said blocks and at the rear of said link, said spring yieldingly forcing the toe portions of said blocks toward each other, a wedge-shaped stretching device located between the front portions of said blocks, and means to force said stretching device lengthwise of said last to spread said blocks at the toe portions thereof.

1,539,728. ROTARY PUMP. WILLIAM B. ENSIGN, New York, N. Y., assignor to Lloyd V. Reynolds, New York, N. Y. Filed Feb. 23, 1924. Serial No. 694,738. 3 Claims. (Cl. 230—30.)

1. A rotary pump for pumping fluids, comprising a casing, a rotary piston of less diameter than the bore of the casing eccentrically positioned in said casing so that at one point it contacts with the casing, a plurality of radial slots arranged in the piston, a blade arranged in each of said slots, said casing having an arc-shaped groove at each end positioned to be uncovered by said slots as they move past, a radially arranged groove extending from the first mentioned grooves to the walls of the casing, said radial grooves being positioned in communication with the compression side of the pump whereby fluid under compression will be acting on certain of the blades for urging them outwardly in a direct ratio to the compression in the compression chamber.

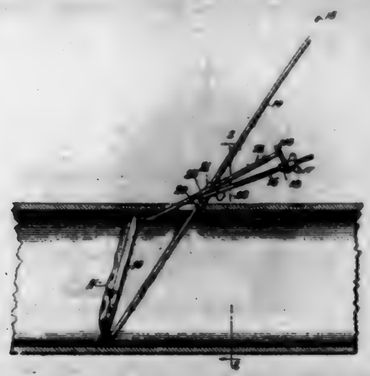
1,539,729. WINDOW-CLEANER'S SEAT. ABRAHAM GOLD, New York, N. Y. Filed June 12, 1924. Serial No. 719,675. 1 Claim. (Cl. 304—24.)



A window cleaner's seat comprising in combination, a stirrup adapted for securement to the window sill, a seat, a hook carried by the front edge of the seat for engagement with said stirrup to limit outward movement of the seat, a supporting foot secured to the under face of the seat and adapted for engagement with the window sill, an eye carried by the rear edge of the seat and projecting upwardly therefrom, a vertically-disposed member loosely mounted in said eye and formed with a loop on its upper end, a flexible back rest positioned in the loop on the upper end of the vertically-disposed member, a plurality of eyes adapted to be carried by the window frame, and hook members carried by the ends of the flexible back rest for engagement with said last-mentioned eyes.

1,539,730. GAS-MAIN STOPPER. PATRICK GOODMAN, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Aug. 30, 1924. Serial No. 735,196. 3 Claims. (Cl. 137—76.)

1. A gas-main stopper having handle-bars pivotally connected at substantially diametrically opposite points on said stopper, a sleeve adjustable along one of the handle-bars and provided with means to engage a gas-main at an opening therein, means to exert pressure on the other handle-bar to lock the stopper in the main, and means at the front of the sleeve engageable by the means to exert pressure on the second handle-bar.

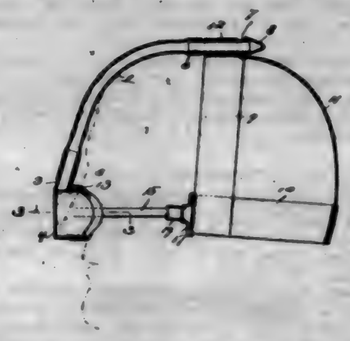
1,539,731. EGG-BEATING MACHINE. WALTER RUBEN HANSON, Chicago, Ill. Filed May 10, 1924. Serial No. 712,289. 2 Claims. (Cl. 259—135.)

1. An egg beater including a substantially rectangular body frame, a substantially rectangular hand grip arranged in spaced relation with the body, an angular arm between the body and grip extending from one side of the body to the opposite side of the arm between said arm and body, a longitudinal shaft carried by the body, a pinion on one end and a rotatable gear supported by the arm and having engagement with the pinion.



1,539,732. CARBURETOR. WILHELM HARTL, Berlin, Germany. Filed Apr. 28, 1923. Serial No. 635,348. 1 Claim. (Cl. 261—18.)

A fuel nozzle for carburetors comprising a cylindrical tube adapted to bridge the suction channel of the carbureter and having an outlet opening arranged in the medial portion thereof so as to communicate with the suction channel of the carbureter, a piston slidably mounted within said tube and adapted to be moved horizontally across said outlet opening, a piston rod extending from one end of said tube and connected to said piston, and the opposite ends of said tube being opened whereby different grades of fuel may be supplied thereto, substantially as and for the purpose specified.

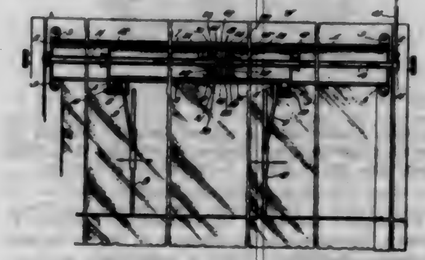
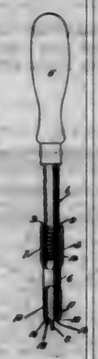
1,539,733. RESPIRATOR FOR SWIMMERS. ROBERT J. HASKELL, Washington, D. C. Filed May 24, 1923. Serial No. 641,137. 1 Claim. (Cl. 9—17.)



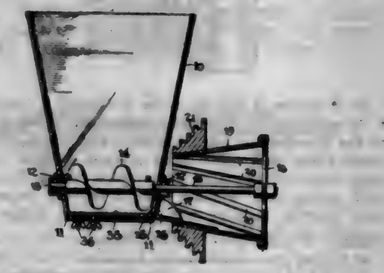
A respirator for swimmers comprising head harness, a nose piece connected to said head harness solely by flexible members, two of said members extending laterally from said nose piece to said head harness, and another of said member being constructed to constitute an air conduit communicating with said nose piece and secured to said head harness adjacent the top of the head, said conduit terminating closely adjacent its point of attachment to said head harness and being formed with a terminal opening rearwardly directed.

1,539,734. ELECTRIC HEATER. JOSEPH HAUSER, Melrose Park, Ill. Filed Mar. 15, 1924. Serial No. 699,579. 2 Claims. (Cl. 219—34.)



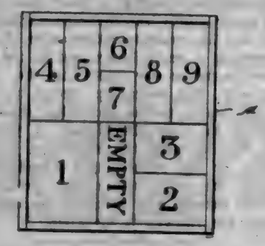
1. A heater comprising a pair of metallic end walls substantially increased in length toward their upper ends, transversely curved top and bottom walls secured to the upper and lower ends of the end walls, a conductor extending longitudinally of the lower wall between the longitudinal edges of the same and having diverging heating elements, and trunnions secured to the end walls and adapted for connection with a support, said trunnions being located in line with each other and being located below the center of gravity of the heater whereby the heater will remain in an adjusted position, said trunnions being adapted for connection with the opposite walls of an opening in a wall.

1,539,735. WINDSHIELD WIPER. CHARLES EUGENE HAYES, Dorchester, Mass. Filed Mar. 30, 1922. Serial No. 548,021. 5 Claims. (Cl. 121—50.)



1. A structure of the character described comprising a casing adapted to be connected with and to extend transversely across a windshield, said casing being provided in one side with a longitudinal slot, a cylinder slidable longitudinally in said casing and having arms extended through said slot to prevent rotation of the casing within the cylinder, a wiper carried by said arms, pipes extending through the ends of said casing and passing slidably through the ends of said cylinder to permit sliding of the cylinder on said pipes, one of said pipes being in communication with the atmosphere, a fluid supply conduit adapted for connection with the other pipe, a stationary piston in the cylinder connected with the inner end of the aforesaid pipe and dividing said cylinder into compartments, valves in the compartments for controlling communication between the pipes and said compartments, means slidably mounted on said pipes for alternately seating said valves, and spring means carried by said first named means and engaging the pipes to frictionally hold said means.

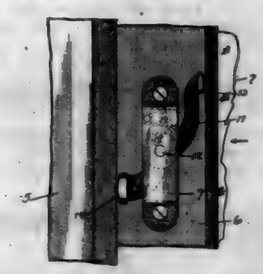
1,539,736. SCREW DRIVER. SAMUEL HEARONEMUS, Snover, Mich. Filed Mar. 5, 1923. Serial No. 622,915. 1 Claim. (Cl. 145—52.)



A tool of the class described comprising a body member having diametrically opposite longitudinally extending grooves therein with a kerf-engaging blade at its front end having shoulders at its base, a screw holder in the form of a sleeve snugly fitting said body and slidable thereon and having rearwardly extending fingers with lips at their free ends engaging said grooves whereby the holder is held against turning on the body, and an intermediate offset portion embracing a coiled spring on said body to hold the sleeve normally in retracted position, longitudinally extending fingers at the front of said sleeve, said fingers being in alinement with said first mentioned fingers and having inturned lips at their free ends to cooperate with said blades to clampingly clamp the head of the screw between them forming a three point screw holder, said lips engaging the shoulders at the base of said blade when the sleeve is in retracted position with the fingers fitting closely against the body member.

1,539,737. SEED PLANTER AND DISTRIBUTOR. RUSSEL F. HESTER, Heber, Calif. Filed Feb. 25, 1924. Serial No. 695,083. 1 Claim. (Cl. 275—15.)

In a seed scattering device, a support adapted to be attached to a traversing machine, said traversing machine having a driving element, a supply hopper, an outlet for said hopper, a shaft extending through said hopper and having a portion extending beyond said hopper, said shaft carrying a feed element within the hopper, a hollow scattering member of frusto-conical formation attached to said shaft externally of said hopper and in communication with the outlet of said hopper, a plurality of belt pulleys of varying size mounted on one end of said scattering member and concentric therewith, a drive belt operating over a selected one of the belt pulleys and the driving element of the traversing machine, and means for adjustably coupling the said hopper and its attachments to said support to respectively aline the belt pulleys with the driving element of the traversing machine.



1,539,738. PUZZLE. WILBERT A. HUTTON, New Brighton, N. Y. Filed Sept. 17, 1921. Serial No. 501,257. 1 Claim. (Cl. 273—132.)

A puzzle comprising a square box; a large block movable therein; a group of two blocks movable in said box and each of the same size and shape as the other, the two together being of the same size and shape as said large block; a group of four blocks movable in said box and each of the same size and shape as the others and different from the blocks of the first said group, and each having one-half the area of the said large block; and two small blocks each having one-half the area of any of the blocks of the second said group, said box and blocks being visually correlated for indicating the starting positions of the various parts.

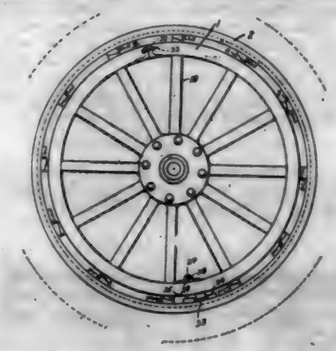
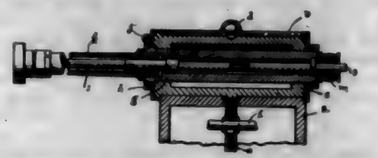
1,539,739. SASH FASTENER. OLIN S. JOHNSON, Palermo, Calif. Filed Apr. 23, 1924. Serial No. 708,551. 1 Claim. (Cl. 292—228.)

In a device of the character described, a lever having a thumb-piece at one end, a resilient member secured to the opposite end of said lever, a base plate, a U-shaped cover plate, said lever being pivoted between said base plate and said U-shaped cover plate, means for securing said plates to a window sash in such a manner that said contact member will contact the frame of the window, for the purpose specified.



1,539,740. STOCK WATERER. WALTER JOHNSON, Wakonda, S. Dak. Filed Apr. 10, 1924. Serial No. 705,547. 4 Claims. (Cl. 103—25.)

1. A waterer of the class described comprising a tank normally substantially empty, a feed line leading from a source of water supply and delivering within the tank, a discharge line in communication with the tank and leading therefrom, a pump interposed in the first named line, an electric motor for operating the pump, a depressible runway, the operating circuit for the motor being normally open, means operating upon depression of the runway to close the circuit, a valve for controlling the flow through the discharge pipe line, and means carried by the runway and associated with the valve to move the valve into closed position upon depression of the runway and to move the valve into open position when the runway is elevated.



1,539,741. VEHICLE WHEEL. CLARENCE S. JOHNSTON, Glendive, Mont. Filed Aug. 25, 1919. Serial No. 319,775. 3 Claims. (Cl. 301—17.)

1. A wheel having in combination, a wheel body, a rim circumscribing the body, the rim and the body having means which coact when the rim is moved relatively to the body to cause the rim to move radially and circumferentially, a screw rotatably secured in said body, a rim-engaging element mounted thereon in threaded engagement, and means for rotating said screw whereby the rim is moved relatively to said body.

1,539,742. METHOD OF GRINDING. HARRY F. JOSEPH, Davenport, Iowa, assignor to Micro Machine Company, Bettendorf, Iowa, a Corporation of Iowa. Filed May 16, 1923. Serial No. 639,141. 2 Claims. (Cl. 51—278.)

1. The process of grinding cylinders, which comprises rotating the spindle carrying a grinding wheel, at relatively high speed in said cylinder, causing a relative orbital and longitudinal movement between the wheel and the cylinder, conducting liquid into the cylinder and outside the grinding wheel spindle and delivering it at a plurality of points against the face of the grinding wheel, thereby causing the liquid to be projected against the surface of the cylinder continuously in the same direction as the rotation of the grinding wheel and at a relatively higher speed than said orbital movement, and causing said liquid to spread transversely across the orbital path of the wheel.

1,539,743. GRAIN CLEANER. JOHN KELLER, Bismarck, N. Dak. Filed Jan. 19, 1924. Serial No. 687,264. 1 Claim. (Cl. 130—17.)

A grain cleaner comprising agitating means having a wall provided with a discharge opening, a casing carried by said wall and having an upper air outlet, said wall providing a partition between said casing and agitating means and having a discharge spout below said opening, a reticulated chute in said casing leading from said opening to said spout, and a fan rotatable within said casing below said chute for directing air upwardly through said chute.

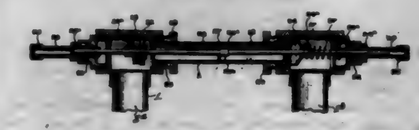
1,539,744. TAG HOLDER. SAMUEL O. KELLY, Wampum, Pa. Filed Nov. 8, 1924. Serial No. 748,697. 3 Claims. (Cl. 40—10.)

1. In a device of the character described, an outer casing having a display opening through its top wall, and an inner member fitting into said casing and having lateral flanges for confining between the same and the top wall of the casing a license plate, the casing and the inner member being provided at their ends with registering openings for reception of a collar strap.

1,539,745. MECHANISM FOR PACKAGING CIGARETTES AND SIMILAR ARTICLES. EUGENE G. KERLIN and WILLIAM A. BRANDT, Salem, Va., assignors to Comas Cigarette Machine Company, Salem, Va., a Corporation of Virginia. Filed June 7, 1922. Serial No. 566,457. 21 Claims. (Cl. 93—4.)

1. A packaging machine including a hopper having zigzag partitions therein, and herringbone ejectors operating between said partitions for ejecting the articles therefrom.



1,539,746. MEANS FOR REFINING COAL SLIMES OR THE LIKE. JAN WILLEM KLEINENTINK, Hoensbroek, Limburg, Netherlands, assignor to Naamlooze Vennootschap Verenigde Koleenmaatschappij en tar Voortzetting der Steenkolensaken, Gedreven Door de N. V. Furness' Koleenmaatschappij en Hoven en Henny's Handelmaatschappij, Rotterdam, Netherlands, a Company organized under the laws of The Netherlands. Filed Nov. 6, 1923. Serial No. 673,207. 1 Claim. (Cl. 83—85.)

In an apparatus for concentrating coal slimes and ores in accordance with the froth flotation process, a froth forming vat, the width of which increases from the bottom to the top, an agitating box within said vat, the width of the box decreasing from the bottom to the top, with the upper edge of the box above the upper edge of the vat, the box being in communication with the vat through an exit opening near the bottom and an inlet opening above the bottom and below the upper edge of the vat, an agitating means arranged in the box and rotatable about a vertical axis to force the material in the agitating box through the exit opening into the vat, the inlet opening permitting the return of the material from the vat to the agitating box.

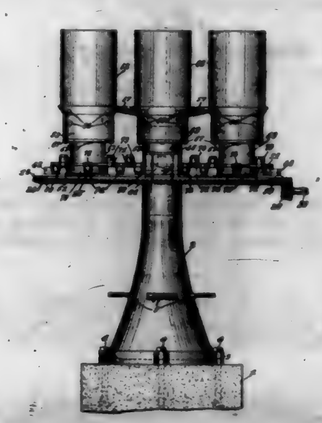
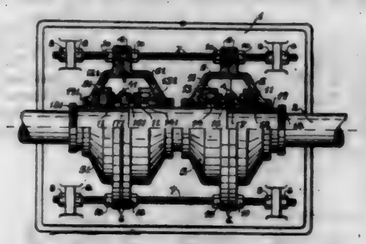
1,539,747. VALVE FOR WATER SYSTEMS. COLUMBUS M. LANE, Clarendon, Tex. Filed May 27, 1924. Serial No. 716,202. 8 Claims. (Cl. 137—69.)

1. A valve for a water system comprising a casing with a valve seat therein, a valve rod loosely guided in the casing, thereby doing away with packing and reducing friction to a minimum, a valve head on the rod and cooperating with the seat, and removable guides at the remote ends of the casing and in which said rod is loosely mounted, said removable guides comprising detachable plugs, the removal of which and the loosening of the valve head permits the working parts of the valve to be removed without molesting the valve body.

1,539,748. MACHINE FOR CUTTING PAPER LENGTHWISE AND REWINDING IT. GEORGES LAROCHE, Nanterre, France, assignor to The Societe Anonyme de la Papeterie de Nanterre, Nanterre, France. Filed July 7, 1923. Serial No. 650,071. 7 Claims. (Cl. 164—65.)



1. In a machine for cutting paper lengthwise and winding it, a cylinder having a smooth surface, means for giving to the cylinder a rapid rotating movement, means for giving to the cylinder a slower longitudinal movement, adjustable rotary cutters mounted adjacent to the cylinder and moved by peripheral contact therewith, and reels adjustable in position.



1,539,749. VEGETABLE SLICER. EUGENE H. LEMEE, State College, Pa. Filed Dec. 20, 1924. Serial No. 757,207. 10 Claims. (Cl. 146—78.)

1. A slicing machine for the purpose set forth, comprising a revolvable carrier provided with a plurality of cutters, a plurality of article receiving hoppers suspended over said carrier and each including a stationary upper and a shiftable lower section, and coacting means mounted on said shiftable sections and said carrier for intermittently revolving said shiftable sections during the operation of the carrier to provide for the slicing of an article in lattice-like form.

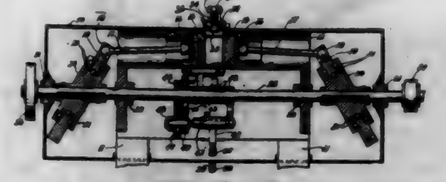
1,539,750. ANTIFRICTION THRUST BEARING. KARL OSKAR LEON, Gottenborg, Sweden, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Nya Nordiska Kullager, Aktiebolaget, Gottenborg, Sweden. Filed Apr. 27, 1920. Serial No. 377,104. 6 Claims. (Cl. 308—233.)

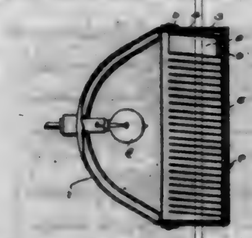


1. In combination, a plurality of shaft carried collars, thrust collars arranged on opposite sides of each shaft carried collar, rolling members interposed between the shaft carried and thrust collars arranged to take up loads in either direction, means mounted for displacement axially with respect to the shaft supporting certain of said thrust collars, and resilient members interposed between the displaceable means and the thrust collars supported thereby, said resilient members being adapted to press the thrust collars toward the shaft carried collars with requisite pressure to cause the rolling members to take up the load of the bearing, the rolling members associated with either shaft carried collar being capable of being unloaded, independently of the other loaded rolling members by proper movement of the displaceable means to such extent that said resilient members are slackened up so that the rolling members still retain their rolling contact with the shaft carried collar without transmitting any substantial load from the thrust collar to the shaft carried collar.

1,539,751. METHOD AND APPARATUS FOR USE IN MAKING BREAD. HENRY J. LUDDEN, Christiana, Pa. Filed Nov. 1, 1922. Serial No. 598,441. 12 Claims. (Cl. 73—51.)

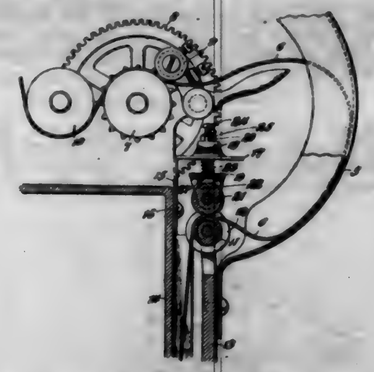
1. The method of testing yeast to ascertain its fermenting strength consisting in placing dough containing yeast in a liquid and registering the period of time it takes this dough to rise in the liquid.

1,539,752. CRANKLESS ENGINE. THOMAS J. McCAIN and THURMAN WILSON, Fort Pierce, Fla. Filed Nov. 17, 1922. Serial No. 601,631. 1 Claim. (Cl. 123—58.)



An engine comprising a plurality of cylinders, pistons operating in said cylinders, a drive shaft, means for transmitting power from said piston to the drive shaft to rotate the latter, and valve controlled means associated with each cylinder to effect inlet and permit exhaust of the fuel and burnt gases respectively thereto and therefrom, the valve mechanism consisting of valve chests at the centers of the cylinders provided with inlet and exhaust ports, spring pressed valves normally closing said ports, rocker arms pivotally mounted and engaging the stems of said valves, tappets engaging said rocker arms, angle levers pivoted adjacent the cylinders and having one end engaging the tappets, a sleeve journaled on the drive shaft and engaging a series of cams cooperating with the other arms of the angle levers and formed upon a gear, a counter shaft having a pinion meshing with said gear and formed upon a gear, and a gear secured upon the drive shaft and meshing with said last named gear.

1,539,753. HEADLIGHT. THOMAS J. McCAIN, Arch Creek, Fla. Filed July 9, 1923. Serial No. 650,461. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—48.4.)



A lamp of the character described comprising a body, a relatively wide cylindrical member including a plurality of transversely extending downwardly inclined spaced rows of strips, a transparent lens positioned in advance of said strips, the upper portion of said cylindrical shaped member having horizontal openings therein formed in the upper part of the cylindrical member by cutting away portions of the strips at the top of the member and carrying in advance of said openings an auxiliary translucent member which may be readily seen by approaching drivers or pedestrians.

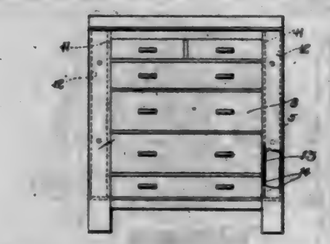
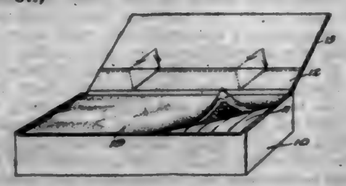
1,539,754. STEADYING DEVICE FOR MOTION-PICTURE APPARATUS. DEMING McCULLOUGHO, Marietta, Ohio. Filed Mar. 15, 1924. Serial No. 699,479. 5 Claims. (Cl. 242—75.)



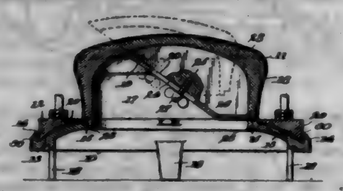
1. In a motion picture apparatus, the combination with a spool over which the film is fed, of a pressure roll cooperating therewith, a yoke in which said roll is rotatably supported, said yoke being mounted for reciprocatory movement toward and away from the spool, springs urging the yoke forward the spool, means for positively limiting the range of movement of said yoke in either direction, and means for adjusting said limiting means toward and away from the spool.

1,539,755. TRANSMISSION CASE. LAWRENCE C. McELWEE, Hot Springs, Va. Filed May 31, 1923. Serial No. 642,604. 4 Claims. (Cl. 74—56.)



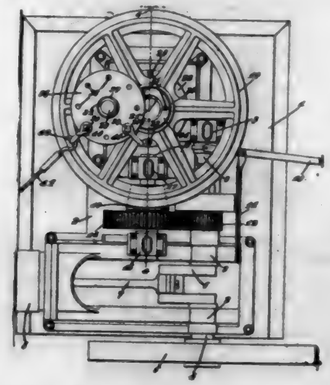
4. A transmission casing for band transmission provided with an opening extending over the top of and down both sides of the band structure and an integral panel proportioned to close said opening, said panel having sliding engagement with the casing, serving as a guide for the proper assembly of the parts.

1,539,756. FURNITURE. NELLIE G. McNEILL, Fort Plain, N. Y. Filed June 25, 1924. Serial No. 722,346. 3 Claims. (Cl. 211—7.)



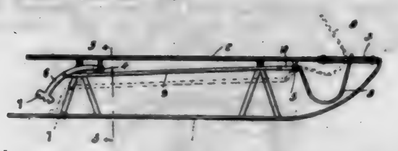
1. In an article of furniture, a frame having relatively wide corner frame-members, drawers slidable in the frame, one of said drawers having ventilating apertures in its ends, a removable closure consisting of a door at the end of the frame, a wall near the end of the frame in spaced relation to the door, said wall having ventilating apertures therein, and a ventilating panel in the said door, substantially as described.

1,539,757. CIGAR BOX. RAYMOND M. MARKLAND, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed June 8, 1922, Serial No. 566,700. Renewed Feb. 26, 1925. 6 Claims. (Cl. 217—57.)



1. A cigar box, comprising a body portion, a lid made in two sections, means for hinging one section to the box portion, means for detachably connecting the other section to the section hinged to the body portion, and means provided, in conjunction with the body portion for fixing the two lid sections together.

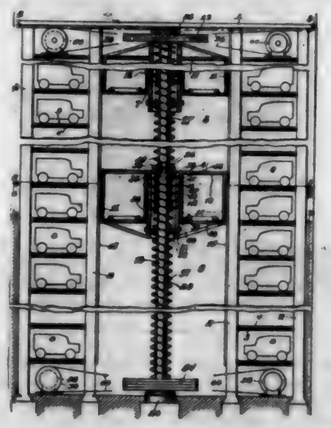
1,539,758. HEM-EDGE DIE. HUMBERT OSWALD MARTIN, New York, N. Y. Filed May 27, 1922. Serial No. 564,184. 2 Claims. (Cl. 223—31.)



1. A device of the class described comprising a base having a brim forming wall, a continuous shoulder formed at the outer end of said wall, a bell-crown die removably supported by said base, said bell crown die formed of a stationary section and a movable section, beveled faces formed on said sections, co-acting tongues and grooves formed on said beveled faces for permitting sliding movement of said movable section with respect to said stationary section, means for limiting the movement of said movable section, and a clamping ring having its underface formed of a shape to conform to said brim forming wall and the periphery of said ring coacting with said continuous shoulder for forming the crown brim and hem edge of a hat.

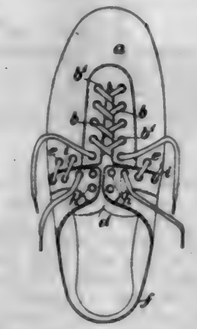
1,539,759. COMBINED GAS ENGINE AND POWER DEVICE. WILLIAM F. MEISTER, Marietta, Ohio. Filed July 28, 1922. Serial No. 578,203. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—14.)

In a device of the class described, a frame, a horizontally operating engine on the frame and comprising a horizontal crank shaft located adjacent to one edge of the frame, a horizontal auxiliary shaft located adjacent to the longitudinal center of the frame and inwardly of the crank shaft, the auxiliary shaft being parallel to the crank shaft, a horizontal gear wheel journaled on the frame for rotation about an axis located approximately in the same plane with the axis of the auxiliary shaft, bearings receiving the auxiliary shaft for rotation, one bearing being located closely adjacent to the engine, and the other bearing being located beneath the gear wheel, a pinion on the auxiliary shaft and meshing with the gear wheel, means on the gear wheel for operating pump connections, and intermeshing gear members on the shafts, the gear member on the auxiliary shaft, the pinion on said shaft, and the first specified bearing, substantially filling the space between the periphery of the gear wheel and the engine.



1,539,760. SLED BRAKE. HERMAN G. MEYER, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 28, 1922. Serial No. 609,418. 1 Claim. (Cl. 188—8.)

A sled having braking arms pivoted adjacent the rear thereof, a bracket adjacent the front of the sled, a substantially U-shaped operating member having its bridge disposed foremost and transversely of the sled adjacent the front thereof and adapted to engage the sled proper upon depression, the side portions of the operating member being pivoted on the bracket and having cranks extending rearwardly thereof, and connecting means between said cranks and said braking members, said connecting means and said cranks being adapted to occupy the same straight line when the operating member is in depressed position.



1,539,761. AUTOMOBILE PARKING GARAGE. MICHAEL D. MURRAY, Ambridge, Pa. Filed Sept. 7, 1923. Serial No. 661,467. 10 Claims. (Cl. 214—16.)

1. In a parking garage, a housing including a plurality of floors above and below a general street surface and provided with a central passage opening into the several floors, independently operable tubular sections axially mounted in said central passage and having spiral tracks, and carriers movable upon the said sections and having operative connections with the tracks, whereby the tracks may ascend and descent and adapted to register with any one of the floors.

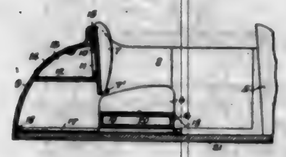
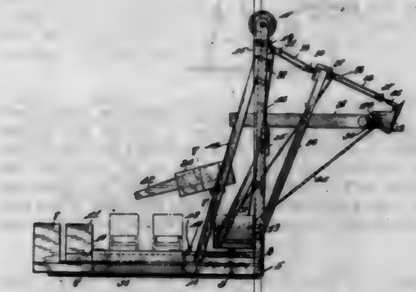
1,539,762. FOOTGEAR. SCIPIO GODOLPHIN MUSSABINI, London, England, assignor of two-thirds to John Edwin Fyfield, London, England. Filed Mar. 21, 1923. Serial No. 626,518. 12 Claims. (Cl. 36—1.)



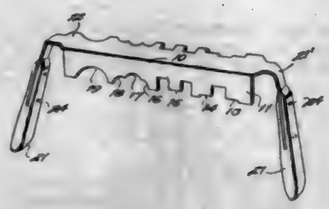
1. Footgear comprising a front portion, a rear portion, and means for separably connecting said front and rear portions, said means extending transversely from side to side and around the waist of the footgear and being adapted to be tensioned to draw the said waist upwardly.

1,539,763. METHOD OF CONSTRUCTING ASPHALT PAVEMENTS. MILES G. NIXON, Bridgeton, N. J. Filed July 5, 1921. Serial No. 482,506. 8 Claims. (Cl. 94—20.)



1. The method of constructing pavements which consists in preparing a suitable foundation; coating the surface of said foundation with an aqueous emulsion of an asphaltic binder; and then superposing a layer of non-aqueous asphaltic concrete.

1,539,764. VEHICLE-BODY CONSTRUCTION. VICTOR W. PAGE, Stamford, Conn. Filed Apr. 17, 1923. Serial No. 632,700. 1 Claim. (Cl. 296—63.)



In a vehicle body, a tonneau compartment, said body being extended beyond the tonneau compartment to provide a space at the rear thereof, a horizontally disposed partition dividing the space at the rear of the tonneau compartment into an upper and a lower compartment, a swinging seat back closing the front of the upper compartment and giving access thereto from the tonneau compartment, a plurality of guides extending from the tonneau compartment into the lower compartment of the space at the rear of the tonneau compartment, and a seat slidably mounted on said guides and movable from the tonneau compartment into the lower compartment of the space at the rear thereof.

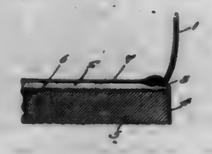
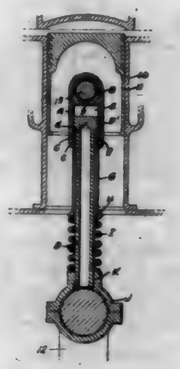
An excavating machine including a stationary base, a rotatable base mounted at one end of the stationary base, a guide member secured to the stationary base and having a right angled end adapted to overlie a portion of the rotatable base, uprights carried by the rotatable base and having a pulley mounted adjacent to the upper end thereof, spaced bars mounted on the rotatable base and adapted to swing vertically, a scoop supporting arm pivotally mounted between the uprights and adapted to swing vertically, a flexible member having connection with the spaced bars for moving them vertically, a scoop on the scoop supporting arm, a flexible member connecting the scoop and the upper end of the vertically swinging bars for adjusting the scoop with respect to the swinging bars, and a flexible member for connecting the vertically swinging bars to the uprights for adjusting the vertically swinging bars and scoop with respect to the uprights.

1,539,766. DRAWKNIFE. ADAM PAKSCIK, Taylor Springs, Ill. Filed July 25, 1924. Serial No. 728,242. 3 Claims. (Cl. 145—28.)



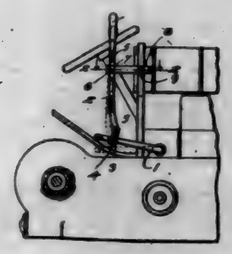
2. A tool of the character described comprising a pair of sections arranged at right angles to each other, cutting edges formed on the outer edges of the sections and each cutting edge having formed thereon a series of blade members as and for the purpose specified.

1,539,767. SHOE. GEORGE L. PIERCE, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to A. G. Spalding & Bros., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 25, 1924. Serial No. 701,768. 4 Claims. (Cl. 36—14.)



1. A shoe of the character described comprising an intermediate sole, an outsole adhering to one face thereof within the margins thereof, an upper having an insole adhering to the other face of the intermediate sole, and a pair of strips stitched to the margin of said intermediate sole, one of said strips being turned up and secured to the upper and the other being turned down over and secured to the edge of the outsole.

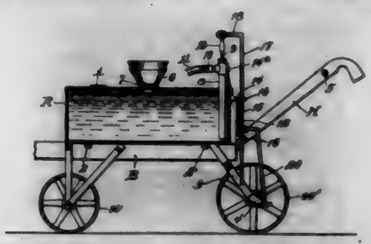
1,539,768. SHOE. GEORGE L. PIERCE, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to A. G. Spalding & Bros., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 25, 1924. Serial No. 701,769. 3 Claims. (Cl. 36—14.)



1. In a turned shoe an upper and an intermediate sole stitched together, a strip of suitable material having one edge lying between the edge of the upper and the edge of the intermediate sole, and secured by the connecting stitches, and a rubber outsole, the free edge of said strip being adhesively secured to the edge surface of the rubber sole.

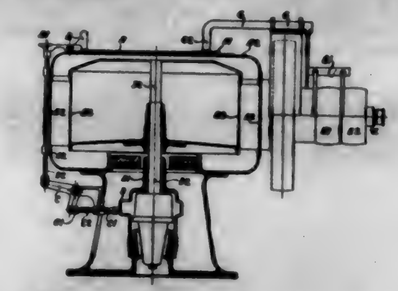
1,539,769. MOTOR SILENCER. GEORGE WASHINGTON POILLON, JR., Tarrytown, N. Y. Filed July 14, 1921, Serial No. 484,588. Renewed Nov. 25, 1924. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—78.)

1. In an internal combustion engine, a connecting rod having a plunger at the forward end, a piston, a knuckle having a bearing for the wrist pin at the piston and having a chamber in which said plunger may have movement, a sleeve on the connecting rod, said sleeve being secured to said knuckle, the front end of the sleeve forming a seat for the plunger in the forward position of the piston, and a spring coiled about the connecting rod exerting its pressure at one end against said sleeve.



1,539,770. CLUTCH-PEDAL HOLDER. WILLIAM W. REINELT, Deckerville, Mich. Filed June 3, 1924. Serial No. 717,601. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—81.)

An attachment for holding the clutch pedal of a Fordson tractor depressed, the same consisting of a clip adapted to be applied to the clutch pedal, a bar pivoted to the clip and having upwardly inclined notches in an edge portion thereof, and a guide consisting of a metal strap having an end portion doubled upon itself to provide a loop through which the bar passes, and a pin connecting the folded portions of the metal strap and adapted to engage a notch of the bar and hold the same in the required adjusted position.



1,539,771. SPRAYING APPARATUS. JOHN ANSIA RHODES, Atlanta, Ga., assignor to James H. Walker, Jr., Griffin, Ga. Filed Jan. 12, 1924. Serial No. 685,919. 2 Claims. (Cl. 230—45.)

1. A device of the class described comprising a beam, supporting wheels therefor, a tank mounted on the beam, an upstanding pillar carried by the beam adjacent to the tank, a force pump extending within the tank, means for supporting the pump on the pillar, said pump including a reciprocating member, a rod, guide means carried by the pillar for the rod, an operative connection between the rod and certain of the supporting wheels for reciprocating the rod during travel of the device, and means for operatively connecting the rod with the reciprocating plunger to reciprocate the plunger with the rod.

1,539,772. SAFETY DEVICE FOR CENTRIFUGAL-MACHINE BASKETS. ANDREW ROBERT ROBERTSON and ALEXANDER FRASER DUNSMORE, Glasgow, Scotland. Filed July 20, 1923. Serial No. 652,714. 4 Claims. (Cl. 192—136.)

1. A safety device for use in connection with covers for centrifugal machines, having a cam on the machine spindle, a detent pivoted on a stationary part of the machine and extending over the edge of the cover, in combination with a bolt-like element adapted to engage said cam, a spring normally holding the bolt clear of the path of the cam and means connecting the detent to the bolt.

1,539,773. GAME. FRANK X. ROTH, Portland, Oreg. Filed May 22, 1924. Serial No. 715,176. 4 Claims. (Cl. 273—136.)

1. Game apparatus of the character specified comprising complemental members hingedly connected, one of the members constituting a case, a drawer slidable within the case and adapted to receive and hold the game pieces and when extended to provide a support for the complemental member, and means coacting with the drawer, case and hinged member to secure the drawer when moved inward and to fasten the hinged member when folded.

1,539,774. WINDOW SHADE. RYUJI SATO, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 6, 1922. Serial No. 527,403. 6 Claims. (Cl. 156—10.)

4. A device of the class described comprising a pair of curtain rollers, a curtain equal to three times the length of a window frame on which the same is to be used and having an opening therein equal to one-third its length and having its ends secured to said rollers, strips of springy material inserted in said curtain at opposite ends of said opening, a manipulating means connecting said rollers and common to both for moving said curtain in opposite directions.

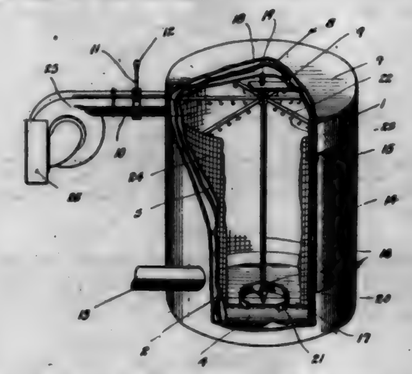
1,539,775. PROCESS OF PURIFYING AND STERILIZING WATER. JOHAN NICOLAAS ADOLF SAUER, Amsterdam, Netherlands, assignor to Naamloose Vennootschap Norit Witsuiker Maatschappij (also called Norit White Sugar Company), Amsterdam, Netherlands, a Corporation of The Netherlands. Filed July 26, 1917. Serial No. 182,882. 4 Claims. (Cl. 210—9.)

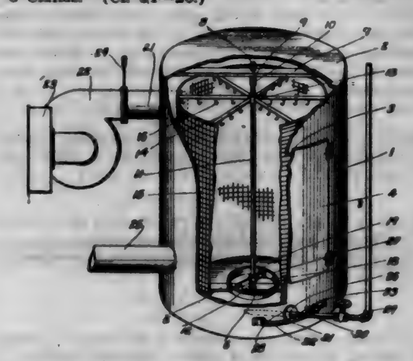
1. The herein described process of freeing water from living organisms and at the same time removing therefrom impurities of an animal, vegetable and mineral character which consists in treating the impure water containing undesirable living microscopic organisms with decolorizing carbon containing over 90% of free carbon, free from living organisms and from alkalies, and separating the water thus treated from the said carbon and from the impurities and other matter adhering to, or absorbed by, such carbon.

1,539,776. GAME. ROBERT CHRISTIAN SCHNURER, West Hoboken, and FRED GREENBERG, Jersey City, N. J. Filed Aug. 5, 1924. Serial No. 730,203. 2 Claims. (Cl. 273—135.)



1. In a radio game apparatus, two dials each having symbols thereon, a chart having stations indicated thereon, each station having associated therewith various combinations of symbols corresponding with symbols on the respective dials, and a map having indicated thereon the stations which appear on the chart so that the turning of the dials will indicate by the associated symbols on the chart and dials the stations appearing on the map and chart.

1,539,777. PROCESS OF MANUFACTURING GLYCERIN AND ALKALI SOAPS. LUDWIG SCHMIDT, Munich, Germany. Filed Feb. 20, 1923. Serial No. 620,266. 1 Claim. (Cl. 87—4.)

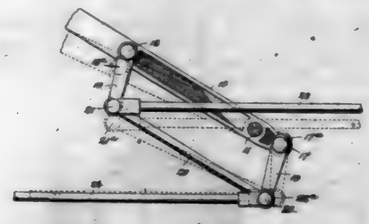


The process of producing waterless glycerin and dry alkali soap which consists in saponifying fat, to produce a mixture of glycerin and alkali soap, thoroughly drying the saponified product in vacuo, grinding the same, separating the glycerin from the soap by means of a volatile glycerin extracting agent which does not dissolve the soap, and distilling off the extracting agent.

1,539,778. DRIER AND DEODORIZER. CARL FRANCIS SELPH, De Queen, Ark., assignor to D. T. Hulse, De Queen, Ark. Filed Aug. 22, 1923. Serial No. 658,839. 7 Claims. (Cl. 34—28.)

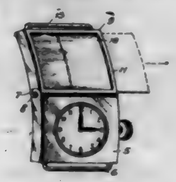
1. In a drier and deodoriser, a casing having an air inlet and an air outlet, a rotatable clothes carrier in the casing and means for causing the air to be introduced under pressure into the casing at one side of the center to impinge against the clothes to cause the clothes carrier to rotate.

1,539,779. DRIER AND DEODORIZER. CARL FRANCIS SELPH, De Queen, Ark., assignor to D. T. Hulse, De Queen, Ark. Filed Aug. 22, 1924. Serial No. 733,610. 3 Claims. (Cl. 34—26.)



3. In a drier and deodoriser, a housing having an air inlet and an air outlet, and having a steam pipe opening located near the bottom of the housing, a reticulated cage rotatable in the housing, means for suspending articles within the cage, a steam pipe projected through the steam pipe opening at an angle to the radius of the cage, a rail adjacent the steam pipe opening supporting the steam pipe, and a clamp holding the steam pipe to the rail.

1,539,780. BRAKE MECHANISM. GEORGE L. SMITH, Washington, D. C., assignor to United States Ordnance Company, Washington, D. C., a Corporation of Virginia. Filed Jan. 17, 1924. Serial No. 686,908. 6 Claims. (Cl. 188—204.)



5. In an automobile front and rear wheel brake system, the combination of a pair of members for respectively transmitting forces to the front and rear brakes of the system, a lever for imparting forces to the members for transmission to the front and rear brakes respectively, a pair of arms pivoted to said lever and having said members respectively pivoted thereto, and means between said arms cooperating with the latter to distribute said forces through the members to said brakes.

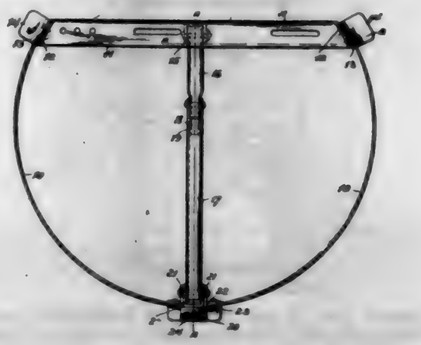
1,539,781. MEMORANDUM WRIST WATCH. ALBERT EGERTON SMYTHE, Buenos Aires, Argentina. Filed Mar. 14, 1923. Serial No. 625,168. 1 Claim. (Cl. 224—4.)



In a combination article of jewelry, a wrist watch, a frame, said wrist watch and frame having two abutting edges, means for pivotally connecting said abutting edges, an eye formed on one side of said wrist watch, and an eye formed on one side of said frame, said eyes adapted to receive wrist-encircling means to secure said combination article in operative position upon the wrist of the wearer.

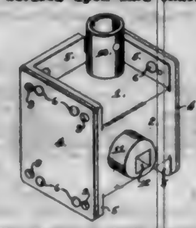
1,539,782. POWER-DRIVEN SCREW DRIVER. CLYDE H. STANSELL, Renton, Wash. Filed Oct. 8, 1923. Serial No. 667,210. 2 Claims. (Cl. 144—32.)

1. A power driven screw driver comprising a tubular shell having in one end a screw receiving socket, a shank journaling section of reduced diameter inwardly adjacent to said screw receiving socket, the remainder of the shell having a section next to the journal section enlarged to receive a spring outside of the shank and a major section of slightly larger bore extending to its other end, a screw driving shank within the shell and fitting the bearing section, a collar upon the shank within the major section, a separate shank extension and a sleeve secured thereto and fitting the outer end of the bore in the shell, the shank having an enlarged outer end fitting said sleeve and the sleeve having a flange at its inner end preventing withdrawal of the shank, the shank and shank extension having end faces interlocking by endwise movement to form a driving clutch and a spring at each side of the collar acting one to withdraw the screw-engaging end of the shank into the shell and the other to disengage the driving clutch.

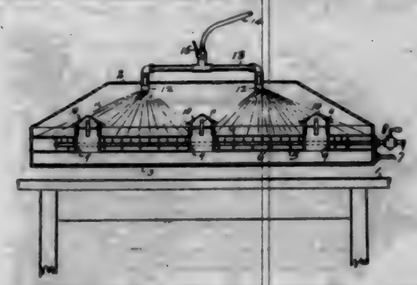
1,539,783. TIRE CARRIER FOR AUTOMOBILES. CHARLES C. STEEL and THOMAS H. LYNN, Williamsport, Pa.; said Steel assignor to said Lynn. Filed Aug. 1, 1919. Serial No. 314,735. 17 Claims. (Cl. 224—29.)

1. A spare tire carrier, the combination of a metal strap bent into the segment of a circle greater than a half circle and of a size to fit within a standard size rim and form a seat or support for the same except at the top, a brace connecting the ends of the strap, a saddle at each end of the strap, a link pivoted to the inner face of the strap intermediate the saddles, the said link being provided at its outer end with a shoulder, and a toggle lever pivoted to the brace and to the link for moving the shoulder on the latter into and out of locking position.

1,539,784. ATOMIZER. CHRISTOPHER STRACHAN, South Orange, N. J., and DAVID J. IRISH, St. George, N. Y., assignors to Morse Dry Dock & Repair Co., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 5, 1923. Serial No. 610,882. 10 Claims. (Cl. 299—118.)



8. An atomizer comprising a fluid conducting tube, a disk contacting with the front end of said tube and having a rearwardly extending neck, a cap threaded on the tube and bearing against the front side of said disk, said cap having a discharge orifice enlarged at its rear end to form a fluid whirling chamber, said neck and disk having tangential ports opening into said whirling chamber, the rear end of one port opening through the rear face of said disk, while the other ports open through the periphery of said neck, and a manually slidable port-controlling sleeve on said neck incapable of closing said one port.



1,539,785. GEAR BOX. JOHN LENARD STUART, Oakland, Calif. Filed Apr. 22, 1924. Serial No. 708,157. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—36.)

A gear box comprising a casing having front and rear walls, a top, a bottom, and two open sides; supporting flanges extending vertically, both up and down, from said rear wall and open sides; cover plates adapted to close said open sides; means for securing said cover plates to the flanges of said sides; a horizontally disposed shaft journaled in said front and rear walls; a driving gear secured upon said shaft within the casing; a vertically disposed shaft journaled in said top and bottom and reversible end for end; and a driven gear reversibly secured upon said vertical shaft and meshing with said driving gear.

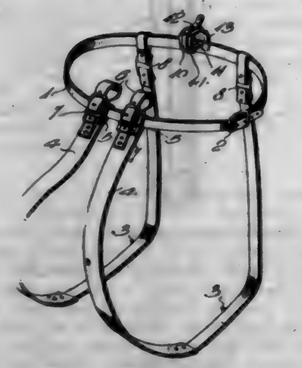
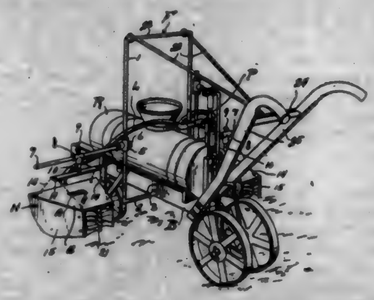
1,539,786. PRESSING MACHINE. BENJAMIN SUHLER, Houston, Tex. Filed May 13, 1921. Serial No. 469,103. 1 Claim. (Cl. 68—9.)



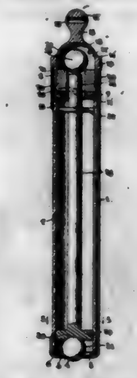
A clothes pressing apparatus comprising a casing divided into an upper, intermediate and lower compartment, the lower compartment having a perforated bottom, passageway sleeves communicating with the lower and upper compartments, said sleeves extending above the bottom of the upper compartment, hoods secured to and spaced above the upper ends of the sleeves, spray nozzles arranged in the upper portion of the upper compartment, and a heater arranged in the intermediate compartment for generating steam in the upper compartment to be delivered through the sleeves to the lower compartment.

1,539,787. AUTOMOBILE ATTACHMENT. JOE SUSIO, Lewis Run, Pa. Filed July 12, 1922. Serial No. 574,892. 1 Claim. (Cl. 180—8.)



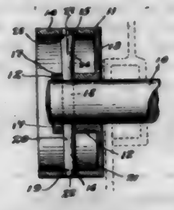
The combination with a motor-propelled vehicle including a rear axle casing, a rear axle journaled in the casing, a drive shaft operatively connected to the axle, and a transmission at the forward end of the drive shaft and including a pinion; of a housing carried by the casing, a shaft journaled on the casing and in the housing and provided with a crank, a thrust member carried by the crank, a second shaft supported for rotation and auxiliary to the transmission, drive shaft, rear axle casing and rear axle, intermeshing beveled pinions connecting the shafts, and a pinion shiftable on the second shaft into and out of engagement with the pinion of the transmission.

1,539,788. PACK-BASKET HARNESS. ORLEY C. TUTTLE, Old Forge, N. Y. Filed Apr. 24, 1924. Serial No. 708,783. 1 Claim. (Cl. 224—8.)



A pack basket harness comprising a rim-strap adapted to encircle a pack basket under its rim, a pair of basket-supporting sling-straps each connected at one end to the front portion of the rim-strap and having their other ends adjustably connected to the rear portion of said rim-strap at horizontally spaced points, the front portions of said sling-straps being adapted to pass in front of the user's shoulders, a pair of short adjustable straps secured to the first named ends of said sling-straps and adapted for passing transversely around the front portion of the basket rim to prevent excessive forward pull directly on said rim-strap, and a short adjustable locking-strap passing through the rim-strap between said sling-straps and adapted for passage transversely around the rear portion of the basket rim to hold said rim-strap against circumferential creeping and against excessive downward sliding by the pull of said sling-straps.

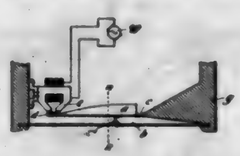
1,539,789. SPRAYING APPARATUS. JAMES H. WALKER, Jr., Griffin, Ga. Filed July 1, 1922. Serial No. 572,202. 5 Claims. (Cl. 299—41.)



1. A spraying apparatus comprising a hood consisting of a top and sides, said top being disposed on a downward and rearward incline, and a spraying medium supported by and underlying the top, said top being flexible on lines lengthwise thereof.

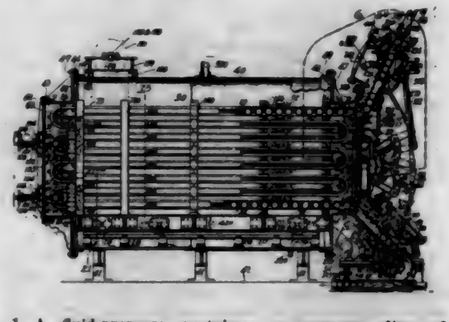
1,539,790. OIL THIEF. CHESTER B. YOUNG, Lawrenceville, Ill. Filed Sept. 5, 1924. Serial No. 736,101. 5 Claims. (Cl. 137—18.)

1. In a device of the character set forth, a relatively long tubular body having an aperture through the lower end thereof, a removable hollow head threaded into the upper end thereof, an axially bored removable closure threaded into the lower portion of said head, a longitudinally extending freely reciprocable rod within said body having the upper end extended partially through said bored closure, and a free ball member at each end of said rod, one supporting said rod and normally acting to close said lower aperture and the other within said head and normally acting to close the upper end of the bore of said closure.



1,539,791. PULLEY. CHARLES H. HERTZLER, Gracemont, Okla. Filed Oct. 9, 1923. Serial No. 667,578. 3 Claims. (Cl. 287—53.)

2. In combination, a shaft, a pulley fitted on the shaft and having a hub and rim, the hub, rim and shaft having alined openings, and an attaching pin fitted in the alined openings and having a tenon at one end fitting in one of the openings of the rim, the other end of the pin being provided with diverging arms having shoulders engageable with the rim, and lugs disposed in the other opening of the rim, said pin being constructed of a single piece of resilient metal and having one end split to define said arms.



1,539,792. SUBMARINE SOUND TRANSMITTER. HEINRICH HECHT, Kiel, and WALTER HAHNEMANN and WILHELM RUDOLPH, Kitzeberg, near Kiel, Germany, assignors to the Firm Signal Gesellschaft m. b. H., Kiel, Germany. Filed Feb. 4, 1921. Serial No. 442,576. 5 Claims. (Cl. 181—5.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)

1. A submarine sound producer comprising a sound radiating member, a lever rigid in the direction and within the range of the exciting vibrations and a jointless connection between said lever and the sound radiating member, said connection being rigid in the direction of the vibrations but yielding at right angles thereto, and an exciting device adapted to vibrate the lever; the point of the lever acted upon by the exciting device and the junction point with the sound radiating member being disposed at portions of the lever to cause the first mentioned point to execute larger motions than the junction point with the sound radiating member.

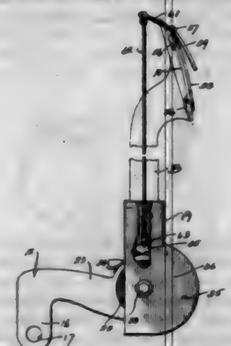
1,539,793. AUTOMATIC CONTINUOUS PRESSURE COOKER. JOHN L. ANDERSON, Ogden, and JAMES A. ANDERSON and WILLIAM R. EDDINGTON, Morgan, Utah. Filed Aug. 27, 1923. Serial No. 659,548. 175 Claims. (Cl. 126—272.)

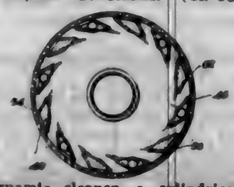
1. A fluid-pressure container, a conveyor disposed internally thereof, an inlet mechanism for transferring objects from the outside to the inside of the container, a feeding mechanism arranged to receive objects from the inlet mechanism and to feed said objects to the conveyor, in timed relation to the travel of the conveyor, and a fluid-pressure outlet lock for receiving objects from the conveyor, said outlet lock formed of oscillating outlet gates operably arranged in mutually opposed relation, and means for operating the outlet gates in timed relation to the movements of the inlet gates.

1,539,794. FLUID-OPERATED VACUUM-MASSAGE DEVICE. EDWARD R. HANGLITER, Ardsley, Pa. Filed Aug. 18, 1922. Serial No. 582,695. 6 Claims. (Cl. 230—13.)



1. In an apparatus of the class described, the combination with a vacuum tube, and means for creating a vacuum therein, of an air inlet communicating laterally with the vacuum tube, a valve mounted on the vacuum tube and operable under pressure from the air inlet to break the vacuum, and means for varying the effective area of the air inlet.

1,539,795. WIRE-POLISHING MACHINE. RICHARD K. HUTCHINS, Worcester, Mass., assignor to The Whitaker Reed Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Aug. 17, 1922. Serial No. 582,528. 5 Claims. (Cl. 242—54.)



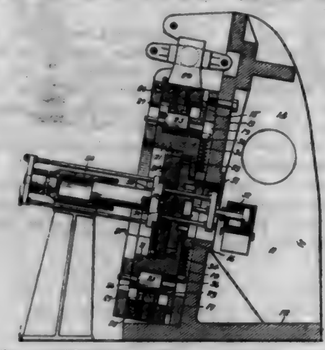
1. A wire working machine having in combination wire cleaning and polishing devices, a pair of drums on which the wire is alternately wound, continuously actuated mechanism effective to drive said drums alternately in opposite directions, controlling devices for said drums each including a detector directly engaging the wire on a drum, and connections from said detectors to said driving mechanism, said connections including means by which the connections may be made operable to stop or reverse the drum movement as desired.

1,539,796. CLUTCH CONTROL. MICHAEL J. KIRST, Barrington, Ill. Filed Mar. 17, 1924. Serial No. 699,903. 5 Claims. (Cl. 74—81.)

1. In combination with a pivoted foot lever including a foot rest plate, a mounting plate secured upon said foot rest plate, a pedal pivoted to the mounting plate in overhanging relation to the mounting plate, and pawl and ratchet means operably connected to the pivoted pedal whereby the foot lever may be held in desired adjusted position.

1,539,797. AIR CLEANER. MILTON E. CHANDLER and FRANK C. MOCK, Chicago, Ill. Filed Sept. 9, 1921. Serial No. 499,468. 10 Claims. (Cl. 183—85.)

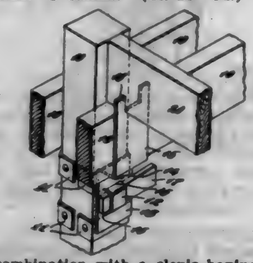
1. In a dynamic cleaner, a cylindrical chamber, a cover for said chamber spaced therefrom to define an annular inlet and having an axial outlet tube integral therewith extending downwardly therefrom past the plane of said inlet, a series of guides for directing the entering flow tangentially, said guides spacing said cover from said chamber, and fastening bolts lying between the walls of certain of said guides to hold the cover in place.



1,539,798. PROCESS OF MAKING BENZOXAZOLON ARSONIC ACIDS. LUDWIG BENDA, Mainkur, near Frankfort-on-the-Main, and OTTO SIEVERTS, Fechenheim, near Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany. Filed July 7, 1924. Serial No. 724,655. 1 Claim. (Cl. 260—14.)

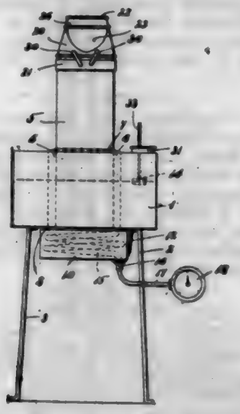
Process for the production of benzoxazolon-6-arsonic acids by reducing 6-nitro-benzoxazolons and transforming the amino compounds thus obtained into the arsonic acids by diazotizing and then treating with an arsenite.

1,539,799. PROCESS FOR THE PRODUCTION OF 4-AMINO-3-HYDROXYBENZENE-1-ARSONIC ACIDS. LUDWIG BENDA, Mainkur, near Frankfort-on-the-Main, and OTTO SIEVERTS, Fechenheim, near Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany. Filed July 7, 1924. Serial No. 724,656. 2 Claims. (Cl. 260—14.)



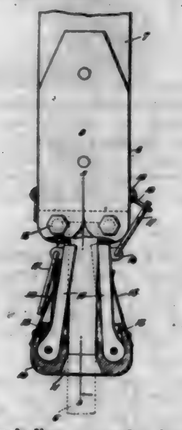
1. Process for the production of ortho-amino-hydroxybenzene-arsonic acids by heating benzoxazolon-arsonic acids with alkalies.

1,539,800. APPARATUS FOR SHAPING AND TRUING BRAKE DRUMS. GEORGE C. BRAINARD, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to Hydraulic Steel Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Jan. 7, 1921. Serial No. 435,654. 3 Claims. (Cl. 113—48.)



1. The combination with a radially grooved back plate, of a plurality of radially movable sectors and means for moving the same, a centrally disposed mandrel adapted to receive a brake drum, shrinker blocks carried by the movable sectors and engaging the flange of the brake drum and means for engaging the face of the brake drum.

1,539,801. JOIST SPACER AND STRINGER HANGER. HARRY O. DAVIDSON, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Hydraulic Pressed Steel Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 1, 1920. Serial No. 362,328. 3 Claims. (Cl. 20—94.)



1. The combination with a clevis having an outwardly extending loop, of a support having a base provided with an aperture adapted to fit over said outwardly extending loop, a wedge adapted to be inserted in said loop to secure said support on said clevis, said support being bifurcated.

1,539,802. SHOE-TEMPERING MACHINE. DONALD B. HEATH, Winthrop, Mass., assignor to Boston Electric Heating Corp., Whitman, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Aug. 12, 1920. Serial No. 402,976. 5 Claims. (Cl. 13—1.)

1. Apparatus of the kind described comprising a supply tank of annular form, a steam generating tank of less diameter than the inner diameter of the supply tank and extending through said outer tank, heating means for the inner tank, shoe supporting means for holding the toe portion of a shoe within the path of steam of the inner tank and means to protect the shoe upper from condensed steam.

1,539,803. WINDMILL COUPLER. J WYLIE MCDANIEL, Sonora, Tex. Filed Jan. 30, 1923. Serial No. 615,875. 4 Claims. (Cl. 287—119.)

4. AMENDMENT TO THE RULES OF PRACTICE.

(Order No. 2,911.)

U. S. Patent Office, Washington, May 23, 1925.

Acting under the provisions of section 488 of the Revised Statutes and with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce, the following rules of the Rules of Practice in the United States Patent Office are amended as indicated:

Rule 12, line 1, cancel "reaching" and substitute placed in the Patent Office pouch at, so that the first paragraph of the rule as amended will read:

"12. Mail placed in the Patent Office pouch at the post office at Washington, D. C., up to 4.30 p. m. on week days, excepting holidays, and 1 p. m. on half holidays, is entered as received in the Patent Office on the day it reaches the post office."

Rule 14, paragraph 2, line 3, cancel "and models;" line 9, cancel "with this" and insert or Circular of Information, with a, so that the second paragraph of the rule as amended will read:

"Of the propriety of making an application for a patent, the inventor must judge for himself. The office is open to him, and its records pertaining to all patents granted may be inspected either by himself or by any attorney or expert he may call to his aid, and its reports are widely distributed. (See rule 196.) Further than this the office can render him no assistance until his case comes regularly before it in the manner prescribed by law. A copy of the rules or Circular of Information, with a section marked, sent to the individual making an inquiry of the character referred to, is intended as a respectful answer by the office."

Rule 15, line 8, cancel from "except" to the end of the rule, so that the rule as amended will read:

"15. Pending applications are preserved in secrecy. No information will be given, without authority, respecting the filing by any particular person of an application for a patent or for the reissue of a patent, the pendency of any particular case before the office, or the subject matter of any particular application, unless it shall be necessary to the proper conduct of business before the office, as provided by rules 97, 103, and 108."

Rule 17, at the end of paragraph (c) add:

"provided the patent office of the country of which he is a citizen or subject allows substantially reciprocal privileges to those admitted to practice before the United States Patent Office."

so that paragraph (c) of the rule as amended will read:

"(c) Any foreign patent attorney not a resident of the United States, who shall file proof to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that he is registered and in good standing before the patent office of the country of which he is a citizen or subject, and is possessed of the qualifications stated in paragraph (b), provided the patent office of the country of which he is a citizen or subject allows substantially reciprocal privileges to those admitted to practice before the United States Patent Office."

Rules 26, lines 3 and 4, cancel "upon request of the applicant embodied in the assignment." Line 6, cancel "upon like request," so the the rule as amended will read:

"26. In case of an assignment of the whole interest in the invention, or of the whole interest in the patent to be granted, the patent will issue to the assignee; and if the assignee hold an undivided part interest, the patent will issue jointly to the inventor and the assignee; but the assignment in either case must first have been entered of record, and at a day not later than the date of the payment of the final fee (see rule 188); and if it be dated subsequently to the execution of the application, it must give the date of execution of the application, or the date of filing, or the serial number, so that there can be no mistake as to the particular invention intended. The application and oath must be signed by the actual inventor, if alive, even if the patent is to issue to an assignee (see rules 30, 40); if the inventor be dead, the application may be made by the executor or administrator."

Rule 39 (a), line 1, after "name" insert citizenship, so that paragraph (a) of the rule as amended will read:

"(a) Preamble stating the name, citizenship and residence of the applicant and the title of the invention."

Rule 42, line 13, change "a law examiner" to the examiner of classification, so that the rule as amended will read:

"42. If several inventions, claimed in a single application, be of such a nature that a single patent may not be issued to cover them, the inventor will be required to limit the description, drawing and claim of the pending application to whichever invention he may elect. The other inventions may be made the subjects of separate applications, which must conform to the rules applicable to original applications. If the independence of the inventions be clear, such limitation will be made before any action upon the merits; otherwise it may be made at any time before final action thereon, in the discretion of the examiner. A requirement of division will not be repeated without the written approval of the examiner of classification. After a final requirement of division, the applicant may elect to prosecute one group of claims, retaining the remaining claims in the case with the privilege of appealing from the requirement of division after final action by the examiner on the group of claims prosecuted."

Rule 45, line 4, cancel "-cap" and after "paper" insert (8 x 13 inches), so that the rule as amended will read:

"45. The specification and claims must be plainly written or printed on but one side of the paper. All interlineations and erasures must be clearly referred to in marginal or foot notes on the same sheet of paper. Legal paper (8 x 13 inches) with the lines numbered is deemed preferable, and a wide margin must always be reserved upon the left-hand side of the page."

Rule 47, second paragraph, line 2, after "papers" insert except the drawings; line 4, after "application" insert except the drawings; at the end of the last paragraph add:

"If the papers as filed are not properly ribboned or each sheet impressed with the seal, the case will be accepted for examination, but before it is allowed, duplicate papers, prepared in compliance with the foregoing sentence, must be filed,"

so that the second (last) paragraph of the rule as amended will read:

"When the oath is taken before an officer in a country foreign to the United States, all the application papers, except the drawings, must be attached together and a ribbon passed one or more times through all the sheets of the application, except the drawings, and the ends of said ribbon brought together under the seal before the latter is affixed and impressed, or each sheet must be impressed with the official seal of the officer before whom the oath was taken. If the papers as filed are not properly ribboned or each sheet impressed with the seal, the case will be accepted for examination, but before it is allowed, duplicate papers, prepared in compliance with the foregoing sentence, must be filed."

Rule 68, at the end of the first paragraph add:

"In every instance where reconsideration is requested in view of an interview with the examiner or his assistant, the applicant or his attorney must file a written statement of the reasons presented at the interview as warranting favorable action,"

so that the first paragraph of the rule as amended will read:

"68. The applicant has a right to amend before or after the first rejection or action; and he may amend as often as the examiner presents new references or reasons for rejection. In so amending the applicant must clearly point out all the patentable novelty which he thinks the case presents in view of the state of the art disclosed by the references cited or the objections made. He must also show how the amendments avoid such references or objections. In every instance where reconsideration is requested in view of an interview with the examiner or his assistant, the applicant or his attorney must file a written statement of the reasons presented at the interview as warranting favorable action."

Rule 91, cancel the first sentence and substitute:

"The application for a reissue must be accompanied by an offer to surrender the original patent. The application should also be accompanied by the original patent, or, if the original is lost or inaccessible, by an affidavit to that effect. The application may be accepted for examination in the absence of the original patent or the affidavit, but one or the other must be supplied before the case is allowed,"

so that the rule as amended will read:

"91. The application for a reissue must be accompanied by an offer to surrender the original patent. The application should also be accompanied by the original patent, or, if the original is lost or inaccessible, by an affidavit to that effect. The application may be accepted for examination in the absence of the original patent or the affidavit, but one or the other must be supplied before the case is allowed. If a reissue be refused, the original patent will be returned to applicant upon his request."

Rule 122, line 6, after "claim" insert:

"or (4) if the interference involves a design patent or an application therefor, alleging that there is no interference in fact,"

so that the first paragraph of the rule as amended will read:

"122. Motions to dissolve an interference (1) alleging that there has been such informality in declaring the same as will preclude the proper determination of the question of priority of invention, or (2) denying the patentability of an applicant's claim, or (3) denying his right to make the claim, or (4) if the interference involves a design patent or an application therefor, alleging that there is no interference in fact, should contain a full statement of the grounds relied upon and should, if possible, be made not later than the thirtieth day after the statements of the parties have been received and approved. Such motions and all motions of a similar character, if in the opinion of the Commissioner they be in proper form, will be heard and determined by the law examiner, due notice of the day of hearing being given by the office to all parties. If in the opinion of the Commissioner the motion be not in proper form, or if it be not brought within the time specified and no satisfactory reason be given for the delay, it will not be considered and the parties will be so notified.

Rule 151, line 17, after "contested cases" insert on final hearing; at the end add:

"Petitions for rehearings or modification of the decision must be filed within thirty days after the decision or before the limit of appeal expires,"

"151. Hearings will be had by the Commissioner at 10 o'clock a. m., and by the board of examiners in chief at 1 o'clock p. m., and by the examiner of interferences upon interlocutory matters at 10 o'clock a. m., and upon final hearings at 11 o'clock a. m., on the day appointed unless some other hour be specifically designated. If either party in a contested case, or the appellant in an ex parte case, appear at the proper time, he will be heard. After the day of hearing, a contested case will not be taken up for oral argument except by consent of all parties. If the engagements of the tribunal having jurisdiction be such as to prevent the case from being taken up on the day of hearing, a new assignment will be made, or the case will be continued from day to day until heard. Unless it shall be otherwise ordered before the hearing begins, oral arguments will be limited to one hour for each party in contested cases on final hearing, and to one-half hour in other cases. After a contested case has been argued, nothing further relating thereto will be heard unless upon request of the tribunal having jurisdiction of the case; and all interviews for this purpose with parties in interest or their attorneys will be invariably denied. Petitions for rehearing or modification of the decision must be filed within thirty days after the decision or before the limit of appeal expires."

Rule 155, line 4, cancel "must" and substitute preferably should; cancel "cap or foolscap" and after "paper," same line, insert (8 x 13 inches), so that the rule as amended will read:

"155. The pages of each deposition must be numbered consecutively, and the name of the witness plainly and conspicuously written at the top of each page. The testimony preferably should be written upon legal paper (8 x 13 inches), with a wide margin on the left-hand side of the page, and with the writing on one side only of the sheet."

Rule 166, line 4, after "year" insert provided by rule 77, so that the rule as amended will read:

"166. Whenever the Commissioner shall direct the withdrawal of an application from issue on request of an applicant for reasons not prohibited by rule 165, this withdrawal will not operate to stay the period of one year, provided by rule 77, running against the application, which begins to attach from the date of the notice of allowance."

Rule 170, line 5, first paragraph, change "will" to may; cancel the second paragraph, so that the rule as amended will read:

"170. Whenever a mistake, incurred through the fault of the office, is clearly disclosed by the records or files of the office, a certificate, stating the fact and nature of such mistake, signed by the Commissioner of Patents, and sealed with the seal of the Patent Office, may, at the request of the patentee or his assignee, be indorsed without charge upon the letters patent, and recorded in the records of patents, and a printed copy thereof attached to each printed copy of the specification and drawing.

"Mistakes not incurred through the fault of the office, and not affording legal grounds for reissues, will not be corrected after the delivery of the letters patent to the patentee or his agent.

"Changes or corrections will not be made in letters patent after the delivery thereof to the patentee or his attorney, except as above provided."

Rule 175, line 5, cancel "but" and insert:

"such renewal of the application may be filed any time after the case is allowed and such renewal will be taken as a waiver of the right to pay the final fee. But,"

"175. When the patent has been withheld by reason of nonpayment of the final fee, any person, whether inventor or assignee, who has an interest in the invention for which the patent was ordered to issue may file a renewal of the application for the same invention; such renewal of the application may be filed any time after the case is allowed and such renewal will be taken as a waiver of the right to pay the final fee. But any renewal application must be made within two years after the allowance of the original application. Upon the hearing of the new application abandonment will be considered as a question of fact."

Rule 191, line 57, change ".60" to .75; after line 57, insert:

On admission to practice as an attorney	5.00

after line 70, insert:

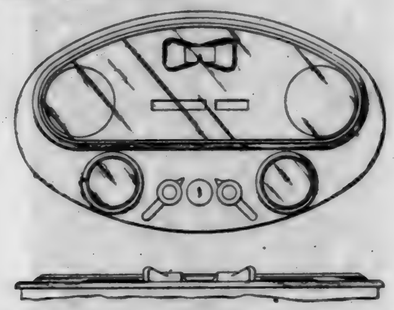
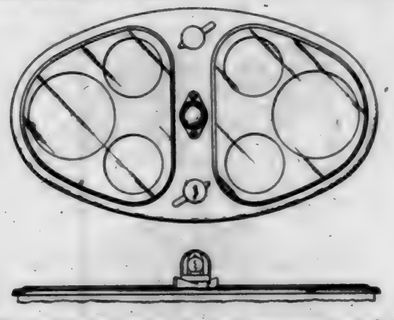
67,478. PILLOW COVER. SARAH SHAPIRO, Waterbury, Conn. Filed Dec. 10, 1924. Serial No. 11,659. Term of patent 3½ years.



The ornamental design for a pillow cover as shown.

67,479. PLAQUE. JAMES E. WARD, Springfield, Ohio, assignor to The Chaney Manufacturing Company, Springfield, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Dec. 23, 1924. Serial No. 11,773. Term of patent 3½ years.



The ornamental design for a plaque substantially as shown.

67,480. INSTRUMENT PANEL. FREDERIK C. WHITTINGTON, Evanston, Ill., assignor to Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Virginia. Filed May 3, 1922. Serial No. 2,062. Term of patent 7 years.

The ornamental design for an instrument panel substantially as shown.

67,481. INSTRUMENT PANEL. FREDERIK C. WHITTINGTON, Evanston, Ill., assignor to Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Virginia. Filed May 3, 1922. Serial No. 2,064. Term of patent 7 years.

The ornamental design for an instrument panel substantially as shown.

67,482. ROCKER SWING. ARTHUR WURDACK, Normandy, Mo. Filed Oct. 13, 1923. Serial No. 7,491. Term of patent 14 years.

67,483. RING. JOHN L. COLEMAN, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 23, 1925. Serial No. 12,117. Term of patent 7 years.

67,484. RECEPTACLE INCLOSURE. MABEL KLEIN, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Mar. 14, 1925. Serial No. 12,718. Term of patent 3½ years.

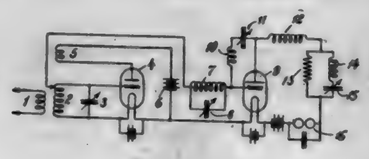
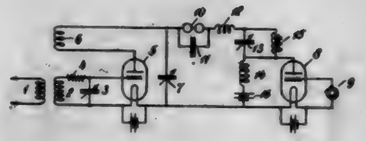
1,539,818. CROSSCUT SAW. EDWARD P. ARENDAU, Spokane, Wash. Filed June 19, 1922, Serial No. 569,509. Renewed Mar. 2, 1925. 1 Claim. (Cl. 143—82.)



The combination with a yoke shaped housing having spaced track plates therein, a guide bridge connecting the opposite ends of said yoke, and a guide wheel in one end of said yoke, a power wheel in the other end of the yoke and means for revolving said wheel, a chain saw comprising pivoted links adapted to ride on the edges of said track plates and fashioned with cutting teeth, sprocket teeth on some of said links adapted to pass between said plates, and anti-friction rollers on said power wheel co-acting with said sprocket teeth.

1,539,819. SNAP SWITCH. CHRISTIAN AALBORG, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Aug. 30, 1920. Serial No. 406,844. 3 Claims. (Cl. 200—67.)

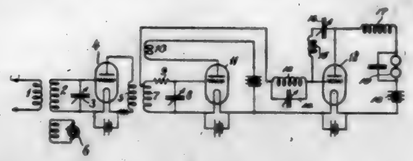


1. In an electric switch, the combination with a base, a stationary contact member, and a movable contact member pivotally supported from the base, of an outwardly extending arm carried by the movable contact member, a handle pivotally supported at a point remote from the base and provided with an arm extending inwardly past the first mentioned arm, a resilient connection between the remote ends of the respective arms, and a pair of spaced stop shoulders connected to the movable contact member and engaged and actuated by the handle for imparting positive movement to the movable contact member in either direction during a portion of its movement.

1,539,820. WAVE SIGNALING SYSTEM. EDWIN H. ARMSTRONG, Yonkers, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 8, 1922. Serial No. 566,682. 6 Claims. (Cl. 179—171.)

1. An electric regenerative system adapted to produce super-regenerative action, including a feed-back circuit having a certain degree of damping, and means for periodically varying the relation between the amount of feed-back and the degree of damping of the system comprising, an oscillating system adapted to supply an auxiliary frequency to the regenerative system, and a resistance connected in said oscillating system for obtaining substantial proportionality in the response of the system.

1,539,821. WAVE SIGNALING SYSTEM. EDWIN H. ARMSTRONG, Yonkers, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 8, 1922. Serial No. 566,684. 4 Claims. (Cl. 179—171.)



1. The method of operating a super-regenerative system having a certain degree of damping and which includes an oscillating system producing an auxiliary frequency for periodically varying the relation between the amount of regeneration and the damping of the system, which includes producing an inductive reaction within the system, and neutralizing and compensating for said reaction.

1,539,822. WAVE SIGNALING SYSTEM. EDWIN H. ARMSTRONG, Yonkers, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 8, 1922. Serial No. 566,685. 3 Claims. (Cl. 179—171.)

1. The method of selectively amplifying varying electric currents which comprises impressing the current to be amplified on a circuit tuned to the frequency of said current, combining the current with locally generated oscillations to produce a current of different frequency, impressing said different frequency current upon a regenerative system having a certain degree of damping and periodically varying the relation between the amount of regeneration and the degree of damping of the system, whereby super-regenerative action is obtained.

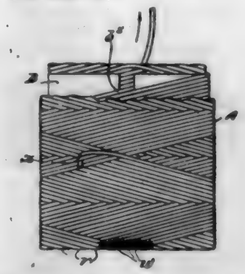
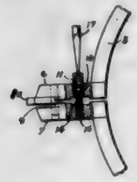
1,539,823. COLLAPSIBLE OR DEFORMABLE TUBE. FREDERIC E. BALDWIN, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Apr. 5, 1924. Serial No. 704,369. 4 Claims. (Cl. 221—60.)



1. A method of forming a hinge lug on a collapsible tube having a semi-rigid breast portion which consists in striking up or exuding a pair of closely adjacent lugs on said breast portion, placing the pintle portion of a cap retainer between said lugs and then pinching the upper portions of said lugs together so as to form an eye for said pintle portion.

1,539,824. WASHING MACHINE. PERCY E. BARKER, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor of one-half to Thomas B. Van Dorn, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Oct. 12, 1921. Serial No. 507,249. 7 Claims. (Cl. 68—21.)

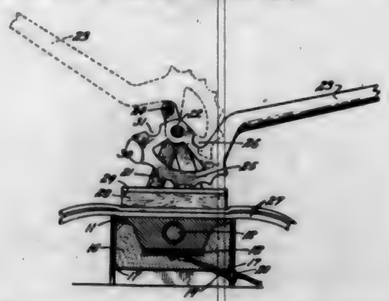


1. A washing machine, comprising a fluid containing casing, a drum rotatable on a horizontal axis therein, said drum being provided in its lower portion with a plurality of pockets located symmetrically with respect to a vertical plane through the drum axis, and means for supplying gaseous medium beneath said drum to alternately enter said pockets on the two sides of said plane and rotate the drum alternately in opposite direction.

1,539,825. WINDING CORDAGE. HENRY A. BODWELL, Andover, Mass., assignor to Smith & Dove Manufacturing Co., Andover, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Aug. 9, 1924. Serial No. 731,076. 13 Claims. (Cl. 242—2.)

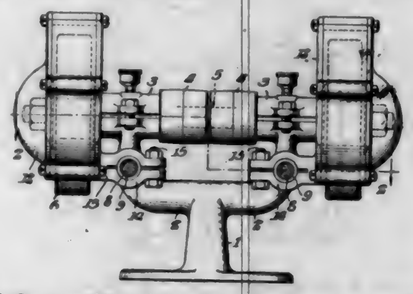
1. A wound cordage package adapted to be unwound from within having therein a reinforcing inclusion held between the windings and adapted to maintain the relation of the windings against distorting stresses.

1,539,826. END-PIECE-CLAMPING MEANS. WILLIAM H. BOUTELLE, Southbridge, Mass., assignor to American Optical Company, Southbridge, Mass., a Voluntary Association of Massachusetts. Filed Nov. 14, 1923. Serial No. 674,751. 3 Claims. (Cl. 88—53.)



1. An end-piece clamping means of the character described comprising a screw threaded head-piece, a screw threaded tail-piece, the screw threads of the said head- and tail-pieces being of different pitches.

1,539,827. METHOD AND MECHANISM FOR CONTROLLING THE DISCHARGE OF LUBRICANT FROM LUBRICATORS. PAUL BROWN, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor, by mesne assignments, to John Rome Battle, Ardmore, Pa. Filed Sept. 5, 1922. Serial No. 586,086. 7 Claims. (Cl. 184—45.)

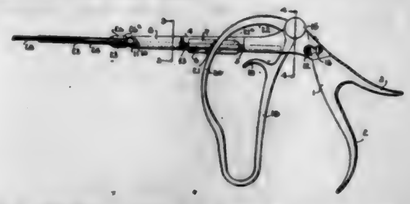


1. The method of controlling the feed of lubricant from a lubricator which consists in subjecting such lubricant to variable pressure and forcing it through a channel, and diminishing the effective length of said channel proportionately to the decrease of said pressure.

1,539,828. TUBE-PLATE VULCANIZER. CARLETON W. CAMPBELL, Denver, Colo., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Moll Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Colorado. Filed Sept. 15, 1924. Serial No. 737,819. 7 Claims. (Cl. 18—18.)

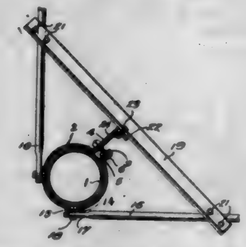
1. A hot plate for vulcanizers having its body portion made of aluminum and its pressure containing portion formed of iron imbedded in said aluminum.

1,539,829. GUARD AND WORK-REST MOUNTING. FRANK L. COLE, Chicago Heights, Ill., assignor to Canedy-Otto Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Apr. 10, 1922. Serial No. 551,038. 7 Claims. (Cl. 51—274.)



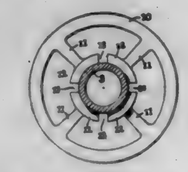
1. In a machine of the class described, the combination of a frame having an operating element mounted thereon, and means arranged co-axially on the frame and supporting respectively a guard for the operating element and a rest for holding articles in position to be operated upon by said element.

1,539,830. MEANS FOR HOLDING LENSES AND THE LIKE. EDWARD CULVER, Pentonville, London, England, assignor to George Culver, Limited, Pentonville, London, England. Filed May 31, 1924. Serial No. 717,008. 7 Claims. (Cl. 88—57.)



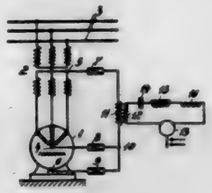
1. In an optical instrument, means for holding a lens consisting of two rings whose inner peripheries are bevelled forming surfaces to hold the lens by a wedging action and whose outer peripheries are bevelled forming surfaces by which the rings may be held together by a wedging action, and means for securing the rings.

1,539,831. UNIVERSAL HANDLE FOR SURGICAL INSTRUMENTS. EMORY C. DAY, Laguna Beach, Calif. Filed Oct. 23, 1922. Serial No. 596,396. 10 Claims. (Cl. 128—320.)



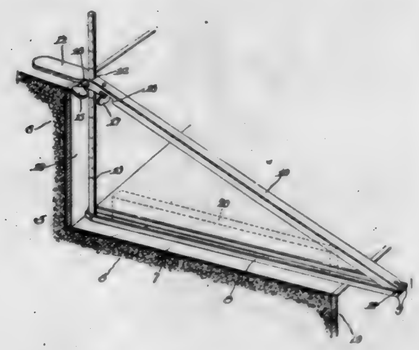
1. A handle or holder for surgical instruments including the combination with a stock and a handhold shaped to fit the palm of the hand, said stock having parallel longitudinal guideway channels and an instrument carrier reciprocably mounted in said channels, of a lever engageable by the fingers and pivoted to the stock and having an integral cam surface directly engageable with the instrument carrier between and in the longitudinal plane of said channels to direct the carrier inwardly in the channels when the lever is moved toward the handhold.

1,539,832. CLAMPING ELEMENT. CHARLES DRAKE, Mannington, W. Va. Filed June 2, 1923. Serial No. 643,092. 1 Claim. (Cl. 189—19.)



A derrick clamp comprising a body portion adapted to embrace the abutting ends of adjacent leg sections of a derrick, the edges of said body portion being provided with outwardly extended, substantially parallel flanges, said flanges being provided with openings for the reception of bolts, the upper and lower ends of said body portion being provided with ears, means for securing the diagonal braces to said ears, means for securing the horizontal girths to the body portion of said clamping element, a web formed on the outer edge of one of said flanges, and a bracing member secured to said web and to said girths.

1,539,833. CONVEYER ROLL FOR FURNACE USE. FRANK A. FAHRENWALD, Cleveland Heights, Ohio. Filed June 26, 1924. Serial No. 722,545. 6 Claims. (Cl. 214—18.)



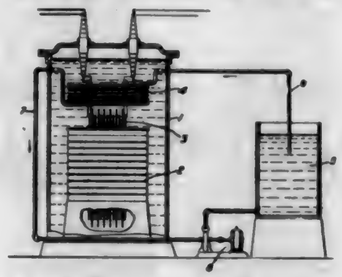
1. A roll for the purpose described comprising a continuous circular rim, spokes integral therewith, and segmental blocks integral with the respective spokes and collectively defining a hub, said blocks being separate from each other.

1,539,834. SAFETY SYSTEM FOR ALTERNATING-CURRENT GENERATORS. WILHELM GAARS, Berlin-Charlottenburg, Germany, assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation. Filed Feb. 3, 1925. Serial No. 6,602. 4 Claims. (Cl. 175—294.)

1. In a protective system for alternating-current generators having star-connected windings, a relay connected to the neutral point of the generator adapted to respond only to currents the frequency of which lies in the neighborhood of the frequency of the generator.

1,539,835. GAUGE OR TOOL. FRED GREEN, Chicago, Ill. Filed Feb. 6, 1925. Serial No. 7,362. 3 Claims. (Cl. 25—118.)

1. In a device of the class described, the combination with a base bar, of a lever bar pivotally mounted at one of its ends on one end of said base bar and having near its other end an opening, an arm movably extended through said opening and pivotally secured to said base bar near its other end, and co-operating means on said arm and the lever bar for holding them in fixed relation to one another.



1,539,836. FOOTWEAR-REFLECTING DEVICE. OTIS R. HASTY, Elgin, Ill. Filed Mar. 21, 1924. Serial No. 700,773. 4 Claims. (Cl. 88—1.)

4. A device of the character set forth comprising a mirror located in a position adapted to receive an image of an object placed in front thereof and reflect the said image upwardly, a second mirror located above the first-mentioned mirror in a position adapted to receive the said reflected image from the first-mentioned mirror and reflect the said image downwardly and to the rear, and a third mirror located above the first-mentioned mirror in a position adapted to receive the said reflected image from the said second mirror and reflect the said image substantially horizontally and to the front.

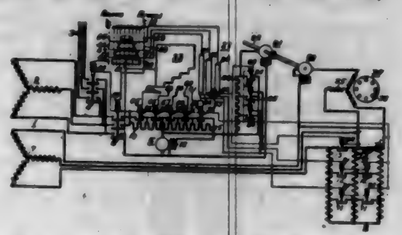
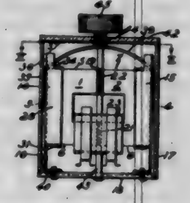
1,539,837. TRANSFORMER COOLING SYSTEM. STEPHEN Q. HAYES, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Aug. 15, 1919. Serial No. 317,669. 5 Claims. (Cl. 175—361.)



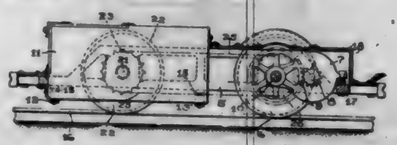
1. In a transformer, a core and inductively related coils, an insulating fluid surrounding said coils, and a cooling coil in contact with said insulating fluid through which a cooling fluid may flow, pressure governing means comprising means for initiating a siphonal flow of said cooling fluid through said coil, and means for thereafter maintaining the flow without power consumption.

1,539,838. DOORLOCK MECHANISM FOR MULTIPLE-UNIT CAR-DOOR-CONTROL SYSTEMS. FRANK HEDLEY, Yonkers, and JAMES S. DOYLE, Mount Vernon, N. Y. Filed June 17, 1922. Serial No. 569,071. 46 Claims. (Cl. 105—341.)



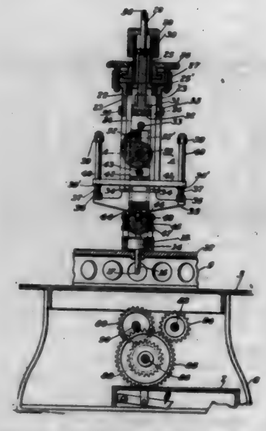
10. A train of cars each having doors, a locking device for each door, and means to actuate the locking devices into locking position in multiples of units of the cars, and only when all the doors of the respective multiples are in position to be locked.

1,539,839. INDUCTION-MOTOR-CONTROL SYSTEM. RUDOLF E. HELLMUND, Swissvale, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 23, 1920. Serial No. 367,995. 5 Claims. (Cl. 172—274.)



4. In a control system, the combination with an induction motor having a primary and a secondary winding, and a source of direct current for effecting the dynamic braking of said motor, of an inductive device included in the circuit of said secondary winding, and a device responsive to the current traversing the circuit of said inductive device for adjusting the energization of said primary winding during dynamic braking of said motor.

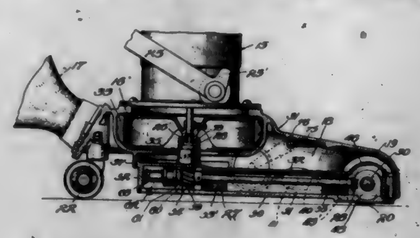
1,539,840. TRANSFORMER. PAUL M. HEINSTENBERG, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 26, 1923. Serial No. 641,545. 16 Claims. (Cl. 171—119.)



2. A transformer core comprising a pair of separate portions, each portion having arms, corresponding arms of the respective portions being adjacently disposed, means for resiliently positioning said portions in a predetermined position and additional resilient means for adjusting the spacing of said co-operating arms.

1,539,841. ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVE. GEORGE H. F. HOLY, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 13, 1922. Serial No. 528,988. 5 Claims. (Cl. 105—51.)

1. The combination, in an electric vehicle, of a wheeled axle, a motor for driving the axle, a pair of side frames, a wheel supported by each of the side frames at points removed from the said axle, each of the said wheels being independently mounted, a battery compartment, and means disposed below the axes of the said wheels for supporting the said compartment.

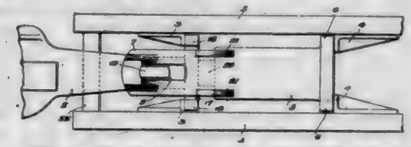


1,539,842. MACHINE FOR FORMING GLASS ARTICLES. CHARLES H. R. HOWE, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Aug. 10, 1922. Serial No. 581,018. 20 Claims. (Cl. 49—37.)

1. A machine for forming glass articles comprising a supporting structure, a rotatable mold carrying table thereon, an annular series of molds on the table, means for intermittently rotating the table through a limited arc, a vertically reciprocable press cooperating with the molds for forming the articles as the molds are brought successively under the press, a rotatable cam, and means engaging the cam for raising and lowering the press, said cam being so arranged as to enable the press to be lowered independently thereof when the cam is in a certain predetermined position.

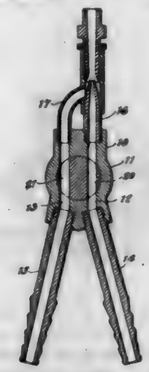
13. The combination with a glass article forming machine comprising a supporting frame on which is mounted a rotatable table, a series of molds having vertically movable center portions on the table, means for intermittently rotating the table, a press cooperating with the molds, means for raising the central parts of the molds above the other parts after they have passed the press, of a rotating stripping means adapted to swing over the molds when the central parts are elevated having a pair of pivoted depending jaws on said stripping means for gripping the opposite edge of an article on said elevated mold and removing it therefrom.

1,539,843. VACUUM CLEANER. JOHN T. HUME, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Hurley Machine Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Dec. 1, 1921. Serial No. 519,230. 15 Claims. (Cl. 15—8.)



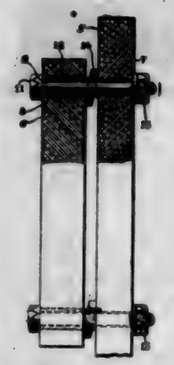
1. In a vacuum cleaner, having a main nozzle-structure arranged at definite elevation above the work-plane, a sub-nozzle structure freely movable in the main nozzle toward and from said work-plane and unaffected by the weight of the main nozzle structure.

1,539,844. PLASTER SUPPORT FOR WALLS. FRANK S. HUTCHINSON, Flushing, N. Y., assignor to Plastue Mfg. Corporation, Syracuse, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 12, 1923. Serial No. 618,515. 7 Claims. (Cl. 72—16.)



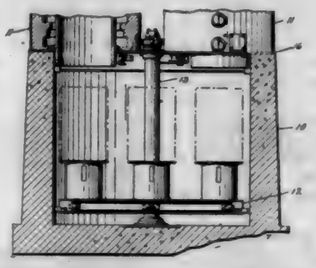
1. As an improved article of manufacture, a plaster support for walls comprising an essentially flat paper body having the outer surface portion of porous untreated paper to effect a bond with the plaster, and the back water-proofed.

1,539,845. DRAFT CONNECTION FOR CAR COUPLINGS. ROBERT E. L. JANNEY, Chicago, Ill.; Gardner L. Boothe, executor of said Robert E. L. Janney, deceased, assignor to Nannie Hamilton Janney, Alexandria, Va. Filed Feb. 19, 1921. Serial No. 446,284. 6 Claims. (Cl. 213—65.)



1. The combination of a gear case having top and bottom pulling arms extending forwardly therefrom, a coupler shank between the pulling arms, and a vertical draft key of the M. C. B. type extending through the pulling arms and the shank, the top of the shank bearing against the upper pulling arm, and the bottom of the shank being spaced above the lower pulling arm, there being a space between the draft key and one of the other elements of the connection to permit vertical angling of the shank.

1,539,846. OPTICAL-INSTRUMENT DRIER. JOHN O. JANSSON, Hoboken, N. J., assignor to Keuffel and Esser Company, Hoboken, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 29, 1923. Serial No. 683,311. 4 Claims. (Cl. 34—26.)



3. A drying apparatus comprising an ejector including pressure and vacuum ducts extending therethrough, a valve associated with said ejector and provided with two ducts communicating with the ducts of the ejector and also adapted to close said ejector ducts to the atmosphere and to bring the pressure duct into communication with the vacuum duct, and means for indicating the position of the valve ducts and to arrest the movement of the valve at the position of slow leakage from the pressure duct of the ejector into the vacuum duct.

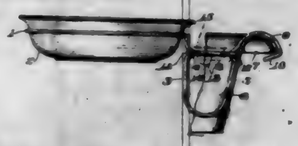
1,539,847. SWITCHBOARD STRUCTURE. WILLARD H. KEMPTON, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed July 13, 1922. Serial No. 574,761. 5 Claims. (Cl. 175—298.)

1. A fastening member for securing a base member to a support comprising a bolt having an enlarged portion for engaging the base and limiting outward movement thereof with respect to the support, means limiting inward movement of the enlarged portion, and a yielding means between the base and the support for yieldingly pressing the base into engagement with the enlarged portion of the bolt and retaining the base in spaced relation to the support.

1,539,848. FURNACE. CHARLES F. KENWORTHY, Waterbury, Conn., assignor to Charles F. Kenworthy, Incorporated, Waterbury Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Feb. 14, 1924. Serial No. 692,700. 14 Claims. (Cl. 266—4.)

1. In combination, a furnace, a tank below the furnace, an elevator connected with the furnace, and means exterior to and adjacent to the top of the tank for effecting self-rotation of the elevator.

1,539,849. GATE AND ATTACHMENT FOR SAME. ALFRED W. KNUTSON, Peoria, Ill., assignor to George G. Bayne, Bushnell, Ill. Filed Oct. 6, 1922. Serial No. 592,820. 1 Claim. (Cl. 39—81.)



A gate structure, comprising a gate including a plurality of spaced boards connected by sets of angle-irons, one set at least located at or near the ends of the boards with outwardly projecting flanges, and a hinge attachment comprising a vertically disposed channel bar having inturned edges to embrace and form guides for the flanges of said set of angles at the end of the gate and to provide a telescopic relation between the gate and angles and said channel bar, and means to fix the gate in adjusted positions on said channel bar.

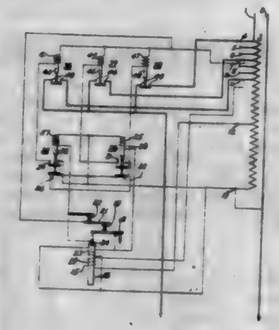
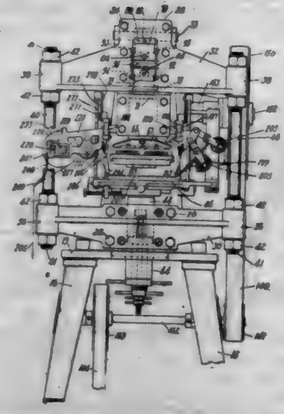
1,539,850. BRACKET. FRANK J. KOSTENBAUDER, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Jan. 16, 1922. Serial No. 529,523. 2 Claims. (Cl. 45—38.)



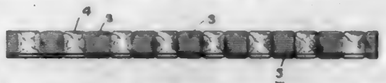
1. A bracket, comprising a loop adapted to receive and surround the major portion of a receptacle, the ends of said loop being directed downwardly and thence curved reversely upwardly to form substantially parallel U-shaped portions, and the ends of said portions being thence curved outwardly away from said loop and reversely to form hooks adapted to engage a supporting member to support said bracket, the opposite sides of each of said U-shaped portions being provided with substantially semi-circular loops, and a frame member extending through said last-named loops, and operative to prevent the bending of the U-shaped portions, thereby increasing the relative rigidity of the bracket loop and hooks, said frame member being operative to receive and support a second receptacle.

1,539,851. SNAP SWITCH. HUBERT K. KRANTZ, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 24, 1920. Serial No. 412,469. 3 Claims. (Cl. 200—67.)



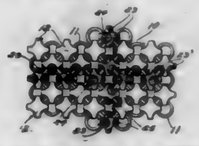
1. The combination in an electric switch, of a frame, a contact carrier of U-shape pivotally supported on the frame, an operating lever pivotally supported on the frame at a point above the support for the carrier, spaced lugs carried by the lever and disposed at opposite sides of the carrier to effect a lost-motion connection between the lever and the carrier, and a yielding connection between the lever and the carrier, said yielding connection being secured to the lever at a point eccentric of its pivotal support.

1,539,852. REGULATOR SYSTEM. EDWIN E. LANE, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 16, 1921. Serial No. 501,145. 8 Claims. (Cl. 171—119.)



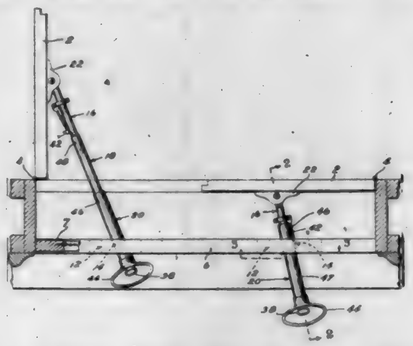
2. In a regulator system, the combination with a regulating transformer comprising a plurality of sections, of means for varying the number of sections of said transformer which are included in circuit, said means comprising a control magnet, contact members controlled by said magnet, control relays having energizing coils controlled by said contact members and a second set of relays controlled by said first mentioned relays.

1,539,853. MACHINE FOR APPLYING METALLIC LEAF. GEORGE E. LITTLEFIELD, Providence, R. I., assignor to American Roll Gold Leaf Company, Providence, R. I., a Corporation of Rhode Island. Filed May 26, 1924. Serial No. 715,867. 6 Claims. (Cl. 41—7.)



1. In a metallic leaf applying machine, a frame, a work support in the frame, a plunger slidably mounted in the frame above the support, a main shaft in the frame, a second shaft in the frame, a cam on the first shaft, a lever on the second shaft engaging the cam, a link on the lever, a toggle arm carried by the link attached to the head, a second toggle arm carried by the link engaging the plunger, horizontal guides on the frame beside the plunger, a reciprocating carriage slidably mounted on the guides movable to and from the plunger, metallic strips supported by the carriage in a plane between the plunger and the support, a second cam on the main shaft, and operative connections between the last mentioned cam and the carriage.

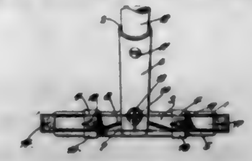
1,539,854. PACKAGE. CHARLES H. MACDONALD, Montclair, N. J., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Ivers-Lee Company, Newark, N. J., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 7, 1919, Serial No. 302,548. Renewed Oct. 30, 1924. 3 Claims. (Cl. 206—46.)



1. The method of packaging articles which includes coating a strip of flexible material with a plastic material arranging articles to be packaged on said strip in spaced relation, folding said strip longitudinally with a coated surface inside to enclose said articles in spaced relation, and pressing opposed interior surfaces into adhering contact between the enclosed articles.

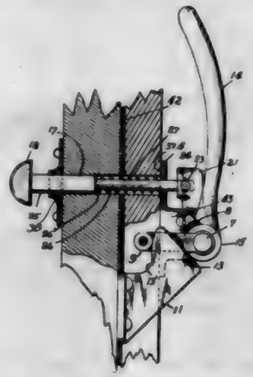
1,539,855. METHOD OF ORNAMENTING COAT-OF-MAIL MESH FABRIC. SAHATJEL G. MANDALIAN, North Attleboro, Mass. Filed June 24, 1924. Serial No. 721,996. 3 Claims. (Cl. 101—129.)

1. A method of imparting a mottled appearance to a metallic coat of mail fabric consisting in placing over the fabric to be treated a metallic plate provided with a series of holes, and injecting through the holes and into the interstices of the fabric a spray of liquid enamel.



1,539,856. CASEMENT-WINDOW HOLDER. EARL L. MARTIN, Miami, Fla. Filed July 18, 1924. Serial No. 726,661. 5 Claims. (Cl. 292—262.)

1. A casement window holder comprising a plurality of tubular telescoping sections, means within said tubular sections normally tending to lock said sections when in extended position, and means partially within said tubular sections movable longitudinally of said holder for withdrawing said locking means when desired so as to permit said sections to telescope.



1,539,857. DEVICE FOR CLEANING WALLS AND CEILINGS. HERBERT A. MARTIN, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Sept. 24, 1924. Serial No. 739,498. 2 Claims. (Cl. 15—147.)

1. A device of the character described comprising a plate, a flange integral with one edge of said plate, a material pressing device supported by said flange, an additional plate cooperating with said first plate to form a jaw, a projection extending from each of said plates, and a clamping device passing through said projections and holding said plates in proper relationship.

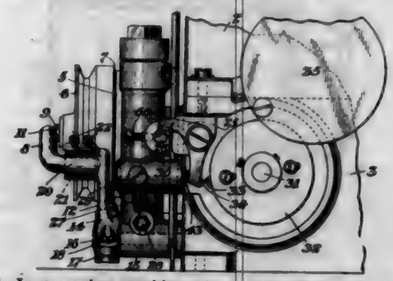
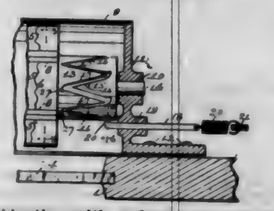
1,539,858. AUTOMATIC ROLLER FASTENER. JOHN J. MONROW, New York, N. Y., assignor to A. C. Wicke Manufacturing Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 9, 1924. Serial No. 718,737. 7 Claims. (Cl. 292—221.)



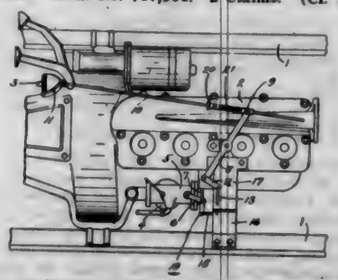
1. A fastener for doors, comprising a latch for holding the door closed, a hand lever disposed adjacent the edge and upon the face of the door for releasing the latch from the outside of the door, a plunger rod extending through the door, a spring within the walls of said door and surrounding a portion of said rod, said plunger rod being associated with said latch so that the spring is placed under compression when the lever is moved to release the latch and to return the latch to locking position.

1,539,859. BOBBIN-CASE LATCH FOR SEWING MACHINES. GEORGE W. NELSON, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Standard Sewing Machine Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Feb. 15, 1923. Serial No. 619,180. 8 Claims. (Cl. 112—231.)



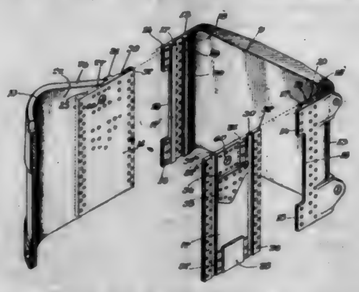
1. In a sewing machine, the combination with a rotary hook having an open chamber in its face side, a non-rotary bobbin-case loosely seated in said chamber, and a movable bobbin-case holder, of a pivoted latch for retaining the holder in closed position, and a pivot support for said latch adjustable to shift the latch and thereby control the position of the holder relatively to the bobbin-case.

1,539,860. STOP MECHANISM FOR SEWING MACHINES. GEORGE W. NELSON, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Standard Sewing Machine Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 21, 1923. Serial No. 626,687. 11 Claims. (Cl. 192—149.)



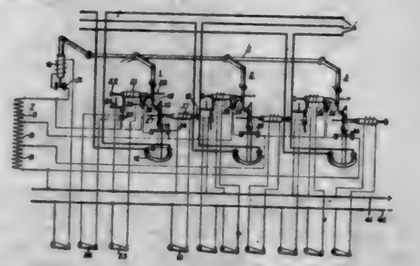
1. In a sewing machine, the combination with its operating shaft, of a stop member fixed on said shaft, a movable frame having a chamber open at one side thereof, a stop device in said chamber for cooperating through the open side thereof with the stop member on the shaft, spring buffers in said chamber engaging the stop device at opposite ends thereof, and means for shifting the frame to bring its supported stop device to and from position for cooperation with the stop member on the shaft.

1,539,861. ADVERTISING DEVICE. LYLE A. PANGBORN, Paris, Mich. Filed May 19, 1924. Serial No. 714,191. 5 Claims. (Cl. 40—60.)



1. In combination with a door swingably mounted on its jamb, a device of the character described, comprising: a display element rotatably mounted on the door and having a cam bearing with oppositely disposed helical portions; an element having a reciprocating movement on the door and engaging in the cam bearing to rotate by said movement the display element; connections between the jamb and the reciprocating element for reciprocating the same by the swinging movement of the door.

1,539,862. BRAKE ATTACHMENT FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. WILLIAM A. PARTIN, Moline, Ill. Filed Nov. 5, 1924. Serial No. 747,904. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—81.)

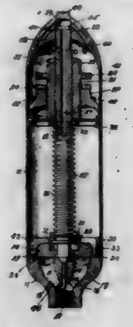


1. In combination with the motor of an automobile, and brake pedal in proximity thereto, a rod hingedly attached to said brake pedal; a lever supported transversely of said motor and provided on one of its ends with a sleeve slidable on said rod; a contact member fixed on said rod, adapted for engagement with said sleeve; and means of connection between the opposite end of said lever and the throttle valve of the motor, so as to actuate said valve coincidently with the movement of said brake pedal.

1,539,863. EXCAVATING DIPPER. EDWARD LOUIS PEMBERTON, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 3, 1923. Serial No. 678,089. 24 Claims. (Cl. 214—145.)

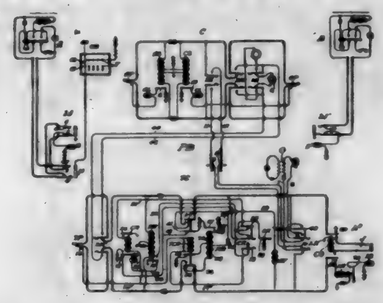
1. In an excavating dipper, the combination of a front member and a back member having confronting side extensions, and side panels, each side panel overlapping the inner faces of said extensions and having interlocking connections with a pair of extensions to form an unobstructed inner surface from front to rear of the panel.

1,539,864. CIRCUIT-INTERRUPTER SYSTEM. ALFRED J. A. PETERSON and FLOYD B. KNISKERN, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignors to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 13, 1924. Serial No. 698,889. 5 Claims. (Cl. 175—294.)



1. In combination, a plurality of circuit interrupters, a common actuating mechanism therefor comprising a motor, means for selectively connecting and disconnecting each of the circuit interrupters to the actuating mechanism, an impedance device in circuit with said motor and means for varying the effective value of the impedance device in accordance with the operative positions of said circuit interrupters.

1,539,865. ATTACHMENT FOR TIRE VALVES. WILLIAM H. PRATT, Kingston, N. Y. Filed Aug. 17, 1921. Serial No. 493,003. 3 Claims. (Cl. 152—11.5.)



1. An attachment for tire valves for relieving a tire of excess pressure, comprising a cylinder internally screw threaded at its lower end for attachment to a tire valve and presenting relatively inner and outer concentric valve seats and an air passage therebetween, said inner valve seat presenting also a central passage therethrough, a valve stem for closing the said central passage, said valve stem being adjustable axially of the said valve seats, a valve carried by the said valve stem and being moveable thereon, a spring engaged with the said valve and normally holding the same upon the said inner and outer valve seats, a pin carried by the end of the valve stem and extending through said central passage to engage the valve stem of the usual tire valve, and means for adjusting the tension of the said spring.

1,539,866. TELEPHONE SYSTEM. ARTHUR E. REINKE, The Hague, Netherlands, assignor to Kellogg Switchboard and Supply Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Nov. 26, 1920. Serial No. 426,366. 11 Claims. (Cl. 179—42.)

1. A manually operated telephone system including a number of telephone lines of different classes extending from substations to terminals at an exchange switchboard, a common battery terminal block for supplying potential to the terminals of one of said classes, a connecting circuit for use in extending calls from lines of one of said classes to a distant exchange, terminals for said connecting circuit, normally opened contacts between said terminals in the conductors of said circuit, and mechanism rendered operative when connecting said circuit with a line of said class having said terminal block associated therewith to close said normally opened contacts to extend a connection to the distant exchange.

1,539,867. COOLING DEVICE FOR DRINKING FOUNTAINS. HARRY C. RIDLER, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Aug. 12, 1922. Serial No. 581,543. 9 Claims. (Cl. 62—147.)

4. The combination with a drinking fountain, of primary and secondary refrigerating compartments both constructed to contain low temperature water, a drinking water supply conduit extended through said primary and secondary compartments and having portions that are submerged in the water contained in the said two refrigerating compartments, the said two refrigerating compartments being connected by an overflow pipe that leads from said primary compartment at a point above the bottom thereof, and a waste cold water conduit extending from said fountain and arranged to cause the waste cold water to flow through said secondary compartment.

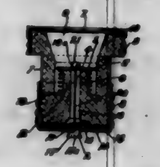
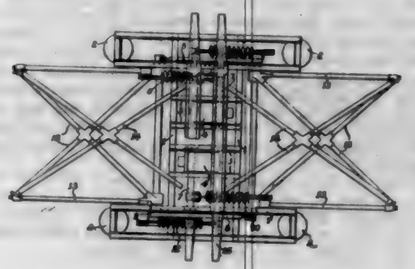
1,539,868. CHART. EDWARD P. ROBERTS, Lakewood, Ohio. Filed Oct. 30, 1922. Serial No. 597,915. 5 Claims. (Cl. 40—70.)



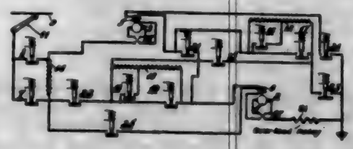
2. An adjustable sector type chart comprising a plurality of substantially circular disks, each having a scale extending about its periphery and being formed with a radial slit, and said disk being directly rotatably fitted together and mutually supported independently of any interposed part by having a segmental portion of each disk extending through the slit in the adjacent disk so as to leave complementary segmental portions of successive disks exposed, each disk further having a distinguishing radial line closely adjacent that edge of the slit therein at which the scale thereon begins.

1,539,869. METHOD AND APPARATUS FOR MAKING JARS OF HARD RUBBER AND SIMILAR MATERIALS. FRED THOMAS ROBERTS, Upper Montclair, N. J., assignor to Paramount Rubber Consolidated, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 10, 1922. Serial No. 551,279. 31 Claims. (Cl. 18—56.)



7. The method of making jars, consisting of seating in the cavities of a pair of molds, raw rubber sheet stock of a composition suitable for vulcanization into hard rubber, applying partially cured rubber blocks to the seated stock adjacent to the two ends thereof, bringing the two mold members together under pressure to form a completely closed article and at the same time shearing off the surrounding stock, vulcanizing the closed article to make a unitary hard member, and thereafter severing it transversely to make a plurality of jars.

1,539,870. ELECTRIC CUT-OUT. MAURITS JEROME SANDIN, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 17, 1920. Serial No. 389,567. 12 Claims. (Cl. 200—117.)

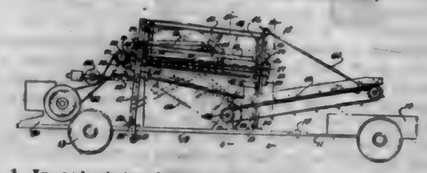


1. An electric cut-out device comprising a heating conductor, a body of fusible material adhering directly thereto, and conducting means biased against said body to complete a circuit and to interrupt the circuit in response to a predetermined temperature.

1,539,871. PANTOGRAPH TROLLEY. WILLIAM SCHAAKE, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 7, 1922. Serial No. 599,522. 7 Claims. (Cl. 191—65.)

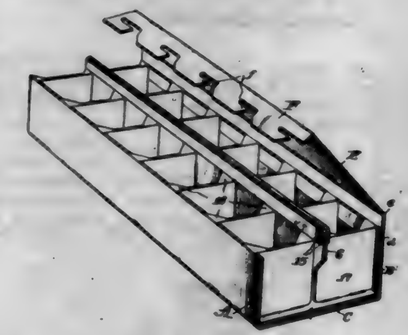
1. A pantograph trolley structure comprising an extensible pantograph frame, spring means connected thereto to bias the same in one direction, a plurality of cylinders, fluid-actuated pistons therein operatively connected to said frame to effect positive movement thereof opposed to said springs, said cylinders being in alinement transversely of the direction of motion of said structure.

1,539,872. MOTOR-CONTROL SYSTEM. SAMUEL B. SCHENCK, Edgewood Park, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 3, 1921. Serial No. 474,721. 10 Claims. (Cl. 172—179.)



2. In a control system, the combination with a plurality of switches having actuating coils, said coils being connected in series relation one with another, of means comprising a controller for providing a shunt circuit for one of said coils for maintaining one of said switches in its open position until after the closure of another of said switches and interlocking means governed by one switch for closing a circuit comprising the actuating coils of each of said switches.

1,539,873. AUTOMOBILE BUMPER. MARIO SCHIBBARI, New York, N. Y. Filed May 26, 1924. Serial No. 715,861. 7 Claims. (Cl. 293—55.)

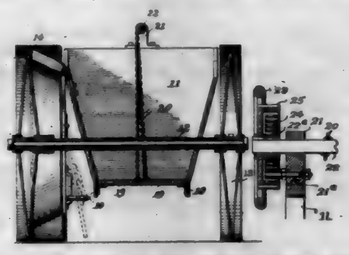


1. In a device of the class described, two side members adapted to interlock with parts of an automobile frame, and a cross member held under tension between said side members, the tension exerted thereby causing said side members to remain clamped to said frame.

1,539,874. BEET-TOPPING MACHINE. JOHN SCHOLL and JOHN WEILER, Belgium, Wis. Filed Feb. 19, 1925. Serial No. 10,300. 7 Claims. (Cl. 146—85.)

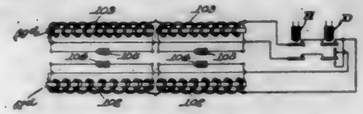
1. In a beet topping machine, the combination of a pair of beet-supporting rolls rotatable in opposite directions to sever the beet tops between them, one of said rolls being disposed laterally of and below the other to permit lateral discharge of the beets from the lower roll after being topped, and means for adjusting the relative elevation of said rolls for operation on beets of different sizes.

1,539,875. CARTON OR BOX. LOUIS SCHWARTZBERG, Chicago, Ill. Filed Apr. 16, 1923. Serial No. 632,270. 9 Claims. (Cl. 229—29.)



1. A collapsible carton comprising front, rear and bottom walls, a plurality of transverse cell walls produced by slotting a blank from which they hinge at their top edges, a separate flat strip connected to the lower ends of said cell walls controlling the relative positions of said cell walls, and a longitudinal partition.

1,539,876. DUMPING VEHICLE. THOMAS SEEVERS, deceased, late of Oskaloosa, Iowa, by Grace Seevers, executrix, Oskaloosa, Iowa. Original application filed Oct. 30, 1920, Serial No. 420,717. Divided and this application filed May 16, 1922. Serial No. 561,434. 2 Claims. (Cl. 298—35.)



2. In a machine of the class described, a hopper, oppositely swinging dumping doors hinged to the bottom of the hopper, alined bearings mounted on the upper edges of the ends of the hopper, a longitudinal shaft mounted to revolve therein, front and rear chains connected to the doors and wound upon the shaft, a hand wheel keyed to one end of the shaft, a ratchet wheel connected to the hand wheel, a pawl mounted on the hopper to engage the ratchet wheel and hold the doors elevated to receive and support a load when the chains are wound upon the shaft, and a spiral spring having its inner end connected to the shaft and its outer end to a stationary part to revolve the shaft, wind up the chains and close the doors after the pawl has been released and the load is dumped, said spring being rewound when the doors are swung open under the weight of the load, and said hand wheel being operable to control the tension of the spring after the doors are closed.

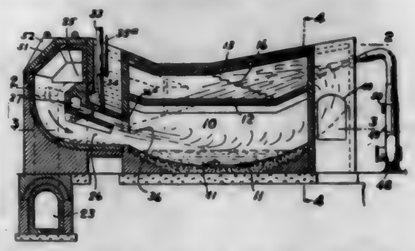
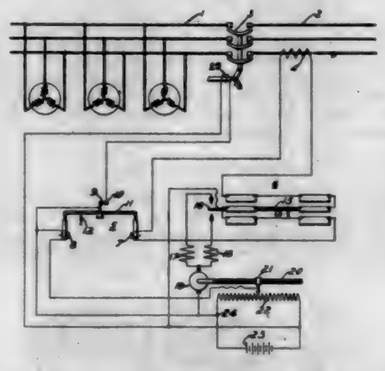
1,539,877. INDUCTION TRAIN-CONTROL SYSTEM WITH ROADSIDE APPARATUS. ARCHIBALD G. SHAVER, Chicago, Ill., assignor to The Regan Safety Devices Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 10, 1921. Serial No. 506,596. 20 Claims. (Cl. 246—63.)



2. In an inductive train control system, roadside mechanism comprising a plurality of inductoriums, and means for connecting the same operative to reverse circuit connections therebetween.

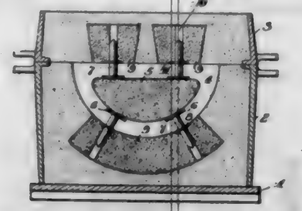
1,539,878. TRANSFORMER BRACING. MERRILL E. SKINNER, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 12, 1919. Serial No. 296,589. 4 Claims. (Cl. 175—356.)



1 In a transformer, a core member, coils associated with the core member, insulating members between the coils and extending beyond the ends thereof, end-frame bracing means, additional bracing means comprising members extending across the tops and bottoms of said coils in a direction perpendicular to the planes thereof and secured to the end frames, and block members disposed between the coils and said last-named bracing means, whereby the effective lengths of the coils and the intermediate insulating members are made substantially equal.

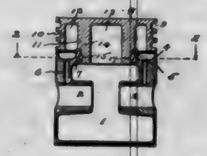
1,539,879. REGENERATIVE FURNACE AND METHOD OF FIRING FURNACES. KARL A. SODERSTROM, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed May 23, 1923. Serial No. 640,822. 13 Claims. (Cl. 263—15.)

1. The method of firing a furnace, comprising the step of forcing the air for supporting combustion in contact with the outgoing products of combustion to heat the air and propelling the air at such a velocity that the stream of air will not be substantially broken up, separating substantially all of the stream of air from the products of combustion after contact therewith, conducting the separated stream of air into the combustion space of the furnace, and forcing fuel into the combustion space to form a combustible mixture with the air.



1,539,880. SURGE-DETECTING RELAY. HARRY P. SPARKES, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed May 24, 1923. Serial No. 641,038. 17 Claims. (Cl. 175—294.)

4. The combination with an alternating-current circuit and an interrupter therein, of means energised from the circuit for controlling the actuation of the interrupter upon the occurrence of a surge of current in the circuit said means being ineffective against overload current of the same magnitude.



1,539,881. CHAPLET. FRIEND L. SPENCER and THOMAS JONES, Rochester, N. Y. Filed Aug. 29, 1923. Serial No. 660,032. 3 Claims. (Cl. 22—184.)

3. The combination with a self sustaining non-metallic anchoring piece adapted to be imbedded in the molding sand and having greater cohesive properties than the latter, said anchoring piece being provided with a bore, of a chaplet embodying a shank supported in such bore, a head projecting therefrom; and an intermediate shoulder abutting the anchoring piece at the mouth of the bore.

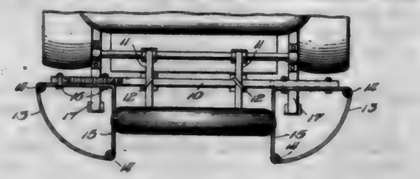
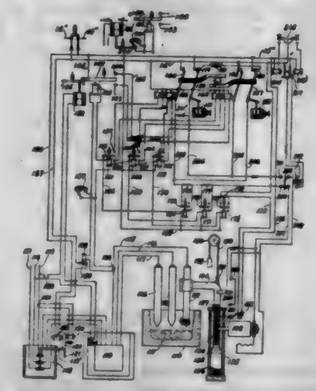
1,539,882. COMPOSITE PISTON. LOUIS R. SPENCER, West Hartford, Conn. Filed Oct. 13, 1924. Serial No. 743,281. 4 Claims. (Cl. 74—108.)

1. An engine piston comprising a cylindrical body of hard metal having a relatively low co-efficient of expansion and a head of light metal having a relatively high co-efficient of heat radiation, one of said members being set into the other and each provided in adjacent walls with complementary grooves, with a passage through one member from the exterior to said grooves, and balls forced into and tightly fitting said grooves and locking the parts together.



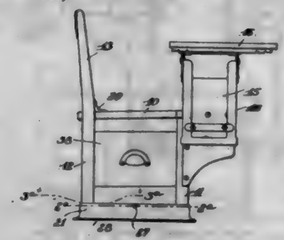
1,539,883. AUTOMATIC RETURN SYSTEM FOR BOILERS. JOHN R. SWANSON, Rock Island, Ill. Filed Nov. 17, 1921. Serial No. 515,995. 4 Claims. (Cl. 137—101.)



4. In a device of the class described, a cylindrical casing having an inlet and pair of spaced outlets; a pair of hollow piston-heads slidable in the ends of said casing, united by a hollow piston-rod, and in communication with the body of the casing; and a pair of valves in said piston-heads united by a stem slidable in said piston-rod, and provided with channels of communication between the interior of said piston-heads and the ends of the casing, said channels being alternately opened and closed by the movement of said valves.

1,539,884. ADJUSTABLE BUMPER FOR AUTOMOBILES. OLIVER G. TEMME, Chicago, Ill. Filed July 18, 1924. Serial No. 726,719. 1 Claim. (Cl. 293—55.)

A universal adjustable rear bumper for automobiles comprising in combination a supporting bar, a pair of impact sections spaced apart so as to receive therebetween a spare tire or the like, and means for adjustably mounting said impact sections on said bar so as to accommodate automobiles and fenders of different width and construction.



1,539,885. ELECTRICAL CONTROL APPARATUS. EUSTIS H. THOMPSON, New Kensington, Pa., assignor, by direct and mesne assignments, to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 10, 1921. Serial No. 521,385. 19 Claims. (Cl. 204—64.)

1. An electric control comprising an energy supply circuit, means responsive to normal variations in an electrical condition in said circuit for maintaining such electrical condition therein substantially constant, and means responsive to abnormal variations in the energy supply circuit for varying the action of the first named means.

1,539,886. CHAIR CONSTRUCTION. MARTIN THUM, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to Langslow-Fowler Company, Rochester, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 29, 1922. Serial No. 571,591. 7 Claims. (Cl. 45—137.)

1. The combination with a chair having a supporting frame substantially enclosing the space beneath the seat, said frame having a kerf therein adjacent its bottom, of a base comprising a vertically arranged sheet metal strip encircling said frame, an inwardly turned flange at the top of said strip engaged in said frame kerf, means securing the ends of said strip to retain the flange thereof in said kerf, and an outwardly turned flange at the bottom of said strip for securing the same to the floor.

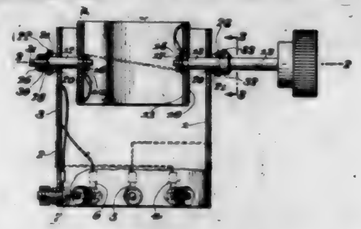
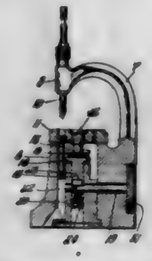
1,539,887. PLATEN. FRANK C. VANDERGRIFT, Akron, Ohio, assignor to The Williams Foundry & Machine Company, Akron, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Oct. 23, 1924. Serial No. 745,315. 11 Claims. (Cl. 18—5.)



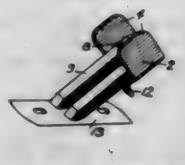
1. A platen of the class described comprising two sections enclosing between them a fluid diffusing space having an inlet and an outlet, the sections being formed with integral parts which interlock and bind the sections together, the joint between the edges of the sections being brazed or welded.

1,539,888. METHOD AND MEANS FOR MEASURING CURRENT DISTRIBUTION. CHARLES F. WAGNER, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 14, 1921. Serial No. 437,329. 14 Claims. (Cl. 175—183.)



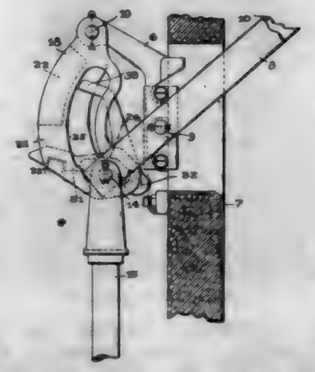
14. Means for determining current distribution characteristics of a main conductor comprising a plurality of local exploring circuits responsive to voltage differences in different parts of the main conductor, means for indicating the vector sum of all of said voltage differences and means for operatively connecting and insulating said indicating means with respect to said exploring circuits.

1,539,889. RADIO RECEIVING APPARATUS. GORDON O. WILKINSON, Ardmore, Pa. Filed Jan. 19, 1923. Serial No. 613,587. 1 Claim. (Cl. 171—119.)



In a radio receiving apparatus, a hollow supporting member having diametrically alined apertures therein, an inductance coil on said support, a rotor having an inductance coil thereon, stub shafts passing through the apertures and supporting said rotor, spring bearing plates for said stub shafts carried by said supporting member, thrust members on said stub shafts to limit the endwise movement of said shafts and rotor, and means for adjusting the distance between said thrust members.

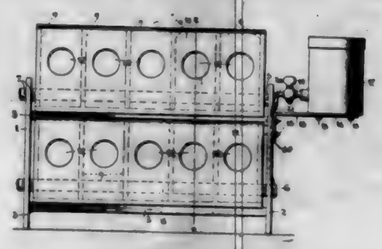
1,539,890. STAKING TOOL. LESTER J. WILLIAMS, Lebanon, N. H., assignor to Kendrick & Davis Co., Lebanon, N. H., a Corporation of New Hampshire. Filed June 11, 1923. Serial No. 644,591. 5 Claims. (Cl. 29—88.)



1. In a staking tool, a frame comprising a base having an overhanging head and a guideway, a die resting on the base, and a combined pivot and clamping means for the die constructed with provision permitting movements of the die bodily transversly to its pivotal axis.

1,539,891. MAGNETIC LIFTING DEVICE. ALAN D. WOOD, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor of one-third to Harry A. Lewis, Norristown, Pa. Filed Aug. 9, 1920. Serial No. 402,286. 2 Claims. (Cl. 175—369.)

1. In a device of the character described the combination of a holder comprising upwardly extending side portions, a downwardly extending fulcrum lug, an exposed magnet and means for securing said magnet to said holder.



1,539,892. INTERLOCKING DEVICE. JOSEPH D. WOOD, Murrysville, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 10, 1922. Serial No. 567,492. 8 Claims. (Cl. 74—83.)

1. The combination with a pair of levers, of an interlocking device therefor comprising a movable member having cam surfaces to be engaged upon the movement of said levers, said movable member being provided with stop members for preventing the operation of either lever when the other lever is in its operative position, and a latch member for securing said movable member in one position.

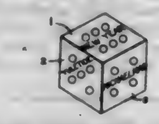
1,539,893. NEST AND ROOST STRUCTURE. ALBERT H. YORK, Amery, Wis. Filed July 1, 1924. Serial No. 723,552. 9 Claims. (Cl. 119—25.)



9. In a nest structure of the character set forth, spaced upright end supporting members, a horizontal supporting round having a groove therein extending throughout the length thereof and connected at its ends to said supporting members, a series of vertically positioned eccentrically mounted partition elements upon said horizontal member, an elongated element connecting the lower ends of said elements and constituting a floor, an apertured sheet of material formed over and connecting the edges of said elements to enclose the spaces therebetween to provide nesting compartments, one of each of the apertures in said sheet constituting an entrance to a compartment, a wick element in the groove of said round, and means for supplying disinfectant to said wick for the distribution of the same through the nest compartments.

1,539,894. MAGAZINE TACK HAMMER. WILLIAM HENRY BOOTH, Baton Rouge, La. Filed Apr. 12, 1924. Serial No. 706,068. 13 Claims. (Cl. 1—45.)

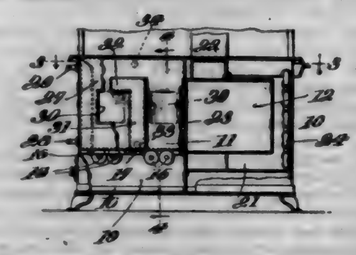
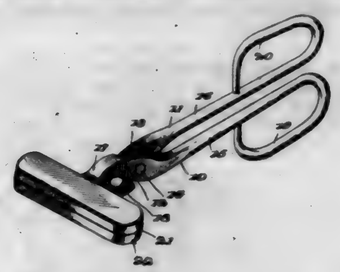
1,539,895. GAME DEVICE. GEORGE E. BUSSA, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Aug. 20, 1923. Serial No. 658,424. 2 Claims. (Cl. 273—146.)



1. A game device comprising a plurality of blocks, the faces of one block carrying nouns which constitute portions of greetings and the faces of another block carrying adjectives which constitute the remaining portions of the greetings.

1,539,896. MEASURING APPARATUS. LESLIE W. CLAYBOURN, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Feb. 10, 1923. Serial No. 618,255. 17 Claims. (Cl. 33—147.)

1. A measuring apparatus comprising a support having a supporting surface for the object being measured, a pressure-part arranged to press the object being measured toward said surface, means for adjusting the normal distance between said pressure-part and said surface, means for regulating the space between said pressure-part and said surface for admission of the object to be measured while maintaining said last-named adjustment, guiding means for guiding said pressure-part in a path perpendicular to said supporting surface, supporting means for the latter and a gage comprising a body and an operating part constituting a pair of members one of which has operative connection with said pressure-part whereby to measure the thickness of said object when under pressure.



1,539,897. KITCHEN RANGE. JAMES F. DALE, Chattanooga, and MARIE RICHARDSON, Memphis, Tenn. Filed Oct. 19, 1922. Serial No. 595,582. 4 Claims. (Cl. 126—5.)

1. A stove of the character described comprising a casing provided with a fire box, doors through which fuel may be introduced into said fire box, a water jacket covering a plurality of sides of said fire box and having openings coinciding with said doors, and a supplemental water jacket located between spaced apart portions of the first mentioned water jacket, said supplemental jacket being removably supported independently of the first water jacket and having an overhanging portion.

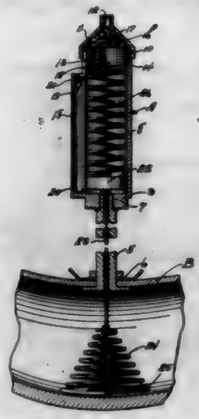
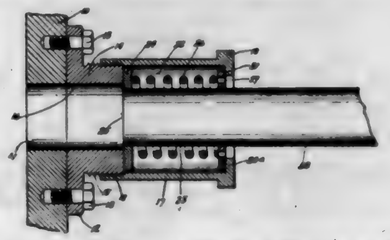
1,539,898. DEVICE FOR STRAIGHTENING HAIR. ALBATHIA D. FRANKLIN, Daytona, Fla. Filed Oct. 5, 1923. Serial No. 666,818. 1 Claim. (132—32.)

A device for straightening hair comprising a pair of crossed handles and a pair of pressing irons carried by the handles and consisting of a pair of thick, narrow and elongated plates, said plates extending at right angles to the handles and having flat and plane pressing faces.



1,539,899. CHICKEN BROODER. JOHN N. GUERTIN, South Weymouth, Mass. Filed May 22, 1923. Serial No. 640,647. 6 Claims. (Cl. 119—32.)

1. A brooder for chicks comprising a brooding chamber and a scratch pen, a fuel burning heater in the brooding chamber and a heating drum extending across the scratch pen to heat said pen and opening outside of the brooder, a hot gas conveying pipe communicating with said heater and extending into the scratch pen below said heating drum, and an upright pipe connecting said gas conveying pipe and heating drum whereby the hot gas from the heater is compelled to pass through a tortuous path in order to discharge from the brooder.



1,539,900. AUTOMATIC TIRE PUMP. HARRY F. HARVEY, Prosper, Minn. Filed Apr. 2, 1924. Serial No. 703,758. 3 Claims. (Cl. 152—11.)

2. The combination with an automobile pneumatic tire, of a tire valve filling casing connected therewith provided with a longitudinally extending way therethrough, of means for automatically filling the tire with air comprising a cylinder operatively connected to said filling valve casing, a plunger reciprocally mounted within the cylinder, a rod operatively connected to the plunger reciprocally mounted within the filling valve casing and extending into the tire, a helical spring connected to the outer end of the rod, the convolutions of the spring gradually increasing in diameter toward the outer end thereof, the outermost diameter of the spring engaging the inner surface of the tire at the tread thereof, a protecting cover formed at the outer convolution of the spring, a relatively heavy coil spring arranged within the cylinder and engaging said plunger for normally urging the same at one end of the cylinder, a one-way valve carried by one end of the cylinder for permitting the entrance of air into the cylinder, and a way for connecting the opposite ends of the cylinder together, the way having a one-way valve therein for permitting the flow of air through the way in one direction.

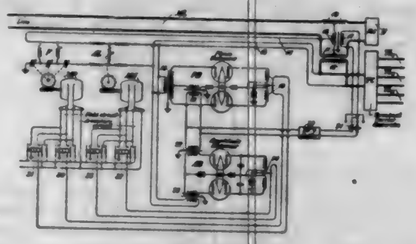
1,539,901. SAUSAGE-FILLING MACHINE. FRANK HENNES, Bethlehem, Pa. Filed Jan. 27, 1925. Serial No. 5,029. 5 Claims. (Cl. 146—41.)

1. A device of the class described comprising a tubular member providing a filling nozzle for sausage meat, a hub aligned with said nozzle, and means for yieldably securing the filling nozzle on the hub.



1,539,902. CARRIER TRANSMISSION OVER POWER CIRCUITS. RICHARD K. HONAMAN, Bloomfield, N. J., assignor to American Telephone & Telegraph Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 29, 1924. Serial No. 709,898. 4 Claims. (Cl. 179—2.)

1. In a system for signaling over power conductors, a power source, power conductors for transmitting power from said source to a load, current transformers associated with said conductors for transforming the current to be applied to translating devices, carrier apparatus, and means to connect said carrier apparatus to said power conductors through said current transformers, comprising a filter connected in circuit with said transformers and having a very low impedance at power frequencies.

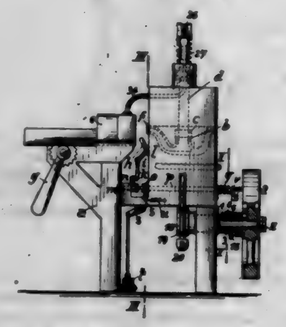
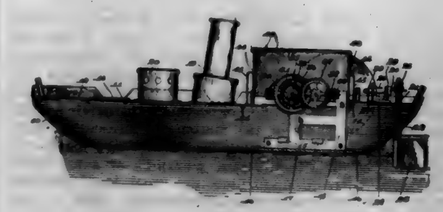
1,539,903. ELIMINATION OF INTERFERENCE IN CARRIER SYSTEMS. LESTER M. ILGENFRITZ, Orange, N. J., assignor to American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed May 21, 1924. Serial No. 714,931. 12 Claims. (Cl. 179—78.)



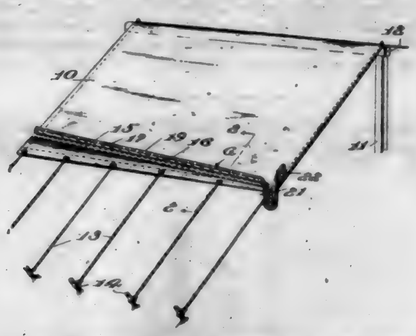
1. In combination with a transmission circuit subject to interfering waves, an arrangement to neutralize said interfering waves comprising means to pick up energy from the interfering source to produce balancing waves corresponding to the interfering wave, a phase controller and an amplitude controller for controlling the phase and amplitude of said balancing waves so that they may be impressed upon said transmission circuit equal in amplitude and opposite in phase to the interfering wave, and means automatically controlled by said interfering wave and said balancing wave to adjust said phase controller to maintain the waves in opposite phase relation.

1,539,904. DRIVING MECHANISM. GEORGE W. JACQUES, Stratford, Conn., assignor, by mesne assignments, to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 28, 1920. Serial No. 392,200. 11 Claims. (Cl. 192—145.)



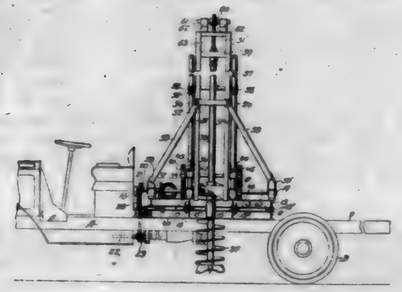
1. In combination, a mechanism actuating shaft, a source of power, an article feeding mechanism, operating means to establish and interrupt driving relation between said source of power and said mechanism, coupling means connected with said operating means and adapted to establish and interrupt driving relation between said source of power and said shaft, and means for rendering said coupling means ineffective to establish said driving relation while permitting said operating means to set said mechanism in operation.

1,539,905. DIE-CASTING MACHINE. ALBERT KAUFMANN, Berlin, Germany. Filed Apr. 16, 1924. Serial No. 707,000. 11 Claims. (Cl. 22—57.)



1. Die-casting machine, comprising a crucible with an outlet for molten metal, a mold holder adapted to be moved hand to said outlet, means for ejecting metal from the crucible through said outlet, a rotary shaft for operating said means, a drive for turning said shaft, motion transferring members for throwing the drive into connection with said shaft, a lever in the path of said mold holder for actuating said members, and means for automatically disconnecting said drive from said shaft when the latter has been turned through a certain angle.

1,539,906. TOY BOAT. AUGUST KLEINOHLE, New Orleans, La. Filed Sept. 3, 1924. Serial No. 735,699. 5 Claims. (Cl. 46—36.)

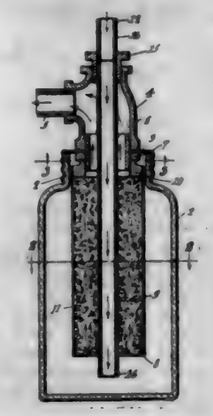


2. A toy boat including a hull of hollow form having inner transverse reinforcing rods, a deck in spaced apart front and rear sections supported on said rods, side paddle wheels, a motor and motor frame disposed within the hull and projecting upwardly between the deck sections, a shaft for the paddle wheels supported by said motor frame and in operative connection with the motor, a housing for the motor seated over the same and the space between the deck sections, said housing having apertured front and rear walls, and flexible upstanding rods secured to the deck sections and having upper angular ends shiftable into the apertures of the housing to hold the latter detachably in place.

1,539,907. ATTACHMENT FOR TENTS. JOHN F. MCGILL, Quantico, Va. Filed Apr. 8, 1924. Serial No. 704,923. 12 Claims. (Cl. 135—1.)

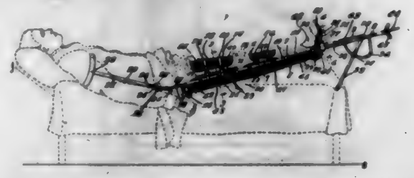
3. The combination with a tent fly or the like, of a strip of material secured thereto near one edge, said material having a longitudinally disposed raised portion to intercept any water which may flow down said fly, said strip of material being inclined from front to back.

1,539,908. EARTH-BORING MACHINE. WILLIAM E. MOORE, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to International Earth-Boring Machine Corporation, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Oct. 6, 1919. Serial No. 328,801. 12 Claims. (Cl. 255—22.)



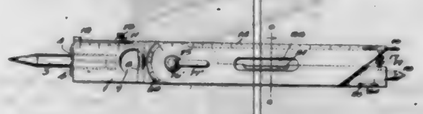
1. In an earth boring machine, a stationary frame adapted to be attached to a motor chassis, a movable frame mounted on the fixed frame for reciprocating movement, earth boring mechanism mounted on the movable frame with its main driving shaft journaled in said fixed frame, means connecting said driving shaft with the motor shaft of the motor car, means for varying the position of the boring mechanism and means for compensating for the different positions of said boring mechanism without disturbing the operative relations of the motor shaft and the main driving shaft of said boring mechanism.

1,539,909. EDUCATIONAL DEVICE. JOSÉ PARIS, Manila, P. I. Filed Mar. 1, 1923. Serial No. 622,131. 6 Claims. (Cl. 35—1.)



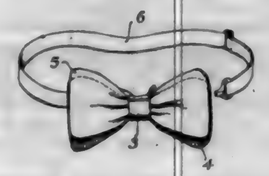
1. As an article of manufacture a base member for educational devices of elongated formation providing an illustration with explanatory matter on the upper surface thereof adjacent one end of the same, said base member on said upper surface from said illustration to the opposite end thereof having longitudinal lines scribed thereon in parallel relation inwardly of the longitudinal edges of said base member and vertical lines intermediate said longitudinal lines at right angles to the latter subdividing said base member into a plurality of squares of equal dimension, each of said squares having a contrasting delineation therein, and marked blocks for fitting upon said squares having cutouts for exposing said delineations when the blocks are placed upon the proper squares.

1,539,910. WATER FILTER. HOMER M. PARISH, Charlotte, Mich. Filed July 25, 1924. Serial No. 728,212. 1 Claim. (Cl. 210—165.)



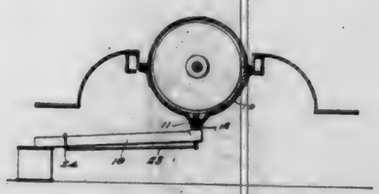
In a device of the class described, a receptacle, a closure detachably mounted on the receptacle, a sleeve extended through the closure, a T having a lateral outlet, one end of the T being threaded on the sleeve and cooperating with the outer surface of the closure, a nut threaded on the sleeve and cooperating with the inner surface of the closure; a filter comprising a cylindrical shell having an opening, a head carried by the shell, and filtering material in the shell, the head being threaded on the inner end of the sleeve, and engaging the nut; a reducer mounted detachably in the other end of the T, a pipe extending through the filtering material, through the sleeve and through the T and threaded at one end into the reducer, and a supply pipe threaded into the reducer and coacting with the first-specified pipe to form an inlet conduit.

1,539,911. LEG SPLINT. WILLIAM A. PENDERGRAFT, Carney, Okla. Filed Oct. 4, 1922. Serial No. 592,309. 3 Claims. (Cl. 128—85.)



1. A leg splint comprising laterally spaced side rails to be mounted along the sides of the leg to be supported, a U-shaped bar connecting the front ends of said rails, a crutch member carried by one of said rails and hingedly connected at the hip, said side rails having a hinge therein at the knee portion to permit passive motion of the knee to prevent ankylosis of the knee joint, a stirrup connecting said side rails and composed of hingedly connected sections to provide for the positioning of the rails toward or away from each other to fit legs of varying sizes.

1,539,912. COMBINATION TOOL. OSCAR PETERSON, Dent, Minn. Filed July 23, 1923. Serial No. 653,806. 3 Claims. (Cl. 33—211.)

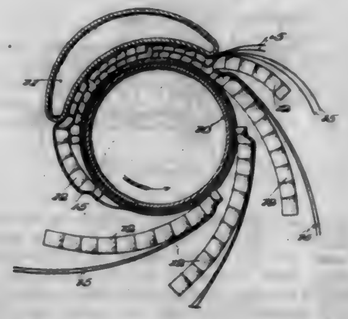


1. In combination, a body, a spirit level in the body, a casing pivoted to the body at one end thereof and adapted to fit over the body, said casing having its sides provided respectively with slots for registering with said spirit level when the casing is in closed position over the body.

1,539,913. REVERSIBLE BOW TIE. ARTHUR REINHART, Portland, Oreg. Filed June 14, 1923. Serial No. 645,413. 2 Claims. (Cl. 2—151.)

1. In a reversible bow tie, the means of combining four wearing surfaces in one tie, said means comprising a loop, and two bows jointly and severally rotatable in the loop.

1,539,914. AUTOMOBILE ATTACHMENT. PAUL RHOADES, Crawfordsville, Ind. Filed Mar. 12, 1924. Serial No. 698,751. 5 Claims. (Cl. 184—106.)

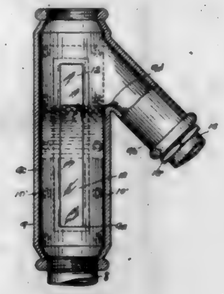


1. The combination with an engine crank case having a drain opening therein, of a valve for controlling the opening, a drain pipe and means carried by the drain pipe and having a detachable connection with the valve, whereby the latter may be operated.

1,539,915. FLY AND BAIT AND LEADER HOLDER. VALENTINE SHEBAT, Butte, Mont. Filed Sept. 10, 1924. Serial No. 736,927. 3 Claims. (Cl. 43—31.)

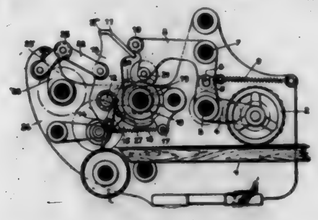
3. A holder comprising a cylindrical body presenting separate compartments, a cover at one end of the cylindrical body, a cork closing the other end of the cylindrical body, and a wire having its ends engaged in sockets on the said cylindrical body and extending across the said cork, and cover sections hingedly supported by the said wire, said hinged sections providing a cover for the said cork.

1,539,916. PADDED COVERING FOR IRONING ROLLS. KARL HUGH SIEVER, Keyser, W. Va. Filed Nov. 1, 1924. Serial No. 747,244. 7 Claims. (Cl. 68—9.)



1. A covering for ironing rolls consisting of a carrier cloth in a single piece adapted to be wound around such rolls, a series of strips of padding in uniformly overlapping relation on the carrier cloth, each strip being secured at its innermost edge to the cloth and being otherwise free, the said strips being spaced apart a distance equal to one-half of the widths of the strips, and a series of covering strips overlying the several strips of padding, the said covering strips being of greater width than the strips of padding and secured at one edge to the connected edges of the strips of padding whereby to form an external ironing cloth in their freely overlapping relation.

1,539,917. LIQUID-LEVEL INDICATOR. CHARLES I. SMITH, Theresa, N. Y. Filed Sept. 5, 1924. Serial No. 736,125. 4 Claims. (Cl. 221—102.)



1. In a liquid level indicator, the combination with a measuring pump and an upright delivery pipe, of an elongated hollow body supported on the top end of said pipe and receiving liquid lifted by said pump, said body having a downward angular branch and a dam at the junction of the body and branch over which the liquid flows into the branch, the front and rear walls of said body being formed with openings in line with its longitudinal axis, strips of transparent glass overlying said openings, said strips being inscribed with markings that coincide with the crest of said dam, and slotted plates for clamping the glass in place.

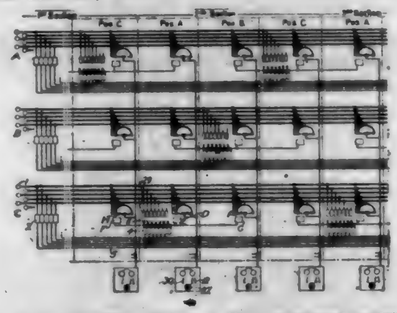
1,539,918. DEVICE FOR FEEDING SHEETS TO PRINTING PRESSES, FOLDING MACHINES, AND THE LIKE. GEORG SPIESS, Leipzig, Germany. Filed Oct. 1, 1923. Serial No. 665,759. 9 Claims. (Cl. 211—38.)

1. In a sheet feeding device for printing presses, folding machines and the like of the type in which the lever gear of the feeding device co-operates with an oscillating lever controlled by the advancing sheets actuating a detector pawl in co-operation with a toothed driver or ratchet wheel and in which the disengagement of the pawl and ratchet wheel is effected by acceleration of the oscillating lever relatively to the driving means, the combination with the oscillating lever having cam surfaces of different inclinations, the lesser inclined surfaces exerting a greater lifting force of link levers in such connection that the acceleration of the oscillating lever is increased through the increased pressure momentum while acting with the lesser inclined portion in operating position on the link-levers approaching a nearly straight or stretched position, said acceleration being limited by the stretched position of the link-levers.



1,539,919. STOCK REGISTER. JOHN PRESTON SWIFT, Waynesville, N. C. Filed Feb. 24, 1923. Serial No. 621,005. 3 Claims. (Cl. 235—144.)

1. In a registering device of the character described, a support including an upright member, a number wheel mounted to rotate in proximity to said upright, a ratchet wheel disposed between said upright and said number wheel and connected to the number wheel to control the rotation of the latter, said upright having a recess in the face thereof proximate to said ratchet wheel, and a spring pawl attached at one end to said support to swing between position to engage at its free end with said ratchet wheel to prevent rotation of the ratchet wheel in one direction and position out of engagement with said ratchet wheel in which the free end portion of said pawl is received in said recess.

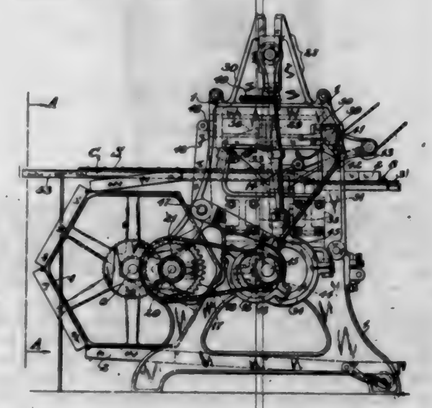
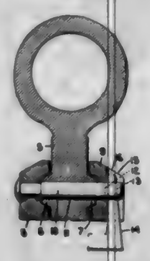
1,539,920. SIGNALING SYSTEM. DAWSON M. TAGGART, Seattle, Wash., assignor to American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 12, 1922. Serial No. 606,514. 10 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.)



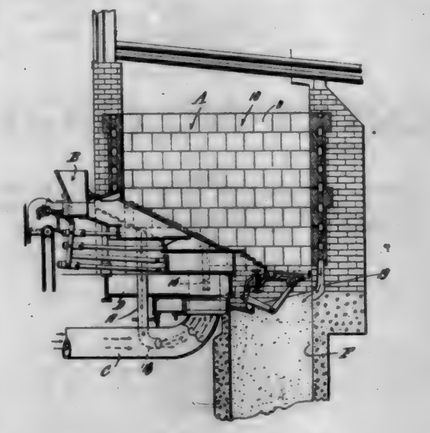
1. In an signaling system, a line, operators' positions, a signal for said line at each of said positions, means responsive to a call initiated on said line for connecting said line to one of said positions, and means controlled thereby for flashing one of said signals in a characteristic manner.

1,539,921. AUTOMOBILE DOOR SPRING. LEE THARP, Burlington, Iowa. Filed June 11, 1924. Serial No. 719,429. 3 Claims. (Cl. 16—188.)



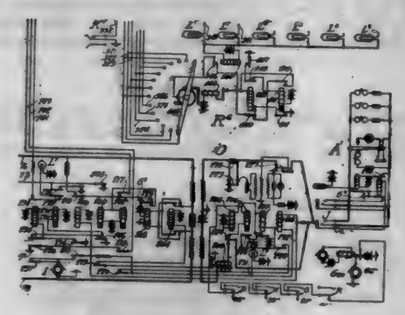
3. Attachments for hinges of the nonspring type comprising a case including an arcuate outer wall, forwardly extending upper and lower walls formed on the outer wall, and side walls connecting the outer wall and the top and bottom walls together, a pin carried by the top and bottom walls and arranged between the side walls, a spring coiled about said pin, upper and lower arms formed on the terminals of the spring, an intermediate U shaped arm formed on the spring, the upper and lower walls being provided with registering openings forwardly of the pins, and a hinge pin removably fitted in said openings.

1,539,922. MACHINE FOR USE IN MAKING BOXES. OSCEOLA C. THOMPSON, White Plains, N. Y., assignor to Wirebounds Patents Company, a Corporation of Maine. Filed Apr. 20, 1920. Serial No. 375,195. 77 Claims. (Cl. 1—8.2.)



1. A machine for use in making boxes comprising, in combination, means for spacing box parts; fastener-setting mechanism operable upon moving box parts; and means for causing relative progression between said mechanism and the box parts; said machine being adapted to operate without interruption upon materials for a plurality of boxes.

1,539,923. COLLAPSIBLE CORE. JOHN C. TUTTLE and FREDERICK A. BOLLINGER, Akron, Ohio, assignors to The Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Apr. 21, 1920. Serial No. 375,474. 3 Claims. (Cl. 18—45.)



1. In a collapsible core, the combination of separable sections having inwardly extending tongues, locking rings adapted to lie on each side of said tongues, clamping means irremovably secured to one of said rings and passing through said tongues and the other of said rings said means being provided with a tapered surface, and a wedge adapted to cooperate with said surface.

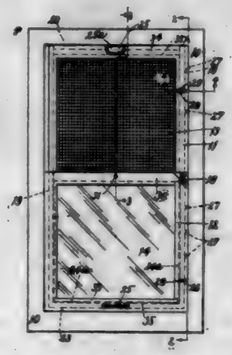
1,539,924. AIR-COOLED FURNACE. FRANK H. WAITE and GEORGE W. DAVEY, Long Island City, N. Y. Filed Jan. 3, 1924. Serial No. 684,226. 10 Claims. (Cl. 110—72.)

1. The combination with a furnace including side walls having air channels extending therethrough and an automatic stoker including a main air duct for feeding forced air below the same, of an air supply pipe for feeding air from the duct to the channels in the walls, and a suction pipe communicating with the duct at a point intermediate its ends and with the channels in the walls at a point spaced from said air supply pipe.

1,539,925. MULTIOFFICE TELEPHONE SYSTEM. BERNARD D. WILLIS, Oak Park, Ill., assignor to Automatic Electric Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed July 21, 1920, Serial No. 397,982. Renewed Nov. 15, 1924. 10 Claims. (Cl. 179—27.)

1. In a telephone system, a plurality of register sets accessible to calling automatic subscribers for registering called telephone numbers, an indicating device common to said register sets for indicating registered calls to an operator, and a consecution controller for switching registered calls on to said indicating device one at a time, said controller comprising a step by step switch adapted to test said register sets in a definite predetermined order.

1,539,926. GRATE STRUCTURE. JAMES S. WILSON, Scranton, Pa. Filed Oct. 17, 1922. Serial No. 595,103. 3 Claims. (Cl. 126—176.)



1. In a grate structure, a frame comprising members to be connected together at the corners of the frame, one of said members having a recess and a boss upstanding therein and of wedge-shape, the other member having a recess providing a depending boss, the said recess and last-mentioned boss being formed to have wedging fit with the recess and boss of the first-mentioned member.

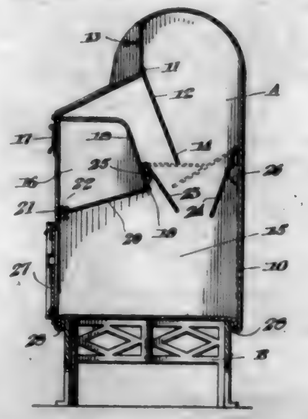
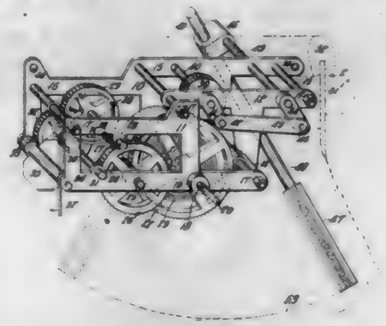
1,539,927. COMBINATION WINDOW SASH. FRANK O. ALLMAN, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Feb. 1, 1922. Serial No. 533,318. 1 Claim. (Cl. 20—55.)



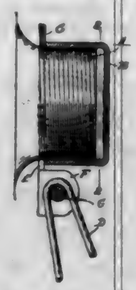
A window sash having in its top rail a slit and in its vertical stiles inward grooves extending downwardly from the ends of said slits; a wire netting inserted in said sash and a strip removably held in said slit to close it; said wire netting having its vertical edges clamped tightly in channel bars, and loose horizontal bars inserted one across the top and the other across the bottom end of the netting and engaging the ends of the channel bars to hold them with the wire netting stretched, said cross bars being received into the sash at one side of the netting.

1,539,928. REACTANCE. DONALD J. ANGUS, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed Sept. 2, 1922. Serial No. 586,033. 12 Claims. (Cl. 175—356.)



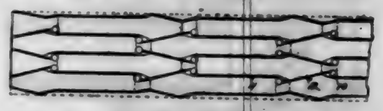
1. A reactance, comprising a magnetic element and a conducting element, said magnetic element comprising a plurality of laminæ with registering holes through them, and said conducting element comprising a plurality of metal bars built up with their ends overlapping to form a coiled conducting path, some of said bars passing through holes in the laminæ, and means for clamping said overlapping ends together.

1,539,929. MAIL BOX. JEAN B. ARIAL, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada. Filed Feb. 6, 1923. Serial No. 617,404. 5 Claims. (Cl. 232—45.)



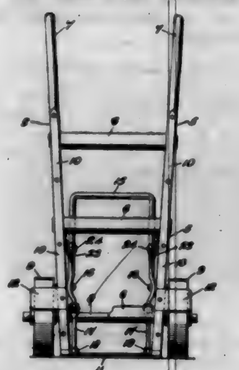
1. A mail box of the character described comprising a casing having an opening in the top, a swing door therein, a letter slot and a mail clearing door in the side, compartments communicating with said opening and with the letter slot, the letter compartment being provided with a pivotally mounted bottom designed to operatively engage with the casing whereby the letter mail is retained separately in one compartment and cleared separately therefrom, a pair of aprons pivotally mounted within the casing and provided with auxiliary supports designed to impel said aprons inwardly to form a hopper head whereby the mail from the top opening passes to the bottom of the casing.

1,539,930. SPRING MOTOR FOR CLEANING APPARATUS. MORIS M. BERGER, Cleveland Heights, Ohio, assignor to Doris P. Berger, Cleveland Heights, Ohio. Filed Feb. 8, 1922. Serial No. 535,071. 5 Claims. (Cl. 185—37.)



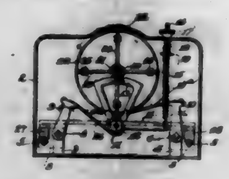
3. In an apparatus of the character described, the combination of, a housing, a spring motor mounted in said housing, means for operating a cleaning apparatus mounted in said housing and operated by said motor, a stop and start shaft journaled in said housing and operated by said motor, a stop and start wheel secured to said stop and start shaft and provided with stop pins projecting from one side thereof, and a stop and start lever hinged on said housing and comprising a handle portion extending downward and the lower end thereof projecting below the bottom of said housing, an arm extending sidewise and provided with a hook to engage said pins, said stop and start lever locked in stop position by the action of said motor on said stop and start shaft when said hook engages one of said pins, and said stop and start lever held in unlocking position by the weight of said arm when said hook is disengaged from said pins.

1,539,931. ANCHORAGE DEVICE FOR VEHICLES. WILLIAM W. BLAKELY, Detroit, Mich. Filed May 12, 1924. Serial No. 712,726. 4 Claims. (Cl. 188—32.)



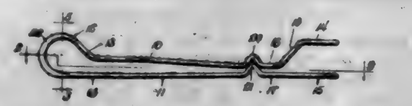
1. An anchorage device for vehicles comprising a split ring engageable with a vehicle part, and a tie member attached to said ring, a cap retaining the ring on said vehicle part, a clamping member engaging the split ends of said ring for drawing the same together.

1,539,932. MANUFACTURE OF VEHICLE WHEEL-SPOKE BLANKS. WILLIAM N. BOOTH, Detroit, Mich. Filed Mar. 24, 1924. Serial No. 701,512. 4 Claims. (Cl. 144—309.)



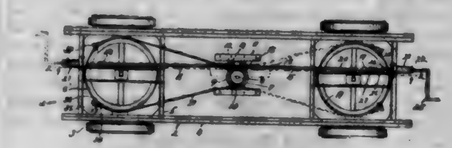
1. In the manufacture of vehicle wheel spoke blanks each having a spindle portion and a bevelled end portion, the severing of a blank to form a plurality of spoke blanks having overlapping bevelled end portions with adjacent sides parallel to each other.

1,539,933. TRUCK ATTACHMENT. BURNS W. BRITTON, Oregon City, Oreg. Filed Oct. 30, 1922. Serial No. 597,969. 2 Claims. (Cl. 280—57.)



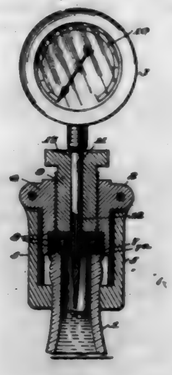
1. In a hand truck, the combination with a frame comprising spaced side members, supporting wheels therefor, and a load engaging angular extension rigid with said side members, of levers pivotally secured to said side members, adjacent said extension provided with portions adapted to engage and fulcrum upon the surface upon which said truck rests, whereby said load engaging extension may be raised; and means comprising a foot lever pivoted to said frame and link connections for moving said first mentioned levers about their pivots to produce said fulcruming and raising action.

1,539,934. SCALE. HUGH M. CAMERON, Woodhaven, N. Y. Filed Dec. 31, 1923. Serial No. 683,609. 4 Claims. (Cl. 265—68.)



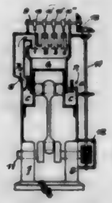
1. A scale comprising a base, a pair of opposed levers pivoted on the base, a dial, means for rotating the dial, said dial and rotating means being positioned between the levers, and flexible connections between the levers and said means.

1,539,935. HAIRPIN. LEO M. CHAPMAN, Chicago, Ill. Filed Dec. 6, 1923. Serial No. 678,850. 1 Claim. (Cl. 132—50.)



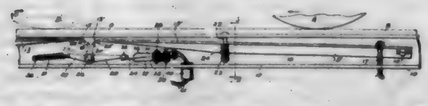
A hair pin having two inwardly and gradually converging legs, and a loop at the closed end of the pin, the larger part of which lies on one side of the longitudinal axis of the pin; a kink in each leg, near the open end of the pin, one kink normally within the other, and one leg diverging laterally and abruptly from the kinks toward the open end of the pin and then bent into parallel relation with the other leg at the extreme open end of the pin.

1,539,936. STEERING MECHANISM FOR VEHICLES. JAMES H. CLARK, River Rouge, Mich. Filed Feb. 26, 1923. Serial No. 621,445. 4 Claims. (Cl. 280—91.)



1. The combination with a vehicle having a frame, a pair of wheeled trucks, fifth wheels having upper and lower sections respectively secured to said frame and trucks, and pivots connecting said upper and lower sections, of a supporting bracket between said fifth wheels, a wheel mounted on said bracket, a flexible member trained around the wheel on the bracket, blocks having hooks detachably engaging recesses in the lower section of one of said fifth wheels, bolts secured to the ends of said flexible member and extending through said blocks, nuts on said bolts for adjustably connecting said bolts to said blocks for varying the tension of said flexible member, and means for rotating said wheel for actuating said flexible member.

1,539,937. TESTING DEVICE. JAMES R. COCHRANE, Franklin, Pa., assignor to William L. Symons, Washington, D. C. Filed Nov. 14, 1923. Serial No. 674,689. 7 Claims. (Cl. 73—51.)

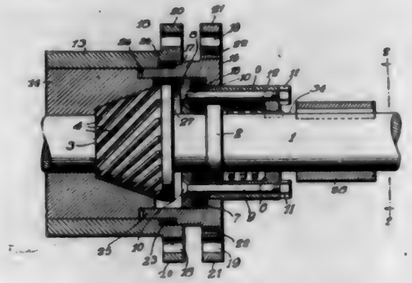


1. In a pressure testing device adapted to test the pressure in a receptacle having a top with closing means such as a cap, means to grasp said receptacle, means to press said grasping means against said top, a gauge and means connected with said gauge to perforate said cap whereby the pressure in said receptacle will be measured by said gauge.

1,539,938. APPARATUS FOR THE PRODUCTION OF GAS AT HIGH TEMPERATURE AND PRESSURE. EUDORE FRANCHIMONT and VITAL CÉSAR, Ixelles, Belgium. Filed Feb. 19, 1921. Serial No. 446,477. 1 Claim. (Cl. 60—44.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)

The method of generating high pressure and temperature gases which comprises feeding a six-stroke cycle internal combustion engine on the first stroke with compressed air which is further compressed on the second stroke, injecting combustible fluid and effecting the combustion and partial expansion of the gases on the third stroke, driving out part of the hot and partially expanded gases for use on the fourth stroke, expanding residual gases on the fifth stroke and finally, on the sixth stroke, expelling the residual gases.

1,539,939. RAILWAY-TRACK INSTRUMENT. ROY A. FRY, Omaha, Nebr. Filed June 23, 1923. Serial No. 647,359. 5 Claims. (Cl. 246—251.)

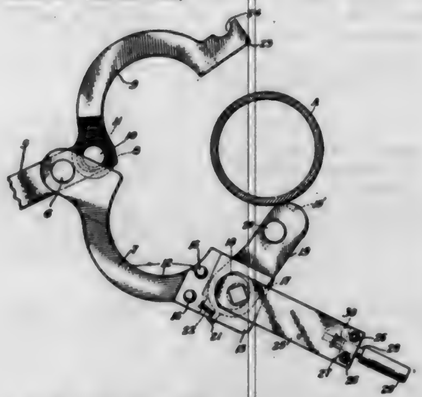


1. In a railway track-instrument, the combination with a track-rail, of a long rigid beam disposed alongside the rail, means fixedly connecting the ends of said beam with adjacent parts of the rail, an amplifying-lever fulcrumed on said beam, and means connecting with the rail a part of said lever adjacent to its fulcrum, whereby a slight relative movement of the rail and beam at the point of said connection may effect a large movement of the free end of the lever.

1,539,940. FINGER-RING BLANK. GEORGE GASCHKE, Newark, N. J., assignor to American Platinum Works, Newark, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 1, 1922. Serial No. 565,157. 1 Claim. (Cl. 29—160.6.)

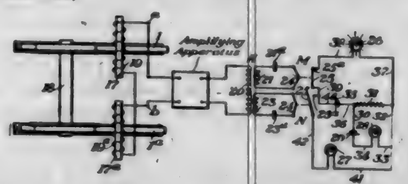
As a new article of manufacture, a finger ring blank having a solid back portion and a bifurcated front portion, the bifurcating slit extending more than one quarter and less than one half of the circumference of the ring and midway between the side edges through its entire thickness.

1,539,941. PACKING FOR PUMPS. DOUGLAS B. GENTRY, Crozet, Va., assignor of one-half to Ernest P. Gentry, Crozet, Va. Filed Dec. 29, 1923. Serial No. 683,365. 10 Claims. (Cl. 286—7.)



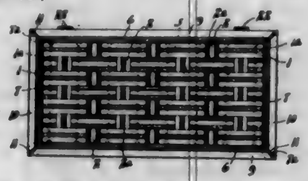
1. In a rotary pump, a pump shaft, a cone mounted on said shaft to revolve therewith and having spiral flutes, a packing gland with a shoulder, a casing with a shoulder, a packing gasket between said shoulders, a cup-shaped member keyed to said shaft, a spring acting thereon, and a packing ring against which said cup shaped member bears.

1,539,942. INK CARTRIDGE. BYRON B. GOLDSMITH, New York, N. Y. Original application filed Mar. 2, 1922, Serial No. 540,488. Divided and this application filed Feb. 16, 1923. Serial No. 619,346. 5 Claims. (Cl. 134—38.)



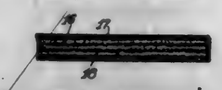
5. Apparatus for making liquid ink comprising a cylindrical pouring tube of substantially uniform bore, in combination with a capsule containing ink powder and extending completely across and within the end of said tube.

1,539,943. PIPE TONGS. EDGAR E. GREVE, Bellevue, Pa. Filed Nov. 17, 1921. Serial No. 515,757. 13 Claims. (Cl. 81—66.)



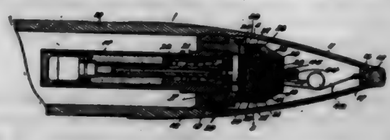
9. A pipe tong comprising a lever having a pair of jaws thereon and a locking member including a pivoted and slidable link on one of the jaws arranged to be reciprocated relatively to both jaws into and out of locking position, and means for maintaining the link in locked position.

1,539,944. RAILWAY-TRAFFIC-CONTROLLING APPARATUS. LARS O. GRONDAHL, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to The Union Switch & Signal Company, Swissvale, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 7, 1923. Serial No. 679,056. 23 Claims. (Cl. 246—34.)



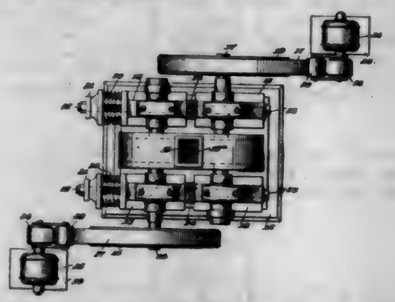
22. In combination, two hot wire relays, means for selectively energizing said relays, an indicator constantly connected with a source of electromotive force, and means controlled by said relays for at times neutralizing said electromotive force.

1,539,945. PANEL FOR CEDAR CHESTS AND OTHER ARTICLES. HERMAN F. HECKER, Oxboro, Minn. Filed Apr. 2, 1924. Serial No. 703,698. 9 Claims. (Cl. 20—75.)



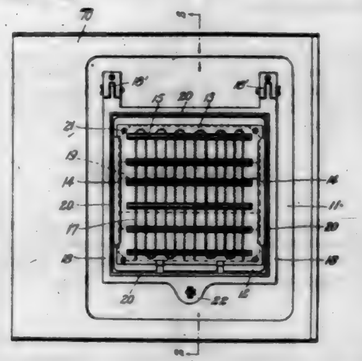
1. A panel formed of adjacent rows of spaced groups of pieces, said panel comprising two sets of groups, said pieces being of rectangular cross section, each group of one set comprising a plurality of similar pieces arranged longitudinally of said panel and the other set of groups each comprising a plurality of similar pieces having a length equal to the width of the groups of said first mentioned set and disposed at an angle to the pieces of the groups of said first mentioned set, all of said pieces having their exposed surfaces at one side of the panel in one plane, and clamping means extending transversely of said panel through the groups of said first mentioned set and between the groups of said second mentioned set.

1,539,946. PAPER HAT. WILLIAM A. LORENZ, Hartford, Conn., assignor to The Otaka Fabric Company, Hartford, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed July 8, 1920. Serial No. 394,729. 17 Claims. (Cl. 92—69.)



1. A strand formed of a strip of paper which is folded to form three plies, one of said plies being turned in between the other two and pasted in position, said strip being crinkled or gathered to render it edgewise flexible.

1,539,947. FUSE FOR PROJECTILES. WILLIAM L. LUKENS, Bethlehem, Pa., assignor to Bethlehem Steel Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 7, 1923. Serial No. 630,486. 6 Claims. (Cl. 102—39.)



4. The combination with a hollow projectile body having an aperture therein, of a fuse completely enclosed within the projectile wall and adapted to be adjusted for different speeds of action, means for controlling the adjustment of the fuse and removable through said aperture, a detachable plug closing said aperture, a link connection between said means and said plug, and an anticipator insertable through said aperture after the removal of said plug, said fuse and anticipator having interengaging means, whereby the latter may be detachably secured to a fixed portion of the fuse.

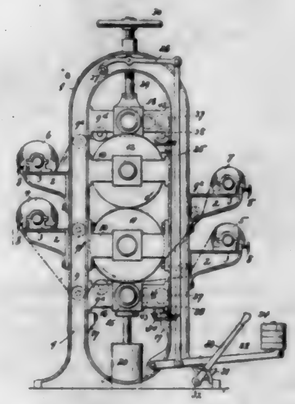
1,539,948. DRIVING SYSTEM FOR ROLL-CRUSHING MACHINES. ALEXANDER GRANT MCGREGOR, Warren, Ariz. Filed May 13, 1924. Serial No. 713,089. 9 Claims. (Cl. 83—12.)

1. In a roll crushing machine, the combination with two shafts each provided with a driving pulley and a crushing roll, one of said shafts being mounted in spring-pressed bearings, of two power pulleys located some distance apart and on opposite sides of the said machine and of said shafts, and driving belts connecting said power pulleys and driving pulleys and arranged to pull on one of said driving pulleys in opposition to the stress of the springs for said spring-pressed bearings.

1,539,949. HINGED OVEN ELECTRIC BURNER. ROBERT H. MACINNES, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, assignor to D. Moore Company, Limited, Hamilton, Canada. Filed Sept. 12, 1924. Serial No. 737,317. 2 Claims. (Cl. 219—35.)

1. In an electric oven burner, lateral rails or straps, a plurality of cross members connecting the rails, flanges on said rails and on the end cross members, said flanges forming a recess in the structure constituted by the rails and cross members, and a heater element resting in said recess.

1,539,950. TRAFFIC SIGNAL FOR AUTOMOBILES. TOMOTARO OKAMOTO, Fort Lupton, Colo. Filed Jan. 11, 1924. Serial No. 685,523. 7 Claims. (Cl. 116—40.)

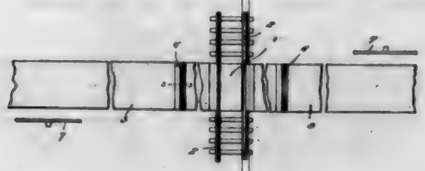


1. An automobile traffic signal comprising a cylindrical box having one end closed and the other end open, a helical spring secured at one end to the closed end of the box, said spring when extended projecting out of said box, a diaphonous covering for said spring, said covering being adapted to be illuminated by a lamp within the same, a flexible member extending axially through the spring whereby it may be contracted and folded within the box, and means connected to the spring and operatively related to the flexible member for preventing buckling of the spring as it is compressed.

1,539,951. CLEANER FOR COTTON FEEDERS. JAMES M. PERSON, Florence, Ala. Filed Aug. 7, 1922. Serial No. 580,364. 19 Claims. (Cl. 19—39.)

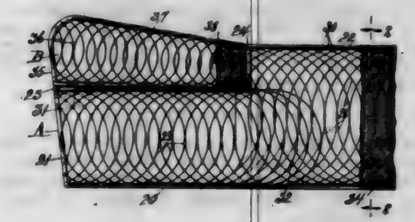
2. In a cotton feeder, the combination with a feeder drum, of a picker box into which the drum feeds the cotton and foreign matter, said box having a bottom discharge for the foreign matter and a chute for the discharge of cotton into the gin breast, and co-acting picking and hulling elements adapted to separate the foreign matter from the cotton and deliver each to its approriate discharge, and comprising a picker roller over the bottom discharge and a huller board over the roller and inclined to discharge matter collecting thereon onto the picker board above said discharge.

1,539,952. MACHINE FOR COATING, GLAZING, OR OTHERWISE TREATING PAPER AND SIMILAR MATERIAL. EMIL POHL, Bogota, N. J. Filed Apr. 23, 1924. Serial No. 708,374. 10 Claims. (Cl. 91—50.)



1. A machine for calendering paper and similar material, comprising a frame, a large operating roller rotatably mounted therein, a fixed bearing therefor, a second large operating roller rotatably mounted on said frame, an adjustable bearing therefor, two rotatable smaller rollers, one cooperating with each of the said large operating rollers, movable bearings for the said smaller rollers, means for adjustably pressing the said smaller rollers against their corresponding large operating rollers, means for rotating all the rollers, reels positioned upon said frame for winding and unwinding the web of paper or other material to be treated, means for rotating said reels and guiding rolls for the material to be treated.

6. A machine for calendering paper and similar material, comprising a frame, a large operating roller rotatably mounted therein, a fixed bearing therefor, a second large operating roller rotatably mounted on said frame, an adjustable bearing therefor, two rotatable smaller rollers, one cooperating with each of the said large operating rollers, movable bearings for the said smaller rollers, means for adjustably pressing the said smaller rollers against their corresponding large operating rollers, means for rotating all the rollers, reels for winding and unwinding the web of paper or other material to be treated, means for rotating said reels, guiding rolls for the material to be treated and two adjustable coating devices adapted to cooperate with the said smaller rollers, so as to apply thereto a coating substance.



1,539,953. RAILWAY-CROSSING STOP. ERBAL O. PRESNELL and SAMUEL A. PRESNELL, Algiers, La. Filed July 7, 1924. Serial No. 724,627. 1 Claim. (Cl. 238—3.)

A warning device adapted to be located a distance from the railroad track on a cross road including an upwardly extending projection disposed across the road a distance from the railroad track and made of the same material as the cross road, said projection being in the form of an isosceles triangle in cross section thereby providing oppositely climbing sides, the upper edge of the projection being rounded.

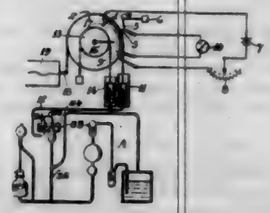
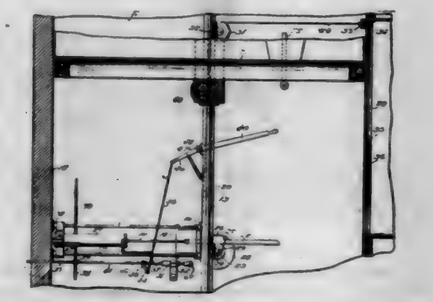
1,539,954. FLEXIBLE TRUSS. ROLAND B. RESPESS, New York, N. Y. Filed Oct. 26, 1920. Serial No. 419,576. 7 Claims. (Cl. 244—31.)



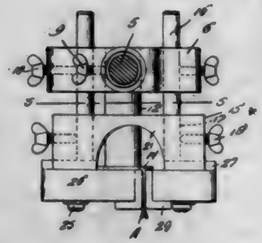
1. A trussed aeroplane wing comprising a frame having spaced rail members, a flattened helix comprising a series of consecutive turns disposed substantially in the plane defined by said rails, each turn of the helix being connected to each of the rails, and a cover for the frame extending over all of the turns of the helix.

1,539,955. MAGNESIUM EXTRACTION. BRODDE E. F. RHODIN, Caldwell, N. J. Filed May 18, 1924. Serial No. 712,990. 7 Claims. (Cl. 75—17.)



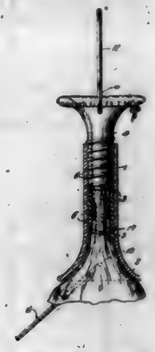
1. The process of extracting magnesium from magnesium alloys which comprises treating such alloys in a bath of molten alkali having chemical affinity for the metal or metals with which the magnesium is alloyed and for which the magnesium has a natural chemical neutrality.

1,539,956. ELECTRICAL INDICATING OR RECORDING MEANS FOR GAS-ANALYZING APPARATUS. OLOF RODHE, Stockholm, Sweden, assignor to Svenska Aktiebolaget Mono, Stockholm, Sweden, a Corporation of Sweden. Filed Dec. 9, 1922. Serial No. 605,989. 4 Claims. (Cl. 175—183.)



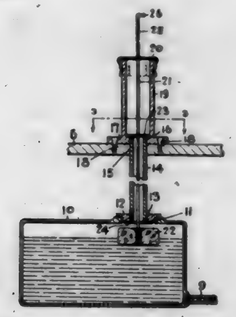
1. In a discontinuously operating gas analyzing apparatus, the combination with a movable member and means for bringing said member into a position corresponding to the result of analysis, of an electrical measuring instrument, a source of current, an adjustable resistance, electrical connections between said instrument, said source and said resistance means for locking said member substantially until the termination of each analysis.

1,539,957. APPARATUS FOR OPERATING ELEVATOR GATES. JOHN ROHRDANZ and EDWIN ROHRDANZ, Blue Island, Ill. Filed Jan. 11, 1922. Serial No. 528,512. 13 Claims. (Cl. 187—54.)



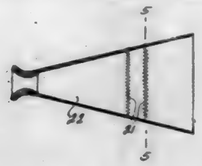
7. Apparatus for operating elevator gates, comprising air-controlled gate operating mechanism, means for supplying air under pressure, and means controlled by the presence or absence of the elevator at a landing for governing the admission of air to operate said mechanism, said last mentioned means comprising a normally open valve freeing and preventing action of air admitted from the source of supply, and means on the elevator for closing said valve when the elevator is at a landing to permit admission of the air to said gate operating mechanism.

1,539,958. BAND-SAW GUIDE. JACOB RUSH, Louisville, Ky. Filed Feb. 10, 1925. Serial No. 8,172. 2 Claims. (Cl. 143—161.)



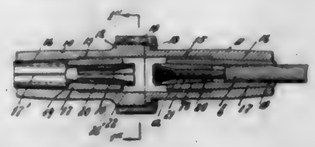
1. In a band-saw guide, a stationary block, a movable guide supporting block, a pair of pins slidable through the blocks, means for locking the pins in adjustment with the blocks, a socket extending through the fixed block, means for holding the socket in adjusted positions in relation to the fixed block, a rotary disk guide having a spindle in the socket, said movable block provided with an opening in which is disposed the rotary disk guide, a pair of side guide members adjustably mounted on the movable blocks.

1,539,959. FRUIT-SQUEEZING DEVICE. LESTER L. SARGENT, Washington, D. C. Filed Nov. 22, 1924. Serial No. 751,653. 4 Claims. (Cl. 100—49.)



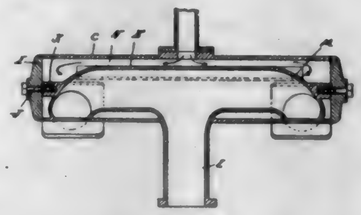
1. In a fruit squeezing device, the combination of interlocking tubes spirally threaded to adjustably engage one another, each of said tubes having a bell portion at one end.

1,539,960. LUBRICATING DEVICE FOR AUTOMOBILES. PAUL F. SCHENOT, Castle Shannon, Pa. Filed Oct. 12, 1922. Serial No. 594,089. 4 Claims. (Cl. 184—105.)



2. Lubricating apparatus for automobile engines comprising an oil supply tank, a pipe connecting said supply tank to the crank case of the automobile engine, a vertical pipe for introducing oil into said tank, a filler pipe of larger diameter than said vertical pipe and connected to the upper end of said vertical pipe, a cap for closing the upper end of said filler pipe, a rod extending through said vertical pipe and said filler pipe and protruding through an opening in said cap, a float carried by the lower end of said rod, and a guide for controlling the vertical movement of said rod.

1,539,961. TONE CLARIFIER FOR MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS. WALTER SCOTT, Sheridan, Wyo. Filed Dec. 15, 1920. Serial No. 430,918. 1 Claim. (Cl. 181—27.)

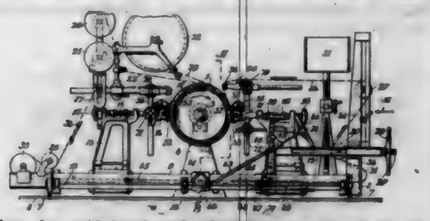


A megaphone embodying an outwardly extending body forming a tone chamber and open at its opposite ends, and coiled springs extending parallel to each other transversely to the axis of the tone chamber and attached at their extremities to the wall of the tone chamber, said springs having different relative resilience and being thereby adapted to vibrate sympathetically and reinforce air vibrations created in said tone chamber.

1,539,962. MEANS FOR CONNECTING BIMETALLIC CONDUCTORS. HERMANN J. SEUFERT, Brooklyn, N. Y., and FRIEDRICH SEUFERT, Munich, Germany. Filed Mar. 27, 1923. Serial No. 627,991. 5 Claims. (Cl. 173—353.)

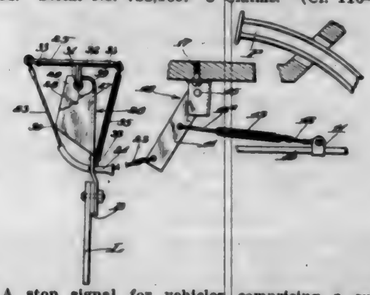
1. Connecting device for bi-metallic conductors, comprising a rigid outer shell and interposed resilient inner shells, the latter being adapted to bear the inner and outer parts of said conductor and on being compressed in said outer shell to tighten said conductor and insure a good electrical connection.

1,539,963. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. EARL H. SHERBONDY, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Sidney D. Waldon, Detroit, Mich. Filed June 11, 1920, Serial No. 388,239. Renewed July 21, 1924. 5 Claims. (Cl. 123—122.)



4. In an internal combustion engine, the combination with an exhaust manifold and an intake manifold having a stem portion and portions extending laterally therefrom, of a jacket enclosing the laterally extending portions only of said intake manifold, a conduit for conveying exhaust gases from the exhaust manifold to said jacket, said conduit being connected to said jacket at a point opposite to the stem portion of said intake manifold, means for controlling the passage of exhaust gases through said conduit, baffles within said jacket for directing the exhaust gases to the opposite ends of the laterally extending portions of said intake manifold, said baffles terminating short of the ends of said laterally extending portions and permitting the exhaust gases to sweep around the ends of said laterally extending portions, and an outlet in said jacket for said exhaust gases positioned on the opposite side of the said baffles from that of the connection between the conduit and the jacket.

1,539,964. PROCESS AND APPARATUS FOR MANUFACTURING TUBULAR BODIES FROM CONCRETE. HANS SIEGWART, Lucerne, Switzerland. Filed Apr. 11, 1924. Serial No. 705,853. 13 Claims. (Cl. 25—30.)



1. In an apparatus for manufacturing tubular bodies such as pipes, masts and the like from concrete and reinforced concrete, a turnable core, a moving band slung around parts of said core and effecting the application of the concrete on the core, and means carrying guide rollers for said band and adapted to be angularly adjusted in opposite directions about an axis at right angles to the axis of the core.

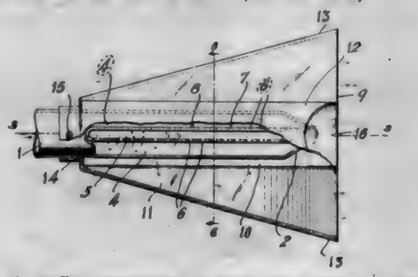
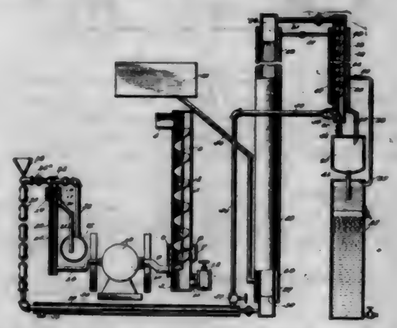
1,539,965. STOP SIGNAL FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. FRED C. SMITH, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed July 25, 1924. Serial No. 728,169. 5 Claims. (Cl. 116—45.)



1. A stop signal for vehicles comprising a support formed of sheet metal bent to provide a back portion and a pair of sides, a spindle extending between said sides, a bracket rotatable upon said spindle, a signal plate secured to said bracket, spring means secured to said support and adapted to yieldably maintain said signal plate in horizontal position, and means for drawing said signal plate into a vertical position against the action of said spring means.

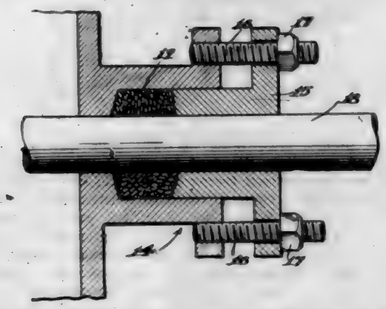
1,539,966. DISTILLATION APPARATUS AND PROCESS FOR PRODUCING ACETONE. NOEL STATHAM, Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y. Filed Jan. 28, 1919, Serial No. 273,589. Renewed Dec. 6, 1921. Serial No. 520,402. 18 Claims. (Cl. 203—6.)



14. The process of producing acetone from wood pulp waste liquor or the like which comprises concentrating the waste liquor from the digesters and incorporating and combining additional caustic soda therewith, incorporating and combining large quantities of caustic lime with said concentrated liquor to form a substantially solid high lime causticized organic acetate material, dry distilling and calcining said acetate material, leaching caustic soda liquor from the calcined distillation residue and incorporating such soda liquor with the waste liquor from the digesters.

1,539,967. EXHAUST MUFFLER. CHARLES G. STOCKTON, Ocean Grove, N. J. Filed Mar. 31, 1923. Serial No. 629,030. 5 Claims. (Cl. 137—160.)

1. A muffler comprising an inlet pipe having a plurality of oppositely disposed spaced chambers providing passages therebetween transverse of said inlet pipe, each of said chambers being adapted to receive exhaust gases at one end and being formed in its wall opposite a wall of an adjacent chamber with a plurality of openings communicating with the one of said passages between said adjacent chambers, each of said openings being disposed opposite a corresponding opening in the adjacent chamber, and an outlet casing surrounding said inlet pipe in spaced relation thereto to form an annular passage between said inlet pipe and said casing communicating with said transverse passages of the inlet pipe, said casing being provided with a plurality of outlet openings communicating with said annular passage and arranged in staggered relation to said transverse passages of the inlet pipe.



1,539,968. GAS-SEPARATOR APPARATUS. CHARLES F. W. TABLER, Tampico, Mexico. Filed Mar. 26, 1924. Serial No. 702,116. 19 Claims. (Cl. 183—32.)

1. An apparatus of the class described comprising in combination, a centrifugal separator adapted to be connected to a source of supply of oil laden gas, a pump connected with the outlet end of the separator for withdrawing the condensed portions of the gases and for placing said portions and lean gases under greater pressure, a centrifugal separator connected with the discharge end of the pump for receiving the condensed portions and gases to cause separation of discoloring matter from the condensed portions, cooling coils connected with the outlet of the second centrifugal separator, a vertically disposed drunf connected with the cooling coils in which a predetermined level of water is adapted to be maintained and through which the condensed portions and the gases may be passed, a refrigerating chamber enclosing the drum, a centrifugal separator connected to the top of the drum, a refrigerating chamber embracing the last mentioned separator, a pipe connecting the two refrigerating chambers, a tank adapted to receive the condensed gasoline under pressure, a valved connection between the storage tank and the last mentioned refrigerating chamber whereby the gasoline under pressure is permitted to escape to and expand in the refrigerating chamber for cooling the last mentioned centrifugal separator and the drum in which the gases are washed.

1,539,969. PACKING. DANIEL H. TAYLOR, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Mar. 18, 1924. Serial No. 700,064. 2 Claims. (Cl. 106—8.)

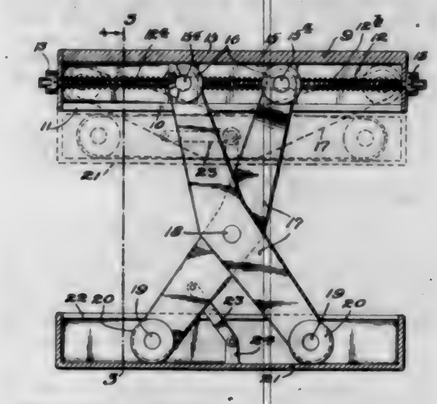
1,539,970. BUMPER. HUSTON TAYLOR, Detroit, Mich. Filed Dec. 3, 1924. Serial No. 753,537. 7 Claims. (Cl. 293—55.)

1. A bumper comprising an impact bar adapted to be extended transversely across an end of a motor vehicle, said bar at each end being provided with widened and flared and inwardly curved end portions, and supports for said bar inwardly from each end thereof.

1,539,971. AUTOMOBILE BED.—CALVIN A. TERWILLIGER, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Nov. 26, 1924. Serial No. 752,435. 4 Claims. (Cl. 155—7.)

1. Means for forming an automobile bed, including a front seat support on the floor of the automobile and having an inclined top, a rear seat bench, a rear seat cushion arranged and levelled between the bench and said support, and a backless, tapered front seat cushion supported directly in reversed, level position on the said support; all cooperating, when so arranged, to form a support for a full length mattress.

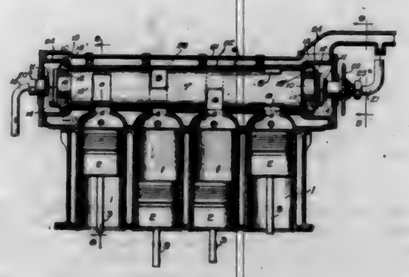
1,539,972. CONE SUPPORT FOR WINDING MACHINES. FLOYD C. TODD, Gastonia, N. C. Filed Oct. 31, 1924. Serial No. 747,019. 7 Claims. (Cl. 242—130.)



1. In a cone supporting device for winding machines and the like, a stationary spindle, a cone arbor upon said spindle, said bearing comprising a pair of concentric flanges with balls between, one of said flanges having a wedging fit upon said spindle and the other flange a wedging fit within said arbor.

1,539,973. FUME COLLECTING AND REMOVING APPARATUS. EDWARD L. TRUXAL, Wilkinsburg, Pa., assignor to The American Steel and Wire Company of New Jersey, Hoboken, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 19, 1923. Serial No. 652,658. 8 Claims. (Cl. 266—7.)

7. The combination with a treating vat for treating metal containing an acid solution, of a plurality of blast nozzles arranged along the one side wall of said vat, means for directing air under pressure through said nozzles, said nozzles being adapted to direct the air over said vat so as to blow all fumes and vapors across said vat to the side opposite from said nozzles, and a plurality of trapping hoods arranged along the side wall of said vat opposite from said nozzles and adapted to trap the fumes and vapors blown over by the air from said nozzles.



1,539,974. LIFTING JACK. GORDON TUCKER, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Apr. 10, 1922. Serial No. 551,126. 9 Claims. (Cl. 254—86.)

1. The combination with an auto axle, of a pair of transversely crossed intermediately pivoted levers connected to said axle at their upper ends for vertical movements therewith but movable longitudinally of said axle, said levers at their lower ends having applied thereto movable rollers, and means applied to said levers for imparting relative angular movement thereto to raise and lower said axle.

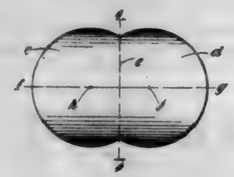
1,539,975. VALVE FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. PETER TRIEFENBACH, WILLIAM J. TRIEFENBACH, ALFRED P. TRIEFENBACH, GEORGE L. TRIEFENBACH, and EDMUND A. RAMELOW, St. Louis, Mo. Filed May 31, 1923. Serial No. 642,650. 3 Claims. (Cl. 123—190.)

1. In a device of the character described, a valve chamber, a rotary valve arranged therein, means for rotating said valve, means for delivering a cooling fluid to the interior of said valve, reinforcing fins spirally arranged on the interior of said valve, said reinforcing fins being adapted to take up the heat and radiate it to said cooling fluid passing through said valve, means for discharging said fluid from said valve and an air pipe arranged within said valve.



1,539,976. MACARONI DRIER. JOSEPH VERNACI, Brooklyn, and ANTONIO CAROLLO, LUIGI CAROLLO, and SALVATORE CAROLLO, Long Island City, N. Y. Filed Sept. 18, 1923. Serial No. 663,393. 6 Claims. (Cl. 94—19.)

2. In a drier for macaroni, or the like, the combination of a pair of drying chambers, and an intermediate chamber having openings in the drying chambers, a fan in the intermediate chamber, means to close said openings to permit the fan to circulate the drying medium through one chamber and exhaust it through the intermediate chamber and means to prevent the circulation of the drying medium through the other chamber, said means and said fan being reversible to cause the medium to circulate through either chamber.

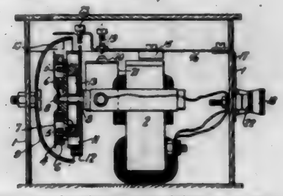
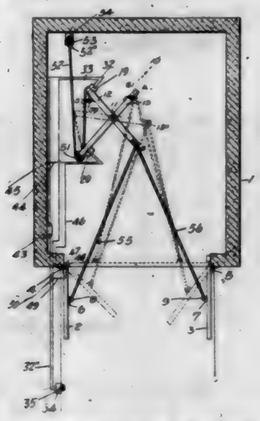
1,539,977. TARGET FOR TRAP SHOOTING AND THE LIKE. WILLIAM DENHAM VERSCHOYLE, Ballisodare, Ireland. Filed May 17, 1924. Serial No. 713,889. 4 Claims. (Cl. 124—17.)



4. An improved target for trap shooting and the like, as claimed in claim 1, having a profile constituted by the major arcs of two circles, said target being cambered transversely of a line on which lie the centres of said circles.

1,539,978. CHRONOGRAPH. GUYSBERT BOGERT VROOM, Washington, D. C. Filed June 6, 1924. Serial No. 718,405. 5 Claims. (Cl. 234—21.)

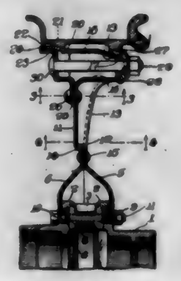


4. In combination with a pressure displacement engine to be tested, including a cylinder and cross-head, a chronograph card, means for moving said card at a constant speed, means connected with the interior of the cylinder and actuated by the pressures therein for recording the pressure upon said card during the complete stroke and a second means connected with the cross-head and adapted to indicate upon said card a curve denoting cross-head displacement whereby said curves may be subsequently analysed to determine the performance and condition of the engine tested.

1,539,970. ALARM DEVICE. ARTHUR SAMUEL WADDINGTON, London, England, assignor of one-half to Waddington Tamperproof Taximeters Limited, London, England. Filed Aug. 16, 1924. Serial No. 732,591. 5 Claims. (Cl. 177—314.)

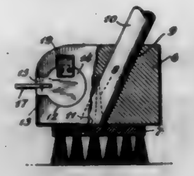
1. An alarm mechanism comprising a motor including an armature, a normally open circuit therefor including a vibration operated circuit closer, means operated upon energization of said motor for maintaining said circuit closed, an alarm, means operated by rotation of the armature for sounding the alarm, and means including a centrifugally operated clutch operated by the rotation of said armature for actuating said circuit closer to open the circuit when said armature attains a predetermined speed.

1,539,980. GARAGE-DOOR-OPERATING MECHANISM. EDWARD EARL WHEELER, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. Filed Apr. 20, 1923. Serial No. 633,400. 3 Claims. (Cl. 268—0.)



1. In a garage door operating mechanism, the combination with the doors, of a vertically movable weight means for raising the weight to the limit of its upward movement by the opening of the door, weight releasing means operated remote from the doors and located exterior to the garage, mechanism operated by the partial fall of the weight for closing the doors, means for holding the weight stationary after its partial fall, and means for opening the doors operated by the further or final fall of the weight when again released after the partial fall.

1,539,981. BUMPER. RALPH H. WILLIAMS, Detroit, Mich. Filed July 28, 1924. Serial No. 728,562. 7 Claims. (Cl. 293—55.)

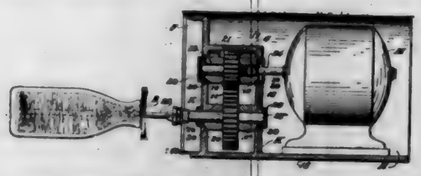


1. In a device of the character described, a frame, a fender having a plurality of flexible arms at the ends thereof, and links hingedly extending from the ends of said frame to which links the extremities of said arms are connected at differing distances from the hinged ends of said links.

1,539,982. PRESSED DISK WHEEL. WILLIAM ERASTUS WILLIAMS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to American Steel Foundries, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Nov. 10, 1919, Serial No. 336,814. Renewed June 23, 1922. Serial No. 570,518. 16 Claims. Cl. 301—64.)

1. In a wheel of the class described, a hub provided with flanges adapted to have secured thereto two disks oppositely faced, smooth in their area in the zone surrounding the hub, and joined in a region intermediate between the hub and the rim, and one disk terminating at this junction and the other disk extending to the rim of the wheel and formed into horizontally arranged rim flanges.

1,539,983. SCRUBBING AND CLEANING IMPLEMENT. ADAM P. WIMARSKI, New York, N. Y. Filed July 30, 1924. Serial No. 729,013. 1 Claim. (Cl. 15—114.)



An implement of the class described including a body having a recess extending longitudinally therethrough, said recess having an enlarged portion and a restricted portion communicating with one face of said body, a cleaning and scraping device having a portion serving as a rigid handle of a diameter to be securely grasped in the hand to permit of the device being used separately from said body, said handle portion corresponding in shape to that of said recess and engageable in said recess, and said device having a movement longitudinally of said recess to permit of the same being detached from said body.

1,539,984. BOTTLE-WASHING MACHINE. FRANK C. WOLF, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Feb. 3, 1922. Serial No. 538,865. 4 Claims. (Cl. 15—65.)

1. A bottle washing machine comprising a pair of castings having their confronting sides formed with bearings arranged in pairs with the bearings of one pair disposed in confronting relation to each other and spaced apart from the bearings of the other pairs, a shaft journaled in each pair of bearings, gears fixed to said shafts, said gears including a driving gear and driven gears, the latter meshing with each other and the former meshing with one of the driven gears, brush supporting shafts detachably associated with the shafts of the driven gears, means for driving the shaft of the driving gear, a loose and operative connection between the motor shaft and the driving shaft to allow the necessary end thrust of the motor shaft, said connection including a recess in a driving shaft, adapted to receive the adjacent end of the motor shaft, a slot in the motor shaft, and a pin secured to the driving shaft and extending through the slot of the motor shaft, caps associated with the castings to provide lubricating compartments at or adjacent the ends of the shafts, and ducts formed in the castings for effecting communication between the interior of the caps and the spaces between the adjacent pairs of bearings.

1,539,985. POURING SPOUT FOR CARTONS AND RECEPTACLES. ERASTUS S. ALLEN, Toledo, Ohio. Filed Nov. 2, 1923. Serial No. 672,429. 6 Claims. (Cl. 229—17.)
